GASOLINE-TAINTED

Call special meeting Madoc water problem

By Tom Somes

With a "knock on wood for luck" and a co-operative weatherman, plus Madoc residents preferring parched lawns to parched throats, the village may get through the summer without having to use gasoline-tainted water.

The unusual mixture of water and gasoline dominated Monday's "bare quorum" deliberations of village council, which again meets for a special session next Monday on the issue.

From this week's debate, positive action was taken to assure a village family robbed of their well's reservoir at times of heavy demands on the village's supply will get a temporary water supply and supply of water will also be assured two Madoc Township families, similarly robbed of their water.

The action follows three special meetings of council on the issue of gasoline leakage and a report from the provincial ministry of consumer and commercial affairs on the sources of the pollution and the investigation of the reaction between chlorine and petroleum products.

Next Monday's special meeting has been called to learn the results of "high-level" dialogue on Madoc's unique water problems.

The dialogue is the outcome of a May 20 special meeting of council with Frank Webb, from Kingston, a ministry of consumer and commercial relations, energy branch, representative.

At the May 20 meeting, Reeve Tom Barton accused the energy branch of "being at odds" with the original request of the village for an investigation into the gasoline contamination of Number Two well.

Mr. Webb advised council the contamination was not entirely caused by the originally identified source and advised a much wider investigation of the contamination sources is under way.

The May 20 special meeting followed the special meeting of May 12 where the problem of the two township residents deprived of their wells' resource was aired because of the shutdown of the Number Two well of the village, because of suspected gasoline contamination.

In an explanation of Madoc's problem, Deputy-Reeve Clayton Smith said Number Two well is presently on "emergency standby" and will not be used to serve the village's need until absolutely necessary.

He also said litigation is pending against the causers of the pollution problem, but is less than pleased with the "no great hell" help from the various provincial ministries engaged in studies for possible solutions to the water supply crisis facing Madoc.

With only one operating well, the deputy-reeve is "knocking on wood" for an unusually cool, wet summer.

He sees a possible solution in the development of a new well somewhere on the Whytlock farm property, located at the southwest corner of Highways 7 and 62, which is co-owned by the village and the Moira River Conservation Authority.

He said cost of development could be recovered in compensation from petroleum suppliers and agents involved in Madoc's problem.

It took the deputy-reeve and Councillors James Watson and Tom Deline almost two hours to approve the minutes of the special meetings as they commented on the recommendations and dialogue.

Reeve Barton and Councillor Ray Burris were not present.

The three members of council present discussed with Clerk-Treasurer Tom Burnside the various issues raised at the May 20 special meeting, since he was away at the time.

The clerk supplied the councillors with cost estimates on water supply and other related municipal undertakings which will be considered at next Monday's and later meetings of council.

His projects covered necessary expenditures until 1977.

His projections covered necessary expenditures, provincial cost-sharing and the need to finance some work now from municipal revenue to offset increases which could boost all estimates.

He reported on "borrowing from Peter to pay Paul" juggling as the municipality walks a financial tight rope at present.

SPRUCING UP--It's that time of year again, flower blossoms are in full bloom, May was unusually warm and dry and gardens have all been planted, with some tender vegetable shoots already poking through the earth. In a word, it's "spring" and time to do springy things, like housecleaning and outdoor painting. Here Gardner Stevenson, St. Lawrence Street, Madoc, is perched on a ladder painting the ceiling of his porch. With deft strokes of white, the porch soon glistened. [Photo by Tom Somes]

Woman killed in 2-car collision

A 58-year-old Hamilton woman was pronounced dead at the scene and her 24-year-old daughter was treated in Belleville for multiple cuts after a two-car collision on the outskirts of Madoc Monday afternoon.

Dead is Mrs. Florence Catherine Bobzener.

Unscathed were 79-year-old Durwood Allan McCoy and his 72-year-old wife, Josephine, both of 56 Nelson St., Madoc.

The mishap occurred at the intersection of Highway 7 and County Road 12 at 3:30 p.m. Monday when the northbound McCoy auto collided with the righthand side of the eastbound Bobzener auto in the westbound lane of Highway 7.

The old-model McCoy full-sized auto received an estimated $500 damage and the late-model Bobzener compact was a $3,000 total write-off.

P.C. Walt Sowkins, of the provincial police detachment at Madoc, said the mishap is still under investigation.

As a result of the on-scene investigation, it was revealed the eastbound car driven by Miss Bobzener entered the westbound lane in an effort to avoid collision with the northbound McCoy car entering the highway from the south.

Mrs. Bobzener was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. H.D. Parkin, Hastings County coroner, and Miss Bobzener was taken for treatment in Belleville by the Madoc-based provincial ambulance.

POINTS TO BEGINNING--Rev. Alfred Poulter, Belleville, a minister at the time and formation of the United Church of Canada 50 years ago, points to the plaque at the entrance to Hazzards United Church which shows the original Methodist congregation erected the structure in 1857, or 10 years before Canada's Confederation. Looking on is Mr. Wayne Kleinstaub, student minister at Front St. United Church in Belleville, who begins six years of arts and seminary training at Queen's this fall in preparation for his ordination to the United Church ministry. His daughter, Lynette, also reaches toward the plaque, but her interest was drawn more by a dragonfly perched on the raised lettering than what the plaque says. Mr. Poulter, who formerly held the Madoc-Queensboro charge before going to Belleville, preached the Sunday morning service at Hazzards. The church was filled to overflowing with worshippers from Moira Lake, Queensboro, Eldorado, Hazzards and Madoc. More than a dozen worshippers cycled to the service from as far away as Madoc. Conservation area opens doors

But will 75 bring more vandalism and pollution?

Another season has begun at the Crowebridge Conservation area on the banks of the Crowe River between Marmora and Havelock. The gates are now open to the public and the weather is just right for outdoor fun.

However, as park officials pause before the rush they wonder will 1975 bring fun and relaxation or vandalism and pollution?

Perhaps the public is not aware of last year's issues. The river banks were scattered with garbage, the gatehouse was left in ruins, picnic tables were used for firewood and a toilet was found floating downstream.

Why? What motivates this minority of people to vandalize what is put there for their own benefit?

The authority is not a big business out to take advantage of people. On the contrary, it works to make life better for our people. It is "people oriented".

One of its principles is to provide recreation areas for the population. And it wants to conserve areas such as Crowebridge for you and your children and grandchildren.

That's what the conservation authority is all about. It is concerned about the restoration and preservation of natural resources because they are so necessary to the rich quality of Canadian life and our future existence. They are plentiful now and we wish to keep them so.

Do the offenders realize that to have access to such a recreational area is a great privilege? It's not something we should take for granted. We, the people of the Crowe Watershed are so fortunate to have this area, so abundantly rich in natural resources and beauty, as our home. No? Ask a child who cannot swim in fresh water because of contamination. Ask someone who has never seen a wildflower in bloom or a Mallard duck. What about children who have never played on anything but concrete?

The Crowe Valley Conservation Authority's expenditures are covered by municipal levies and grants from the ministry of natural resources. When the property is damaged, it means tax money "down the drain" and more spent for repairs and replacements. It's so senseless.

It is our sincere hope that these ruinous people will have respect for what nature and Canadian life has granted us. Perhaps these comments will give some reasoning and incentive for more proper usage. Such mistreatment is detrimental to everyone, including themselves.

Everyone can help. Please do not disturb the wildlife. Use the garbage cans. Be careful with fire and abide by the park rules. It's for "our" benefit.

For those who have and will use Crowebridge wisely, the authority thanks you for your support and cooperation. We are grateful you are the majority.

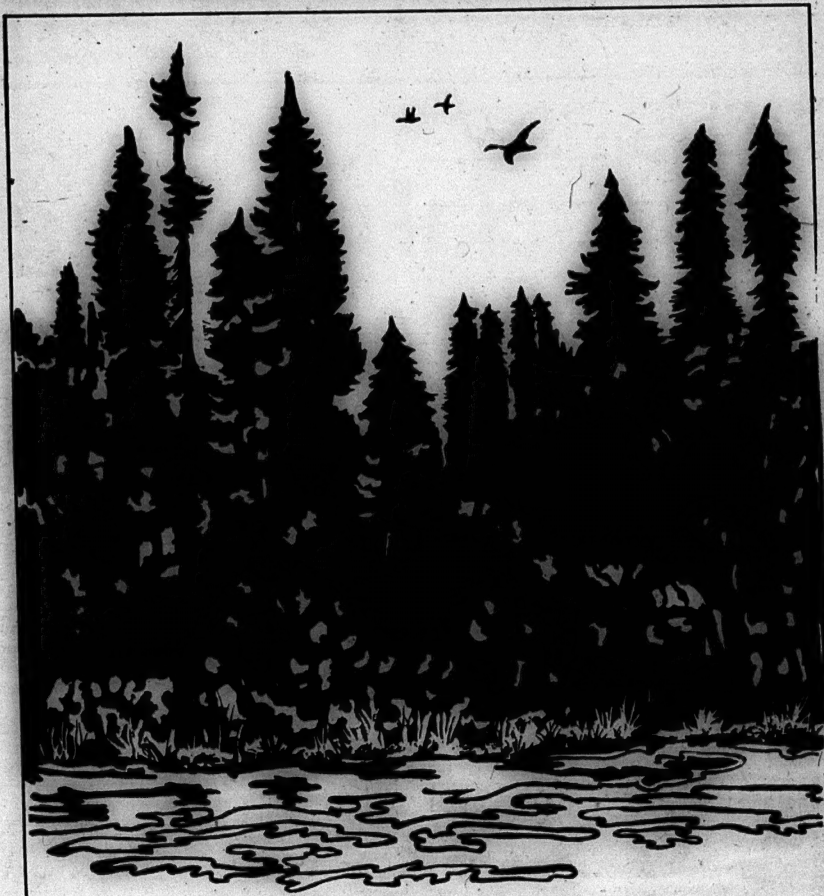

Construction companies must register

Labor Minister John P. MacBeth has announced that a regulation has been made under The Construction Safety Act, 1973 requiring the registration of construction companies together with details of the type of work in which they are engaged.

As soon as legal steps have been completed, copies of the regulation and a registration form will be sent to all construction employers in Ontario, with a time limit of 60 days to complete and return the registration.

The information will enable the ministry of labor's construction safety branch to concentrate its inspections on employers with a high accident rate, with less frequent inspections for those employers who are accepting their responsibility and are running safe operations.

During the preparation of the new construction safety act in 1973, it was felt there was a definite need for an accurate listing of construction employers and the principle persons behind these companies, which was provided for by Section 31 (2) of the act.

MANAGED FOREST TAX REDUCTION PROGRAM

The Ontario Government has set up a program of tax reductions on forest land. The purpose is to encourage proper management of such land, and to ensure its fullest productivity.

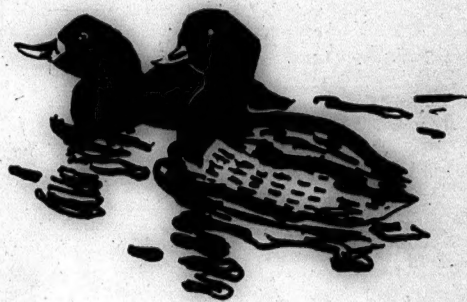

Qualifying forest land owners will receive grants equal to 50% of the 1973-74-75 municipal and school taxes levied on their forest property.

This program will be of interest to anyone owning forest land that is not assessed as part of a farm. It is for the relief of landowners who manage their forests for the production of wood and wood products, and for the provision of wildlife habitat, water conservation, and prevention of erosion.

County road workers still on strike

'Dug in' for long seige?

By Tom Somes

A month after it began, the striking workers in Hastings County's first road crew "contract war" appear to be "dug in" for a long seige.

Negotiations haven't resumed since May 6 and the two sides seem to be waiting for the other side to make the first move.

In the meantime, the 25-man county road crew represented by Local 793, International Union of Operating Engineers picket county maintenance property, depending on the union's defense fund to meet needs.

According to Phil Gauthier, business representative of the union, there has been no progress since the talks broke off.

According to Carl Bateman, clerk-treasurer and county administrator, there is no indication that talks will begin, although Warden William McCrea remains willing to resume negotiations "any time."

Mr. Bateman was unsure as to who should "pick up the telephone," but said he believes the union should make the first move.

Mr. Gauthier heads the union negotiation team, Mr. Bateman the county negotiation team.

With Mr. Gauthier on the union negotiating team are John Boyle, a steward and chairman of the negotiating committee, and Harvey Herron, labor relations manager for the province from the union local's head office in Toronto.

Mr. Bateman is joined by Warden McCrea; Kenneth Smith, chairman of personnel, and Don Black, a labor management consultant from Toronto.

Mr. Gauthier says the union was in a legal position to call a strike on May 5, but waited until after the failure of mediation on May 6 to exercise its right to strike.

He said there has been no discussion of the "issues" since May 6 and the union will remain on strike until it gets an offer from the county.

"Right now, there is nothing on the table. All offers have been withdrawn and the county has made no new offers to us," he said.

"We are on strike and will stay on strike until we get an acceptable offer," he added.

Mr. Gauthier said an indication that the strike may be a long one is the use by the county of non-union personnel to do work normally done by county road crews.

He said the work is being done by owner-operators of trucks and a non-union contractor. The non-union personnel are performing road maintenance work and Mr. Gauthier added he is "upset" that some union shop suppliers are assisting with the work.

"Wages alone are not the issue in this strike," said Mr. Bateman in explaining the county's posture. "The union is seeking winter work guarantees which would allow them premium time payment much sooner than we are prepared to pay premium time."

Key issues in the month-long strike are the union's demand for a $1.75 hourly wage and benefit package which would bring Hastings County road crews in line with the wages of other municipal employees in Belleville, Trenton and Peterborough County, and the after 40 hours "premium pay" demand.

New community newspaper hits streets in Belleville

A new community newspaper was born in Hastings County today.

Called, "Belleville Citizen", the newspaper will be published every Wednesday by Quinte Publications Ltd., of Tweed.

Directors of the firm are Clyde Bell and Bob Hannah, publishers of the Tweed News, and Eldon Kemp, general manager of Quinte Webb Press Ltd.

Mr. Kemp, former owner, editor and publisher of the Stirling News Argus, is the Citizen's editor and publisher.

Two reporters, an advertising man, a circulation manager and an office girl complete the new paper's staffing.

"We feel Belleville has the potential to support an additional voice, and are looking forward to being of service to the community," Mr. Kemp told this publication.

"We have the facilities to produce a good weekly newspaper and at this time, when weeklies are on the upsurge right across the province, we think Belleville deserves to have one."

This newspaper welcomes the new "community" publication to the county, and wishes it well in its endeavors to serve the people of Belleville.

Trends shown by surveys taken throughout the province show a decline in the popularity of daily newspapers outside the major centres, with the weekly papers showing tremendous growth, as more and more people join the trend of taking two or three weekly papers, and perhaps a weekend edition of a daily, instead of a daily every day of the week.

The Cataraqui Region Conservation Authority will hold a general membership meeting, Thursday, June 9, in Frontenac County council chambers at the court house at 8 p.m. The meeting is open to the public.

Skiing in June?

You may have roasted in May, but could be skiing in June!

A weather "freak" was encountered twice early Tuesday morning by P.C. Don Creelman, of the provincial police detachment at Madoc, as he patrolled south of the village on Highway 62.

The "freak" was flurries of snow, which melted on contact with the warm earth.

The snow, caused by cold high-altitude air thrust downward by rapidly rising warm air off Moira and other large lakes, is a natural result of such breezy collisions when the warm air is heavily laden with moisture.

The first snow was encountered near the underpass 1½ miles south of the village and the second a little further south on the highway.

On Saturday, June 2, 1928, Edward Plane showed The Review a large hen's egg, which measured eight inches by 6½ inches. This was laid by a white leghorn hen.

Percy McCoy, provincial constable at Madoc, has resigned from the force, the same to take effect Friday, June 8, 1928. Mr. McCoy has been with the force for six years and in that time has been stationed at Madoc, Tweed and Bancroft. His service has been one of merit and Inspector W.H. Loughheed, of this district, regretted parting with his services. The reason for his resignation, it is understood, is on account of the health of his wife which has not been good of late. Mr. McCoy now in civilian life will take a well earned rest before taking up any vocation. No appointment has been made to the vacated position. McCoy was prominent in the investigation of Charles St. Charles, who was shot on the farm of Abraham Robinson.

With a heavy agenda up for discussion, Hastings County Council opened its annual spring four-day session in Shire Hall, Tuesday afternoon, May 29th, 1951. Warden Harry Coulter, in a brief address of welcome to the county fathers, asked for co-operation and full discussion of important issues.

Appointment of William Archibald Mackintosh, C.M.G., M.A., Ph. D., LL. D., F.R.S.C., as principal and vice-chancellor of Queen's University, effective September 1, 1951, was announced by J.M. Macdonnell, chairman of the University Board of Trustees, Saturday night May 19, 1951.

The announcement is a birthday gift for Dr. Mackintosh for he was 56 on May 21, 1951. W. A. Mackintosh was born in Madoc in 1895. He was the son of a pioneer Ontario educator, Inspector William Mackintosh, and the youngest child in a family of seven. His preliminary education was obtained at Madoc High School and St. Andrew's College, Toronto.

The speaker at the Madoc Kiwanis weekly dinner last Friday was Dr. S. R. Beatty, who took as his subject, "citizenship". The address, which was exceptionally well received, left his listeners with much food for thought.

Dr. Beatty, who is a member of the local club, was thanked on behalf of those present by Jud McGowan and Kel Kincaid. On Wednesday night, over 30 members of the Madoc Club and their wives attended a banquet in Trento on the occasion of the presentation of their charter to the newly organized Trenton Club.

15 years ago

The following article was received from Mr. C.R. Ross, a former resident of Madoc, who writes that he had tried for years to find out where Madoc got its name.

The legend of Madoc, a Welsh prince of the 12th Century, endured as accepted history almost until modern times.

As the story has it, Prince Madoc discovered America in 1170, more than 300 years before Columbus, and founded a colony variously placed by historians on the eastern seaboard and on the Gulf Coast near the Mississippi.

The Madocians prospered and branches of these warlike people spread across the continent and down into Mexico.

In a climatic battle which supposedly took place near the site of the present city of Louisville, Ky., the Madocians were all but annihilated by their Indian enemies.

But lingering traces of them -- in the form of faint tracks along forest trails, crumbled fortifications, and even white-skinned Indians who spoke Welsh -- were reported by such prominent Americans as Daniel Boone and George Rogers Clark.

The dark marble found at Madoc Seymour Quarry once won the prize at the World's Fair in Scotland for lithographic marble. A large block is on exhibit in Corning, N.Y. and is called Black Jade from Madoc. This marble was taken out about 1890.

The Review extended congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. John Hoover, of Madoc, who will celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary on Wednesday, June 8, 1960.

For a viewpoint on the Prince Madoc legend and other legends of other than Amerind (North Indian and Eskimo) cultures which established by discovery or accident on this continent, see "In this corner left to write ..." appearing this week in Page 7.

FIRST IN TRIPLE JUMPJoe Brooks only CHSS athlete to qualify for the all-Ontario

By Garnet Pigden

At the Central Ontario Secondary School Association track and field meet held last week in Oshawa, Joe Brooks was the only CHSS athlete to qualify for the all-Ontario championships.

Joe finished first in the triple jump leaping to a distance of 42 feet seven inches. He also placed third in the long jump and third in the high jump.

To be eligible to compete in the all-Ontario tournament, athletes had to finish either first or second in one of their events. The provincial competition will be held June 6 to 7 at Centennial Stadium in Etobicoke.

Athletes from Centre Hastings who failed to meet the qualifying standards, but who had impressive performances were: Scot Simpson, who finished fifth in the 1500-metre run; Karen Keller, who placed sixth in the 100-metre hurdles; Kelly Welch, who finished sixth in the 200-metre sprints, and Blaine Wickens, who finished sixth in the 100-metre sprints.

Mr. Mewett, coach of the Centurion Track and Field Team said: "I'm very proud of this year's track and field athletes. They worked hard and many of them did well in their divisions."

"I think that next year I can look forward to coaching a stronger team. Track and field isn't one of the most successful sports at Centre Hastings, but this year great promise was shown by many of the younger competitors."

Perhaps next year CHSS will be able to challenge the powerful Belleville high school teams for the Bay of Quinte crown.

The CHSS athletes who competed in the Central Ontario meet last week performed well and gained much experience as they faced highly skilled and talented opponents.

There is no doubt in my mind that the '76 team will achieve greater fame for Centre Hastings.

Two firsts at Centre Hastings this year were girls' soccer team and a boys' hockey team. Nancy Carol was selected as the most valuable member of the soccer team and Jim Gaylord received the award for the boys' hockey team.

In interscholastic curling, Clarence O'Connor won the medal for the boys' team award. In Senior boys' soccer, Steve Bell received recognition for his outstanding performance in goal by getting the player of the year award and Brent Neal won the player award for his efforts in Junior boys' soccer.

In Badminton action, Anne Hegadoran took the honors for being the best birdie chaser on the girls' team and Mike Lunau won the boys' award.

The male student showing the most enthusiasm for intramural sports at CHSS during 1975 was Jim Airhart and Anne O'Connor won the award for the female student exhibiting excellence and zeal for intramural sports.

And finally the prestigious positions of "Athletes of the Year" were announced at the assembly. Earl Macknight received the trophy for male athlete of the year. He had played on many interscholastic and intramural teams during his four years at CHSS and in the 74-75 school year he had played on the football team and in numerous intramurals, but his great accomplishments grappling for the Centurion Wrestling Team earned him the honor of athlete of the year.

A doe was the victim of a collision on Highway 62 north of Millbridge, but before police arrived on the scene, someone stole the evidence early Tuesday morning.

The female athlete of the year brought fame and recognition to CHSS through her efforts on the Senior girls' basketball team and the Senior girls' volleyball team. She is Kathy Lee.

Her devotion, sportsmanship leadership and athletic ability were an asset to the teams on which she played.

The athletic awards assembly ended with a feeling of expectations among the students and staff for a successful year in '76.

GRADUATES-Mrs. Linda Lorraine Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidmer Reid has graduated from Queen's University with a Bachelor of Arts degree in psychology. She was also the winner of the Kathleen L. Healey Prize, awarded annually to the extramural student with the highest average. A graduate of Madoc High School, she is now employed by the Hastings Board of Education. Her mother and Mrs. Cecil Taylor attended the graduation ceremonies.

Alberta students visit in area guests of CHSS students

A group of 22 students from Edmonton, Alta., spent last weekend in the area as guests of Centre Hastings Secondary School students.

The young people raised $1,300 for their plane fare East. They arrived in Quebec last Thursday and were billeted with French-Canadian families until Saturday, at which time they came by bus to CHSS where they became the guests of students from Marmora, Madoc and Tweed.

The western students and their hosts travelled to Toronto on Sunday where they visited Ontario Place. On their return they gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bedore, in Deloro, where they were entertained by Donna Bedore, who has been in charge of arrangements.

On Monday, the group visited CHSS for lunch and an afternoon of touring the school and sitting in on classes.

In the evening they were guests of the school at the Tweedsmuir Hotel in Tweed. They left on Tuesday for Quebec and the trip home.

FROM ONE LINE TO ANOTHER

As we see it...

OFY is no "rip-off"
but could use revising

In the May 21 edition of the Madoc Review, school writer Garnet Pigden wondered whether Opportunities For Youth projects are creative programming, or a public purse rip-off.

We won't go so far as to declare OFY is a "rip-off," but it is certainly a less than necessary expenditure of tax dollars.

Some, indeed most, OFY projects are worthy enterprises, but they are costly and of such short duration that they have little value in relation to their public purse demand.

Such programs as assistance to the aged, with respect to, maintenance of their property and provision of "meals on wheels" are laudable and the young people involved are to be commended for their involvement in such activity, but the aged did and do without the "service" for more than 10 months of the year, so where and what is its true value for from only six to eight weeks of the year?

And a $100-plus weekly pay rate granted to OFY participants is a little steep in view of the almost zilch value OFY represents over the year.

In actual fact, OFY grants are a disguised form of charity and a deplorable form of charity because it is not available to all, only the chosen few who qualify.

No, OFY is not a "rip-off," but the community and nation might be better off if the entire federal budget for OFY purposes was put into a special fund along the lines of the on-job training assistance to employers scheme of Manpower and the would-be OFY project participants become employees of established business.

It's a universal problem but it is deplorable

The problem is universal, but it is deplorable.

The universal problem we speak of here is vandalism, the wanton destruction of public and private property by children and childish adults.

Madoc has not escaped.

The phenomenon is not a new one, but it is one that is becoming more acute and threatens to get worse in the changing social environment of this age.

Vandalism takes many forms, from the defacing of rocks along public highways to the wilful damage of vehicles and real property of others.

No one has been able to pinpoint the cause for vandalism, it has many causes, from boredom to jealous hostility, but one way to curb it is to make examples of apprehended culprits by penalties and demanded restitution.

The leniency of justice may be commendable to the liberal-minded, but it is not the answer to maintenance of social order, which hasn't changed much since ancient law-givers demanded "a tooth for a tooth and an eye for an eye" to establish justice for all.

ART CLASS OUTDOORS--The churches of Madoc became artists' models last Thursday as the Grade 7 art class from Madoc Public School took to the streets in groups of three and four to sketch the structures. Here, 13-year-old Darrell Johnson, left, 13-year-old Darren Morrison and 12-year-old Todd Kirkwood are perched on a rock as they sketch. The gentle perfume of lilacs made their location even more pleasant as with deft strokes of their pencils they captured the modern design of the Wesleyan and Free Methodist Church. At St. John the Baptist Anglican Church, the group of girls there were more interested in the tulips than they were in the church. (Photo by Tom Somes)

As you see it.....

As I listened to the Milt Johnson program last week and heard a man trying to convince people to boycott California grapes. I could sense communist propaganda.

Now if he was really interested in the welfare of the Mexican workers, he would not be using the boycott approach as this is not helping the workers as if they are forced to join a union, they will be dictated to by the union.

If people could see through these union organizers, they would see their main objective is to cause the ruination of a country. I have noted that most listeners were aware of the purpose of the propaganda, but a few others didn't understand what it was all about and these pro-communist know there will always be those who go along with them.

Another topic of their propaganda is their "hate America campaign" and if they can get the mostly ignorant people to go along with this, they have gained another victory.

One woman who called didn't seem to understand why there was such a big celebration in Toronto after the fall of Vietnam. Well it was the communists celebrating as they did all over the world where they are allowed to assemble and people had better wake up and discern what is going on.

America has long been the protector of the free world, but they have had little or no co-operation and the so-called United Nations hasn't meant much so communism is gradually creeping in.

Mrs. Earl Smith,
RR 2, Marmora.

ED'S NOTE: Union organizers are seldom communists, although they are persons of social action conviction. The boycotting of California grapes is not a desirable means of gaining rights for migrant workers, but it is a campaign which was begun because of bad-faith bargaining by growers. As for the victory celebration, the fall of the Thieu government in Saigon brought to an end the 30 years of civil war Vietnam. The celebrants may indeed have been communists or maybe they were just happy that a senseless slaughter has ceased. We don't think now that the "good guys" won, but history will decide.

Gets name from a prince!

By Tom Somes

You sometimes find information on the damndest things from the damndest sources.

So it was this week as this scribe edited for publication the "Looking Back" column by Karen Jones which appears weekly in The Madoc Review.

One of this scribe's continuing joys is the researching of history and the "solving" of historical mysteries. One such mystery is and continues to be who really discovered North America, because it sure wasn't Christopher Columbus in 1492—he was a late-comer.

Karen writes this week of how Madoc got its name and The Review 15 years ago "solved" a mystery which is still baffling historians who are not readers of its pages.

The mystery was the discovery in Virginia of a tribe of Indians who spoke Welsh when Virginia was first settled by the English in the early 1600s.

For years, anthropologists and historians have argued that the records referring to the so-called Welsh language tribe were in error, but The Madoc Review of this week in 1960 told how it all came about.

Madoc gets its name from a legendary Welsh prince, who is alleged to have discovered North America in 1170, or nearly 300 years before Chris set sail in his quest for a western route to India as proof of his theory that the world was round and not flat.

But anyhow, back to Prince Madoc.

Warlike Prince Madoc established a colony somewhere in what is now the southern United States. The location of the colony is unknown, as is the authenticity of Prince Madoc, but it has been variously placed by researchers along the eastern seaboard from New Jersey to Florida and along the Gulf Coast from Florida to what is now Mississippi.

The fact early English settlers said Welsh-speaking Indians were in Virginia would, however, make the eastern seaboard, Virginia in particular, the more likely spot.

They weren't the only one to record strange Indians, Daniel Boone also made note of white-skinned and Welsh-speaking Indians in Kentucky, so despite what modern academics argue, there is basis for the Welsh colony claims in the southland.

Unlike the Vikings before them, who were wiped out by the Eskimos in Greenland and never seemed to really get going in what is now Labrador, Newfoundland, Gaspe or the New England States, the Welsh prospered in North America for nearly 200 years.

The Welsh took Amerind spouses and communities were established throughout what is now the south and southwest of the United States and into Mexico.

But, as luck would have, the luck of Prince Madoc's descendants ran out.

They came into conflict with their Amerind neighbors and in a series of "wars" were all but eliminated until only scattered remnants of the original Welsh culture survived.

The climactic battle of the Welsh and the Amerinds is supposed to have been fought near what is now the city of Louisville, Ky.

So Madoc gets its name from Prince Madoc and The Review has filled a gap in this scribe's accumulation of lore to explain some of the mysteries of history.

The field is a fascinating one.

Help plant trees at Peace Park

Madoc and area residents are asked to bring a shovel, pail and lunch to the Lester B. Pearson Peace Park, off Highway 7 east of Madoc, to help plant trees Saturday.

A "fun day" is promised for all, particularly for senior citizens and youngsters celebrating the second annual Arbor Day at the park. Trees and refreshments are provided.

The sponsors of the park will also welcome donations of bedding plants for placement in the memorial gardens.

Seek area help for family of 10

A family of 10 was away from the house when the structure was levelled by fire of undetermined origin at Sulphide, six miles east of Tweed, Sunday evening.

Firemen were called from Tweed at 5:30 p.m., but were unable to save the three-year-old structure. The department pumper, the emergency truck and eight men responded to the call.

Staying with Mr. and Mrs. George Beatty in Sulphide are Mr. and Mrs. William Beatty and their 10 children, ranging in age from one to 17 years of age.

An older home on their farm property is being made ready for their occupancy.

Dan Beatty, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Beatty, was taken by ambulance to Belleville after he collapsed at the scene of the fire. The youth suffers from heart disease, but was soon released after treatment.

The Salvation Army in Tweed is spearheading a drive for household furnishings, bedding and utensils to replace the family's loss. No clothing is needed.

Senior Citizens meet at Trinity United Church

Madoc and district Senior Citizens held their regular meeting in the Trinity Church Parlour on May 14 with Mrs. Frank O'Rourke, first vice-president in the chair.

JUNE WEDDING--Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Keller, of Madoc, are pleased to announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Barbara Joan, to Bruce Carl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gordon, of Queensboro. The wedding will take place in Trinity United Church Madoc, on June 28 at 7 p.m.

The meeting opened by the reading of a poem "A friend who just stands by," followed by a welcome to all and repeating of the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Mrs. O'Rourke read another poem, "Mom's Home Made Bread."

Minutes of last meeting were read and business dealt with and a thank you note from Mrs. Robbins for being remembered on her 93rd birthday. Those having birthdays in May were asked to stand and a suitable poem was read.

The afternoon was spent with games. The hostesses for the May 28 meeting were Mrs. Isobel McBurnie, Mrs. Gladys Naylor, Mrs. Florence Love, Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Rourke, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Palmer, Lillian Powers.

Bishop of Ottawa to be speaker

Rt. Rev. William Robinson, bishop of Ottawa and former rector of St. John the Baptist Anglican Church, will preach the 11 a.m. morning service when St. John's celebrates the 110th anniversary of the laying of its foundation stone on June 22.

The parish was established in Madoc in 1865 and a commemorative plate honoring the anniversary is available to interested persons.

Rev. J. H. Thompson is seeking old photographs and artifacts for display during the anniversary celebration. Following the morning service, a pot luck lunch will be served on the spacious lawns of the church, provided the day is bright and sunny.

Seek student funds to aid support of child

Last February, some concerned students and staff members at CHSS decided to sponsor a child from the Foster Parents Plan of Canada.

They had a choice of 11 countries from which to choose a child and they chose war-torn Vietnam. The group which organized the worthwhile endeavor called themselves the "Action Group," hoping to inspire some enthusiasm for their project within the student body.

The child that is being supported is Dung Thanh Ly, born on Nov. 15, 1969, weighed 35 pounds, was three-foot six and when last heard from he was living in Saigon.

Dung's father died in December, 1969, in an industrial accident in Vietnam. After her husband's death, Dung's mother supported her family by selling goods and vegetables, but lost her business.

In January, 1973, she began working as a laborer for the International Commission of Control and Supervision and she earned a salary of $13.83 every two weeks.

When the communist push began, Dung's family fled and the "Action" organization has lost contact with the child.

At this time, the Foster Parent's Plan are only in contact with those children and families living in the immediate vicinity of Saigon. The Action Group is anxiously awaiting reports from Saigon regarding the safety and location of Dung and his family.

The Action Group established a bank account a few weeks ago for Dung Ly's needs and they have made support payments up to September. The Action Group is organizing one more collection from the student body on June 6. It is hoped that all students and staff members will give as generously as they are able toward this worthwhile cause.

ORDERLY MANNERArea reps on hand to present petition

Among more than 2500 persons present on Parliament Hill on May 29th in support of legal rights for the unborn were 36 people from Hastings Riding who made the journey by bus.

The crowd from over 200 ridings in Canada came to encourage their Members of Parliament to support the pro-life cause and to present the petition with more than 1 million signatures asking Parliament "to enact legislation providing for the child conceived, but not yet born, the same protection provided for any other person."

Mrs. Lillian O'Connor and Mr. Tom Brady were spokespersons for the group from Hastings Riding when they met with Mike Forrester (PC MP; Dartmouth, Halifax East) in the absence of their Member of Parliament, Jack Ellis. Mr.

Forrester is a member of the recently formed Parliamentary Group in Defence of the Unborn of which more than 50 MPs are now members.

Several of the group met and talked with Dean Whiteway (PC MP; Selkirk, Manitoba), who commented on the orderly manner of the pro-life demonstration carried out at noon on Parliament Hill. He said "that MPs could not overlook the pleas of 1 million people."

On the afternoon of the pro-life rally, Ursula Appolloni (Lib; York South) formally tabled the 1 million signature petition to an applauding House of Commons. Because of the large crowd, the people from Hastings Riding were unable to be present in the Public Gallery at this time. They did visit the gallery later in the day.

Response gratifying

Response at the Tri-Town Blood Donor Clinic last Tuesday at Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc was very gratifying, Mrs. Bernice Smith, chairman of the Marmora Red Cross Blood Donor committee reports.

There were 136 units collected and 19 persons rejected for medical reasons. Mrs.

Smith was particularly pleased that a large number of the donors were students and teachers at the school.

Response to the previous three clinics had been very disappointing so the committee was very pleased with the outcome of last Tuesday's clinic.

Prizes Liberal dance

A dance sponsored by the Hastings-Peterborough Liberal Association was held last Friday night at the Relm Tavern, Marmora.

Dave Hobson, Liberal candidate for the riding was present and was introduced by the local association President, Joe Maloney. Mr. Jim Watson, riding president, extended an invitation to all to attend the Hastings-Peterborough Liberal Association dance in Madoc, on Friday, June 13th.

Spot prizes, donated by Cook's Barber Shop, Shannon's Drugs, T.A. Cassidy, Drummond Building Supplies, Ted Bonter and Joe Maloney were won by Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cuddy, Leona Brady, George Diaz, Ken Denyes, Ezra Carmen and Paul Brady.

Music was supplied by Murphy's Music Makers.

Variety of thefts keep O.P.P. busy

Thieves were at work during the week ending May 30 in the area patrolled by the personnel from the Ontario Provincial Police detachment at Madoc.

Police investigated five reported thefts and five breaking, entering and thefts during the week. There was also one report of wilful damage and three persons, also since found, reported as missing.

There were eight motor vehicle accidents, which caused injuries to two persons and damage estimated at $9,195. Four were charged with traffic violations as a result of their involvement in the mishaps.

Three persons were charged with impaired driving and 11 were charged with Liquor Control Act breaches.

Police received 53 other calls for investigation of trespassers, compassionate to locate requests, vehicles for observation demands and reports of erratic driving.

Sergeant A.M. Wilkinson, detachment commander, reminds drivers that a shower can make posted speed limits meaningless. "Traction is reduced and visibility cut. Adjust your speed to existing conditions," he says.

Jehovah Witnesses gather for session in Kingston

All Jehovah's Witnesses in Marmora and Madoc, as well as the surrounding areas, have been invited to a two-day training program in Kingston Loyalist Collegiate and Vocational Institute.

The invitation is issued by James Reid, local spokesman for the group.

"Mankind", he said, "is rightfully concerned about its future. Global problems are apparent, leading some experts to warn that the human race may be killed off."

He stressed the importance of mankind now focussing its attention on the Bible, which points to the Kingdom of God to set matters straight among men on earth.

The two-day conference is scheduled to start June 14 at 9 a.m. Sessions are open to the public.

A special representative, Keith McCann, will present a lecture Sunday at 2 p.m. entitled: "Stand Still and See the Salvation of Jehovah."

Purinaettes whip

By Karen Jones

In the game played May 29 at the Madoc Ball Park, the Purinaettes found their batting power as they clobbered Mobil Chemical Plastics 27-7.

Aileen Barr, picked as most valuable player of the Purinaettes for the game, was the winning pitcher. Darlene Bedore took the loss.

Joan Bailey gave a fine offensive performance with three doubles.

For the Mobil Plastics team, Penny Grahon had a double and a triple while Lynn Wood had two triples.

In this week's action, Purinaettes travel to the Alemite field in Belleville to meet the Belleville Broadlooms in an 8:30 p.m. contest tonight.

Then on Thursday, Purinaettes host Ellis

Construction here at the Madoc Ball Park for an 8 p.m. start.

Move to protect rare species

A rare species of cactus found only in Sheffield Township in Ontario will be protected by the Moira River Conservation Authority with the assistance of a $70,000 provincial grant.

The grant, recently announced by Dr. W.J. Nuttall, Frontenac-Addington MPP, is half the cost of the $140,000 it will cost the conservation authority to acquire the 1,150 acres where the cactus is found.

The authority plans to establish a conservation area that will protect the plants and provide a multi-purpose recreation area.

Dr. Nuttall also announced a further $7,500 grant for the capital development program in the Little Cataraqui Creek conservation area.

OOPS, SORRY ABOUT THAT!--Mrs. Ross Gooderham, of Madoc, sits in her car awaiting the arrival of police after backing the car into the plate glass window of the Kincaid Brothers' IGA in Madoc last Wednesday morning. Mrs. Gooderham was parking the car at the curb on Durham St. when the brakes failed and the car backed across the sidewalk and struck the window. Damage to car and window was minimal. (Photo by Karen Jones)

Consider regulation tennis courts

Plans are being made for the possible construction of regulation tennis courts in Madoc.

Before actual construction can begin, it is necessary to organize a Madoc Tennis Club recognized by the Madoc Recreation Committee. It is not possible to have the new double courts for this season, therefore an interim solution is being investigated.

If interested in tennis and a tennis club, please telephone CHSS at 473-4251 and leave your name and phone number. You will be contacted later for an organizational meeting.

For further information, contact Bud Sutton, 473-2325, or Les Tarrant, 473-2304.

GRADUATION AT HAND....

Grad tea held on school lawn; Grade 13 dinner in Marmora

By Garnet Pigden

On Tuesday, May 27, CHSS hosted its annual Graduation Tea. Grade 13, Grade 12 and Special Education graduates attended this social gathering held on the front lawn of the school.

The grads were treated to soft drinks and cake and were able to converse with teachers and members of the administration in a very congenial atmosphere.

All grads enjoyed this informal occasion organized by the school.

Feelings of joy, sorrow and gratitude were expressed at the Grade 13 dinner held last Thursday night at the Relm Club in Marmora.

Some Grade 13s were glad that their years of enforced education were finally drawing to a close. The ropes of frustration, pressure and disappointment connected with school life no longer looped their necks.

Other students were sorry to see five of the most productive and happiest years of their life come to an end. Although emotions were mixed, there was a general feeling of gratitude towards the teachers and the school.

Students shared thoughts and expectations of the days following graduation. Some were planning to attend higher institutions of education and others expressed their desire to enter into the working world immediately after June exams.

Seven teachers from CHSS attended the dinner and three stayed for the dance. At the dinner, the students decided that, as their gift to CHSS they would give a pen and ink sketch of the school entrance to adorn the halls of knowledge.

The Grade 13s presented Mrs. Vitko with a bouquet of flowers and a CHSS charm in appreciation of her efforts to help the students grapple with that difficult dragon called "English".

Mr. Vitko is leaving Centre Hastings to teach at a Toronto school next term.

Mr. Hotchkiss, a history teacher who is leaving the school, received an engraved silver stein in recognition of his years spent teaching and creating school spirit at CHSS.

An enjoyable evening was had by all and the Grade 13s are now planning a graduation party for June 5.

Bannockburn banter

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Burton Sandford, who last week celebrated their 58th wedding anniversary.

Thomas Severin and son, Toronto, called on Mrs. Donly on Thursday.

A number from the Tabernacle attended the service in Tweed Tuesday night, with Rev. David Johnson and his group who were touring in the district.

Mesdames Mildred Simpson and Lillian Sandford were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Moran Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Simpson visited friends in Trenton on Sunday.

Congratulations to Rev. and Mrs. Dillabough, who also observed their wedding anniversary on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris visited relatives in Peterborough during the weekend.

More assistance aids Bancroft area

Clarke T. Rollins, Hastings-Peterborough MPP, announced this week that additional assistance from the ministry of agriculture and food makes it possible to provide a second veterinarian in the Madawaska-Bancroft area.

The assistance, provided under the veterinary assistance policy for designated areas, will mean the location of a veterinarian in the Bancroft area.

The ministry provides a $7,000 yearly income supplement grant to veterinarians practicing in a designated area. An additional $1,000 supplement is provided by the local veterinary services committee.

The ministry also pays for mileage and veterinary fees charged livestock owners are based on a prescribed equalized schedule.

Seat belt saves his life!

TREAT INJURED DRIVER-Police from the Madoc detachment and ambulance personnel give first aid treatment to 23-year-old Thomas Hin, of Belleville, prior to the injured man's removal from his wrecked car. Mr. Hin received multiple cuts, fractures and internal injuries Friday afternoon when his European compact veered off Highway 7 about 3 1/2 miles east of Marmora. Police said he owes his life to efficient and properly fastened seat belts. His eastbound auto went out of control after running onto the south shoulder, crossed highway, nosed into the north ditch, bounded into the air and the rear of the vehicle impacted on a low rock cut before coming to rest upright in the north ditch. Although the passenger compartment of the late-model car remained intact, except for a broken rear window, both the front and rear portions of the vehicle were so badly smashed police say it is a total wreck, with damage estimated at about $2,500. OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENTS

CHSS honors athletes

Last week those students who gave outstanding athletic contributions to CHSS during the '75 school year received awards for their merit.

The assembly program began with congratulations from the principal of CHSS, Mr. Henderson. An athletic slide presentation by Mr. Pesowsky was followed by a karate demonstration by Mr. Walther's karate club, musical numbers by the school band under the direction of Mr. Aylsworth, team presentations by Mr. Donato, a Spirit Club skit by Garnet Pigenand Joe LaJoie, humorous sports awards, trophy presentations to the athletes of the year and a future look at sports at CHSS.

The members of each interscholastic athletic team and each winning intramural team received a felt bar signifying their sport. Each interscholastic team boast a "Most Valuable Player" award.

In Centurion Varsity Football, Harley Willemson won the honors for being the most aggressive player on the offensive line and Joe Brooks took the award for the best player on defence.

In boys' basketball, Tom Lawrence took the honors for the Midgets, Joe Brooks for the Juniors and Dan Doyle for the Seniors.

In girls' basketball, Ann Doyle was the most valuable player on the Midget team, Patsy Vilneff on the Junior team and Cathy Lee on the Senior girls' team.

The volleyball teams have always been exceptionally strong at CHSS and the most valuable players in Midget, Junior and Senior girls' volleyball were Mary O'Rierson, Ruth Lingertat and Cathy Smith respectively.

Craig Killian won the award for the most valuable player in Junior boys' volleyball.

Pat Fennell took the honors for the Senior boys' team, which had a very successful season by winning the district and regional championships and placing fifth at all-Ontario.

Earl Macknight had a most impressive year wrestling for CHSS and his numerous victories earned him the title of the best wrestler of the year. Karen Keller achieved the greatest fame in girls' gymnastics and was rewarded, as all other most valuable players were, with a gold medal.

Couple are honored on silver anniversary

A party was held in the W.I. Hall at Queensboro on May 10 for Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon in honor of their 25th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon have two children, one daughter, Doreen, (Mrs. Larry Lalonde) and one son William.

Present at the party were all Mrs. Gordon's brothers and sisters and their grandsons, Bradley and Gregory. They were presented with many lovely gifts.

In the centre of the table was a beautiful two-tier wedding cake given to them by Doreen, Larry and William. Mrs. Gordon was presented with an orchid corsage by Mrs. Lois Gordon.

Marmora going to repair arena

Marmora Village and Deloro Village Councils voted Monday night in favour of going ahead with repairs to the Marmora arena.

In making the motion to proceed as previously decided, Councillor Gordon Bennett, chairman of the six man investigating committee, said he appreciated that a lot of people would like a new community centre and wished it was possible.

No new information had been presented at the public meeting last Thursday evening, he said, which had been called for the purpose of acquainting people with details of the project.

It had been agreed between the three councils of Marmora and Deloro Villages and Marmora and Lake Townships that after Thursday's meeting they defer the matter until the monthly council meetings in case there were any further thoughts.

Mr. Bennett said he could see no reason to change the decision and made the motion to proceed as previously decided, a motion that received unanimous approval.

A pleasant evening was spent playing cards and dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon thanked everyone for their lovely gifts after which a lovely lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon and Mr. and Mrs. Merv. Lees spent the weekend of May 3 in Niagara Falls and Welland, visiting friends and relatives.

Quietly celebrate first anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Jones celebrated their first wedding anniversary quietly on June 1.

Our new ombudsman

He can keep things 'secret'

By Don Fredericks

The Ontario Government sees our new ombudsman as sort of a non-legal protection in cases where laws don't apply or where the laws are sometimes unclear.

Arthur Maloney will begin functioning on September 1, if his nomination is accepted by the Legislature, and will serve "the individual caught in the meshes of the machinery."

He will deal particularly with actions of the provincial government, essentially administrative actions, where foulups can easily occur and where the individuals is in danger of being overpowered by a giant bureaucracy.

In legislation the ombudsman will be given wide powers to call witnesses and receive testimony under oath. He will also be able to seize departmental documents and books; something legislative committees have not been always able to do.

He will hear testimony in confidence and his deliberations will be in secret; people who testify will not be liable for prosecution on the basis of what they tell the ombudsman.

Anyone who wants may write to the ombudsman, and experience in other jurisdictions shows that only about one-third of the complaints need action, most of the others need direction to the proper authority.

One stipulation included in most ombudsman legislation is that prisoners and patients in mental hospitals can write to the ombudsman and their letters cannot be opened by authorities in the institution.

At the outset, the Ontario ombudsman can expect to be deluged but the legislation will probably contain a stipulation that he does not have to act on any complaint more than a year old. He will also be permitted to ignore complaints where he feels investigation is unnecessary; where the matter is trivial, frivolous or vexatious; or where an adequate appeal already exists under the law.

When he does choose to investigate, he will have what the government feels are wide powers, although the chore may be tiresome. Many ombudsmen find that the vast majority of complaints stemmed from the slowness with which civil servants answered mail and fill out forms.

What happens when the ombudsman does find something seriously amiss?

First he will go to the individual civil servant or department head and ask them to straighten up. If there is no satisfaction, he goes to the minister who has overall responsibility. Failing this he turns to the entire cabinet and if he still comes up empty, he can make a special report to the Legislature and its attendant press.

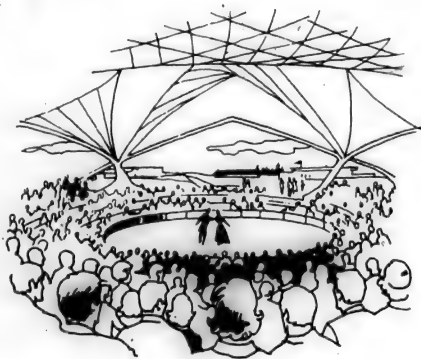

So while the ombudsman does not have the power to prosecute or to insist on a remedy, it is generally conceded the prestige and stature of the office is sufficient that things are fixed up before the beans are spilled.

Throughout, there usually is a thread suggesting the ombudsman will take pains to keep in touch with the complainant so that the complainant knows that somebody, finally, is helping out.

One feeling the Ontario Government had to overcome in deciding to have an ombudsman was a slight upset among its own backbenchers. Many MPPs make their political hay through the year by fixing up little messes constituents have found themselves in. They think if an ombudsman starts doing this, then people in their ridings will be hard put to know what on earth they do at Queen's Park.

Our new Ministry of Culture and Recreation has five major areas of responsibility.

Here's what they are- and what they mean to you.

Multi-Cultural Support and Citizenship — to preserve the cultural heritages of the people of Ontario and to assist newcomers to adjust to life in our province.

Art Support — to assist the visual arts, music, literature, drama, dance and handicrafts, and to help stimulate popular interest in these activities.

Sports and Fitness — to encourage increased physical fitness along with participation and enjoyment of athletic activities, and to assist Ontario athletes to develop their full potential.

Libraries and Community

Information — to increase access to information for residents of Ontario so that they can make the most effective use of facilities and programs available in their communities.

Heritage Conservation — to protect archeological sites and encourage the preservation and appreciation of properties of architectural and historic significance.

KINCAID BROTHERS I.G.A. - MADOC, ONTARIO

Liberal leader Bob Nixon confers with area Hastings-Peterborough candidate Dave Hobson

"Bill doesn't consult me," says Nixon

"Baseball confuses me. What's all this hokey about binding arbitration?"

"Second best"

A truck came out "second best" when it collided with a bulldozer on Highway 14 last Wednesday.

The truck, driven by Andrew McGee, Hastings, received an estimated $5,000 damage, but the bulldozer, operated by Daniel Calnan, RR 1, Grafton, escaped uncracked.

The mishap occurred in a construction zone one mile south of Harold in Rawdon Township. Neither man was hurt.

NIXON TALKATIVE

Grits' 'big gun' tours riding, fires a salvo

By TOM SOMES

The biggest gun in the provincial Liberal arsenal came to Hastings-Peterborough Saturday to tour the riding, meet the party supporters and special concern groups and while here fire a salvo at his main political rival.

Robert Nixon, provincial Liberal leader, fired a one-to-one blast in his assault on Premier William Davis, who he called a betrayer of all the Tories in Ontario.

He told more than 50 luncheon guests in Havelock that Bill Davis has abandoned the principles which have kept Progressive Conservative governments in power for 32 years and instead instituted fiscal policies which have replaced Ontario's capital surpluses with a $4.2 billion deficit.

Mr. Nixon promised reversal of the Davis government policies.

"We are going to put the provincial house in order again with a stiff new broom," he said.

He said he is confident an election will be called in 1975 because of visible signs that the Big Blue Machine is being oiled and readied for the campaign, although the law does not require an election until next year.

"Bill doesn't consult me," Mr. Nixon said, "but I predict he will call an election in August or right after Labor Day and the electors will be going to the polls in October."

Mr. Nixon said the results of recent public opinion polls may delay the calling of an election. "Right now I am sure Bill realizes he couldn't win one," he added. "There are changes taking place in the political thinking of people everywhere in the province and traditional Tory strength is weakening."

Mr. Nixon said he has great personal confidence in the ability of David Hobson, the Hastings-Peterborough Liberal candidate, and said he looked forward to Mr. Hobson's joining him in the Liberal government which will make the legislature work and not be just a rubber stamp of approval for the decisions of government bureaucracy.

Prior to speaking to the gathering, Mr. Nixon told the press the "thrust" of a Liberal government in Ontario would have three purposes:

- Restore fiscal responsibility.
- Put the power back into the hands of the elected representatives and stop bureaucratic second guessing.
- Create a government that reacts to individual needs rather than to "pressure group" demands.

In enlarging upon the "thrust" of his Liberal stance, Mr. Nixon said the $4.2 billion deficit is a disgrace and reflects the fiscal failure of the Bill Davis government.

He said government by bureaucracy has created the disgrace and promised a Liberal government would not enter such costly schemes of bureaucratic "waste" as the Spadina Expressway or the magnetic rail rapid transit project without "letting the light shine in" to reveal all factors.

Mr. Nixon was also critical of the type of bureaucratic "second guessing" which sees millions spent on the construction of hospitals which are not allowed to open their doors and added that all types of public-purse funded construction would be by public tender.

"We would end the type of political patronage which exists, particularly in public housing, and in the $43 million construction of such things as the Ontario Hydro headquarters," he said.

Mr. Nixon promised that a Liberal government would abolish the Ontario Housing Corporation as it now exists, and all similar provincial corporations which are not directly responsible to the legislature.

"Even Ontario Hydro, owned by the people of this province, is such a monolith now that no one can go near them and require answers to their waste," he said.

Mr. Nixon added that it is "irresponsible of the premier to say petroleum prices should not be raised by Alberta and Saskatchewan, while allowing the cost of Ontario hydro to be increased 30 per cent."

"We don't want or do we need provincial shiekdoms, but Bill Davis can't have it both ways," he said. "What I want to see is a national policy on energy resources which would co-ordinate the availability and costing of British Columbia's natural gas, Alberta and Saskatchewan's oil and Ontario, Quebec and Labrador's hydro potential for the benefit of all."

Mr. Nixon said he will also champion the development of the untapped natural resources of Northern Ontario, and said he would urge both federal and provincial legislation which would encourage the prospecting and development of new uranium and other mineral finds.

Eastern Ont.

Spring tree planting across Eastern Ontario will turn 6,100 acres of idle land into forests of 5,250,000 new trees, Phil Anslow, regional forester for Eastern Ontario, reports.

The program, administered by the ministry of natural resources, has rehabilitated about 28,000 acres of non-productive land in this part of the province.

"Persistent cool temperatures this year held up the start of tree planting, but the operation is now going smoothly and should be finished in late May or early June," Anslow reports.

During the five week push, 350 men and women, including workers who are lifting and packing seedlings at the Kemptville Nursery, are being employed.

The tree planters have only four of five weeks between frost retreat and the beginning of the seedlings' rapid growth stage to get the seedlings transplanted. After rapid spring growth starts, their chances of surviving the lifting-moving-transplanting process decrease.

The largest percentage of new trees planted will be white spruce, followed by red pine, jack pine, larch and hardwoods, such as maple, poplar and basswood.

More than a million trees will be planted in the Brockville and Cornwall areas. Around both Ottawa and Tweed 700,000 trees will go into the ground, and in each of the Lanark and Napanee Natural Resources districts 600,000 seedlings will be planted.

More than half the planting will be done on private land. Owners pay about a cent a tree, but must enter into an agreement with the province to maintain the new plantations at least 15 years.

One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Newspaper writers become thick-skinned over the years. They have good reason sometimes to be ashamed of their writing but this corner tries to present ideas from the farmers' point of view.

I am, unquestionably, on the side of the producer of agricultural products. Which is probably why I get accused of presenting a biased picture.

For instance, in a conversation last week with a housewife I was told in no uncertain terms that my figures on food costs were all wet. Not long ago, it was said here that Canadians spend less than 20 per cent of their disposable income on food.

"How can you say such a thing?" said this charming mother-of-four. "I spend much more than 30 per cent on food. Your figures must be way out of date. Food costs have risen so much in the last two years that it must take more than 30 per cent just to keep food on the table."

She added that her family does not get the expensive items either, especially when it comes to meat.

"We have a good roast of beef maybe three times a month. We cannot afford one every week. For meat, beef especially, we eat the cheaper cuts and hamburger."

She said she kept track of her grocery bill for a month just to disprove my statements.

But what she forgot was that the so-called grocery bill — she shops in a supermarket — has many items included that are not food such as toilet products, hardware, garbage bags, lunch bags, wax paper, soap, laundry products plus extra goodies which should not be included in the food bill such as soft drinks, candies and cigarettes. (She admitted she buys a carton of cigarettes for her husband every week. By no stretch of the imagination can this be chalked up to food costs).

The latest figures I have come from a speech made recently by Eugene Whelan, Canada's agriculture minister. His figures are from 1972 and food costs have risen since then but surely not more than two or three per cent.

Mr. Whelan gave the figures at a recent meeting in Thamesville and I did not see them quoted in any of the large metropolitan dailies although I may have missed it.

He said the average Canadian spends only 20 per cent of his disposable income on food.

Even more interesting were the figures given for other countries. The Swedes spend 27 per cent of their incomes on food. The Japanese spend 26 per cent. The average Britisher spends 30 per cent on food.

I have no figures more recent than 1970 for some other countries but in 1970, the average Russian was spending 52 per cent on food while in India, that percentage rose to 85 per cent.

If farmers gave up and gave their wheat to a flour mill, bread wouldn't be much cheaper. On a 24-ounce loaf of white bread, the farmer gets about eight cents for the flour that goes into that loaf of bread. The consumer would be saving only eight cents a loaf.

If farmers gave away tomatoes to processors, a consumer would still have to pay about 60 cents for a 28-ounce tin compared to 67 cents now. The cotton grower in the United States, for instance, gets less for the material in the shirt than the maker of the package in which the shirt is sold.

This is not defending anybody. I'm only trying to point out that if — and that's a big if — the consumer is getting ripped off on food prices, that rip-off is not at the farm gate. The gouging is being done somewhere else along the long line between producer and consumer.

Would farmers be fighting so fiercely for an income protection plan — a price stabilization plan — if their incomes didn't need some kind of protection? They are independent people, more independent than any other segment of the working force, and they don't want to be organized to the hilt. Unfortunately, they have no choice these days if they are going to stay on the land.

And on the land they must stay if this country is going to remain competitive. When we can't produce enough food for ourselves, we are at the mercy of a dozen other countries who can really stick the knife in and break it off.

When farmers prosper, everyone benefits.

Bumper crop

But area strawberry growers facing stiff price competition from U.S.A.

It looks like a bumper berry crop in Hastings, Peterborough and Northumberland Counties, but growers face stiff price competition from California and southwestern United States imports.

Strawberries from the United States are now available on market shelves at 69 cents a quart and Ontario growers anticipate they will hardly "break even" at a 65-cent per quart at-the-farm sale.

"I don't know how those fellows in the States can do it," says Campbellford grower W.B. Little, advertising this week for berry pickers.

"They have to pay shipping and import tariffs, yet they market strawberries here at lower cost than I can."

He said he must pay berry pickers $2.40 hourly now and can hardly compete with the U.S. growers.

"I will be charging 65 cents a quart for berries at the farm," he said. "If people come and pick their own, I can sell them for 40 cents a quart."

He said the berries are now in blossom, and there are green berries "the size of your thumb" already developing to maturity.

From the density of early blossoming and the continuing density of blossoming, he said everything indicates a heavy crop.

"But everything depends on the weather and getting the crop in as to whether we make or lose," he said.

Mr. Little said Ontario growers are not only confronted by an increase in the minimum hourly wage, they must pay more for berry boxes and crates.

WATERCRESS

Watercress is a small round-leaved plant that is prized for salads and as a garnish—because of its spicy flavor. Orientals cook it as spinach and serve garnished with sesame seeds.

Tainted meat being shipped into Ontario

Thousands of pounds of tainted meat from Quebec have been sold in Ontario over the past three years, according to CBC's French network.

A spokesman for the network said Leo Arcand, a star witness before the Quebec organized crime inquiry, told a reporter that he has shipped the meat to Ontario since 1972.

The spokesman said in an interview that the reporter asked: "Are you saying people in Ontario ate rotten meat?"

Arcand replied: "I don't know what happens to my meat once it's sold."

If you want to know then it's up to Ontario to investigate."

Arcand told the reporter that "I've sold everything to Ontario ... meat inspectors have always told us when pick-up trucks leave our warehouse it's no longer our business. I know the meat went to the Ontario market."

The spokesman said that up until January Arcand was licensed to sell meat in Quebec for "rendering" plants which are designed to turn the meat into pet foods.

In the Ontario Legislature, Agriculture Minister William Stewart said there is no reason to believe tainted meat from Quebec is being disposed of in Ontario.

Extending gun laws to rifles won't end 'bizarre tragedy'

By Don Fredericks

Extending gun registration laws to rifles, shotguns as well as hand guns won't put an end to incidents like the "bizarre tragedy" at a Brampton high school where three died and fourteen were injured by gunfire last week Attorney-General John Clement said.

He told the Legislature that registration of guns "just does not preclude the wrongful use of a weapon."

Meanwhile, in Simcoe, Premier William Davis discarded a prepared speech to comment on the shooting in his home town in which a teacher and two students died.

He vowed that his government would do everything to retain traditional values of life in Ontario.

Davis who was attending the opening of a new nursing home, has a daughter attending the school where the shootings occurred.

In the address put aside, Davis had said the government "has recognized for some time the necessity for stringent control of firearms."

The Premier said he has directed Clement to meet with federal Justice Minister Otto Lang and Solicitor-General Warren Allmand to review proposed amendments "to ensure they are as adequate as we can possibly make them."

Davis will personally deliver expressions of sympathy to families of persons killed or injured in the shooting incident.

Clement told the Legislature that the weapons used by 16-year-old Michael Slobodian, were lawfully purchased and owned.

"In view of the terrible tragedy ... I think we cannot lose sight of the concept that it is the accessibility of weapons and not the registration," he said.

Clement said that the ministry has explored several gun-curb suggestions over the past two years, including the possibility of requiring a medical certificate for purchase of any firearm.

Bill Smiley

MPs need increase

By BILL SMILEY

I KNOW my readers have been waiting with bated breath for Smiley, who seems to be against most things, to launch his expected fiery attack on federal MPs for giving themselves a magnificent pay increase.

Sorry, chaps, I'll just have to disappoint you this time, for a couple of reasons.

First of all, I could speak with the tongue of angels, or devils, and the boys in the Big House would ignore it. If they wouldn't pay any attention to John Diefenbaker, who speaks in such tongues, they certainly wouldn't to Bill Smiley.

Second of all, and the main reason I have not erupted, is that I think our federal elected members should have enough money so that they will be free from temptation, and so that the position does not become one only for wealthy people who can afford to be an MP, because they have other income.

I know, and it is true, that MPs have some other perks: free mailing, travel privileges, meal and accommodation payments while on government business, allowances for offices and secretaries.

In cash, their income, at $34,600, is worth more than $40,000 because a good chunk of it is tax-free. That's a pretty fair income, even with inflation. But it's not wild luxury. It's not exactly Arabian Nights. It's not the sort of loot on which you are going to have orgies or get rich.

I don't have to tell you — because they will tell you themselves, at inordinate length — that an MP has extraordinary expenses. You've heard it all: giving up his business or profession; keeping two homes; being expected to contribute to every cause in his riding, however trivial; being expected to entertain when Homer and Emily drop in on him at Ottawa; having to buy a raffle ticket on anything going, and so on. It's a lot of chickenfeed that builds up into a pile of dollars.

If somebody asks me to give a donation to the South Northumberland Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Pregnant Cats, I can tell him to get stuffed, drop dead, or blow it out his ears. The MP for that riding must smile gamely, and hawk up a five. And so it goes.

This is no apology for MPs. They are the ones who should be apologizing. Not for the increase. But for the incredible ineptness of the timing. Out of one side of their mouths, they are supporting a program of restraint for business and labor. Out of the other side they are muttering a shame-faced "Aye," or absenting themselves for the vote, when it comes to giving themselves an increase that is 92 per cent over what they were making in 1970.

I admired those MPs who bluntly said they needed the increase and would vote for it. I have nothing but contempt for those who snuck in on their braver brothers' and sisters' coat-tails.

Nor do I have much time for people like Diefenbaker, who made a grandstand play out of it by pointing the finger of scorn at others. At his age, and with no family, and no political future, he doesn't need it. He's got a fat pension, plus the old-age pension, waiting for him.

But his leader, Robert Stanfield the millionaire, doesn't need it either, and he voted for the increase, for the sake of others, who do need it.

It seems like a lot of money, but it forces some questions. Is an MP with all his extra expenses, worth more than a letter carrier — five times more, in cash?

Should an MP be worth about the same as two and a half high school teachers? Is he worth less, from an income point of view, than an Air Canada pilot, who flies a maximum of 75 hours a month, for just over $50,000?

Is the MP as valuable, in cash terms, as about three steelworkers?

If your answer to these questions is no, then you are either a letter carrier, a school teacher, a pilot, a steelworker, or a damfool.

There's no point in saying: "Pay them what they're worth." Some MPs would be in the bread-line and others would be millionaires.

It's great to get a suntan — but be careful getting it

by David Woods

We who inhabit the northern countries don't worship the sun to the same extent as primitive peoples, who turned it into a god. But the Swedes still face it in adoration from their apartment balconies with the first sign of spring, and Canadians, who can afford to, chase it in winter, by going south.

Unlike the people of warmer lands who tend to shun it, Canadians are understandably apt to make the most of it during an all-too-brief summer. Like fire itself, however, the sun is a good servant and a poor master.

Here's how you can get it working for you:

- Don't try to get that gorgeous tan all on the first day — build up to it. A pamphlet from the Ontario Ministry of Health, entitled The Sun: Friend and Foe, suggests starting with about 20 minutes of sunbathing the first day and adding five minutes or so a day for the first four days. (This pamphlet is available from the Health Resource Centre, Communications Branch, Ministry of Health, Hepburn Block, Queen's Park, Toronto, Ontario M7A 1S2.)
 - Fair-skinned people have less skin protection, so they should be extra careful. For them, special sun-screening lotions are available.
 - Avoid the midday sun in the early stages of tanning, and also reflecting surfaces like water or sand, which can make the sun's rays more fierce and burning.
 - Use a suntan cream or lotion, and, for long periods in the sun, protect the head and neck with suitable covering.
 - Guard your eyes. Light rays can damage the retina, and sunglasses, besides cutting out glare, will afford some protection.
 - Remember that while sun is a good source of vitamin D — the same vitamin that's found in egg yolk and many kinds of fish — too much sunshine can damage the skin, causing it to age prematurely.
 - In hot weather you lose some of the body's liquids through perspiration. Replace them by drinking fruit juice or other liquids.
 - If you do get sunburned, get out of the sun and into a cool, dark room. Apply a soothing cream to the sunburned area. If you should get heat stroke, call the doctor — and in the interim take steps to bring the body temperature down.
- The secret of bringing some sunshine into your life is to do it gradually — to keep your cool, and enjoy the sunny days ahead.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20-Feb. 18

The issue, this week, will be: Can you handle outside pressures... without disturbing the tranquility at your home base? There's a slight chance that a financial emergency will arise.

PISCES
Feb. 19-Mar. 20

Many members under your sign will undergo a radical change in their life style. Incidentally, this "change" will prove to be beneficial, in the long haul.

Stirling area grad choosen for trip

A Stirling area University of Guelph graduate will be among 90 Canadians visiting six nations in a United Church of Canada-sponsored youth exchange program, Aug. 3 to 24.

Bound for Hong Kong is Jane Bush, from the Belleville presbytery of the church. Jane is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bush, RR 3, Frankford.

She is the only young person from this presbytery making the trip and she was selected for the trip during the May 25 to 28 Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church held at Peterborough's Trent University.

Miss Bush joins six others from the Quinte Conference area. Others chosen come from Peterborough, Cobourg, Lindsay, Kingston, Oshawa and Renfrew.

She and the six others appeared on a panel during the convention to explain what involvement in the church's mission work means to them.

Clergymen attending the convention from the Belleville presbytery included Rev. John Peters, Marmora; Rev. John May, Stirling; Rev. Ted Snelgrove, Springbrook; Rev. Doug Heard, Madoc; Rev. Wendell Sedgewick, Queensboro; Rev. Gordon Whitehorse, Campbellford, and Rev. Vern Kimbal, Norwood.

Mr. Whitehorse, who served in Seymour and Campbellford for 27 years, was honored with the presentation of retirement gifts. He retires from the active ministry this month.

As well as the clergymen, there were lay delegates from most churches represented at the convention.

The convention elected Rev. James Burn, minister of Port Hope United Church, as president of the Bay of Quinte Conference and he was installed during an impressive ordination service at George Street United Church in Peterborough on May 27.

A minister in Port Hope for the past five years, he earlier served congregations at Sharbot Lake, Bancroft and Richmond Hill.

Elected as president-designate was Rev. Don Smeaton, of Knox United Church, Peterborough.

Today's Child happy fellow

When you're five, healthy and active, life is usually full of fun. That's how it is with Freddy, a cheerful youngster who loves to play.

Anglo-Saxon in background, Freddy is a sturdy fellow with brown hair, dark eyes and fair skin. He is in good health, wearing glasses for astigmatism.

Though not at school yet, Freddy is considered a slow child who will need special education. His speech is not clear but he is able to make himself understood and he knows what is said to him.

Freddy loves the outdoors, so it might be best if he can be adopted in a rural area. He needs affectionate parents who will give him lots of love and help him develop to the limit of his abilities. Older brothers and sisters will be an asset in his adopting family.

To inquire about adopting Freddy, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. In your letter please tell something about your present family and your way of life.

For general adoption information, consult your local Children's Aid Society.

Lump sum payment for university students?

The Ontario Government is "considering as one of the options" the payment of a lump sum grant to university students unable to find work this summer to help them pay their tuition next year, according to Premier William Davis.

This payment would be in addition to the Ontario Student Assistance Program payments that go to many students now.

Speaking on a Toronto panel show Davis revealed the possibility in reply to a question from Ross Wells, a spokesman for the Youth of University group at the University of Toronto.

Wells had criticized Davis for the government's approach to summer employment for students, which he said had left 18,000 university students without summer jobs.

The Premier replied by blasting the University of Toronto Students' Administrative Council for a January ad they placed in many Ontario newspapers which alleged "Bill Davis doesn't want your children to go to university."

Davis called this ad "one of the most dishonest ads I've ever seen." "It was contradictory to everything I've been involved in since I entered politics."

He denied there would be any tuition increase at Ontario universities next year from the current approximately $650 a year.

Question OAC expenses

Travelling and meal expenses claimed by members and staff of the Ontario Arts Council were questioned by members of the Legislature's standing public accounts committee.

A total of $46,000 in expense allowances paid out to 30 staff employees and 12 appointed council members in 1974, Louis Applebaum, council executive director, told the committee.

The current policy of the council is to allow staff and members to claim $10 each for a "business" meal.

Provincial auditor F.N. Scott said in his annual report that expense claims were not submitted on a regular basis. In several cases, claims were not approved but were paid.

Page Reid (Liberal-Lab.-Rainy River) said members of the council and their staff "do nothing but take trips and take people to lunch."

Applebaum said most particulars of claiming for expenses had been revised and were more closely scrutinized.

The arts council will operate on a budget of $9.5 million during the 1975-76 fiscal year — an increase of more than $2 million over the previous fiscal year.

Bud Germa (NDP-Sudbury) said he wondered why it took administrative personnel so long to put a rein on some of the excesses mentioned by the auditor.

"I'm amazed this council has operated nine years and these things are just now being brought under control," he said.

Ontario and NY co-operate in fight against sea lamprey

Last month marked the first of many "doomsdays" for sea lamprey in Lake Ontario streams both here and in New York State. Teams from Environment Canada's Control Centre have begun to destroy the fish mutilators with lethal doses of lampricide in an effort to clear them out of waters on both sides of the border.

Six years ago, anglers fishing on the shores of the Credit River in the Toronto area were pulling out coho salmon with chunks out of their sides; victims of sea lamprey that had entered from Lake Ontario.

In fact, of the several hundred coho examined in the Credit that fall of 1969 by Ontario biologists, only one escaped unscarred.

Sea lamprey had been in the Great Lakes for centuries, preying mainly on lake trout. But it took the introduction of a new delicacy, the choice coho salmon being experimentally stocked at the time by the department of lands and forests, to trigger the destruction of the lamprey menace in earnest.

Certainly something had to be done -- and soon -- or the introductory stocking could end in failure.

In 1971, the federal government's sea lamprey control centre moved into Lake Ontario and treated all 23 known sea lamprey producing streams with lampricide. The following year they treated streams in New York State and the program has continued since then.

This spring, one team is treating Ontario streams while another is simultaneously treating streams in New York State.

The Ontario-based unit is stationed at Uxbridge in quarters provided by the ministry of natural resources.

Dr. Jim Tibbles, director of the sea lamprey control centre, named Duffin, Lynde, Oshawa and Grafton Creeks, and the Salmon River, as the Ontario streams his crews will treat this year.

"The other team is based near Pulaski, N.Y., and will treat five streams on the south side of Lake Ontario toward the east end of the Lake," he said.

As the control program continues, the abundance of sea lamprey in Lake Ontario is expected to drop even further with less fish being mutilated as a result.

The control centre is also collecting lamprey from the Humber River for research purposes. Tagged lamprey will be released in Lake Ontario to determine their movements and spawning habits. The control centre's name and address is printed on each tag and a reward is offered to the person who returns the tag together with the date, place, and method of capture.

Upon completion of treatment of streams in Lake Ontario, attention will focus on eight streams in Lake Huron and 10 Lake Superior streams. Seven electrical barriers will again be operated in Lake Huron to determine the abundance of sea lamprey there.

Dr. Tibbles feels that one of the advantages of his program is the ability of the federal agency to operate on both sides of the border. Treatments are administered by the Great Lakes Fishery Commission with funds provided by the Canadian and United States governments.

Young brunettes attractive targets for pests!

If you're young and brunette, you'll find yourself and attractive target this summer for one of Canada's major insect pests -- the voracious mosquito.

Robust people with ruddy, dark or medium-dark complexions usually have a little more moisture and oil in their skins, and mosquitoes prefer this type, says Paul Sobon of the insect repellent department of Union Carbide Canada.

You're more likely to be a victim of these blood-hungry creatures if you are under 45, active and inclined to wear dark clothing. "Mosquitoes will bite almost everyone, with few exceptions," says Sobon, "but they appear to like brunettes better."

Extensive tests have shown that people with very light skins are not as attractive to mosquitoes -- just as light-colored clothing is less a lure to the miniature monsters.

"Light skin is often quite dry and mosquitoes don't like a dry biting surface," says Mr. Sobon. "That is why older people with drier skin often don't have as much trouble with insects."

Energetic people attract mosquitoes through their motion and scents they disperse as they move.

A placid person sitting outdoors won't lure insects nearly as much as a person engaged in strenuous work or exercise.

However, during rainy or humid weather, even the calm person outdoors is a sitting target for hungry insects.

Moisture and mosquitoes thrive together. The insects breed around standing water. Swamps, lakes, ponds -- even the family birdbath -- make ideal spawning grounds for one of nature's truly great pests.

You have two alternatives in combatting mosquito attacks. The first is to simply stay inside as much as possible during the summer months -- not a particularly practical solution. The other method is to wear an insect repellent and enjoy yourself outdoors unmolested by the insect world.

The second choice seems obvious, but many people are unwilling to try this route because of misconceptions about insect repellents.

"Some people confuse insect repellents with bug killers, and thus think repellents may be too harsh and harmful to skin and health," says Mr. Sobon.

"They would rather suffer the discomfort of bites or stay indoors, rather than try a repellent. This is because of their unfounded fears of possible harmful effects."

It's important to understand the difference between insect repellents and insect killers.

Repellents keep mosquitoes or other insects from biting because they do not like the smell or feel of the repellent, which is applied directly to a person's skin.

On the other hand, insect killers are never sprayed on the body. They are sprayed directly at insects or in a room where insects or mosquitoes are present.

Insect repellents are very much like cosmetics. Applied directly to the skin, they gently protect it from biting and stinging insects. It works in the same way as foundation make-up and moisturizing bases protect the skin from dirt and the aging effects of wind, sun and dry warm air heating in the home.

Repellents are not harsh chemicals and are quite safe when directions are followed.

They are available in aerosol sprays and liquids and lotion to repel mosquitoes and insects. Union Carbide also has a stick-form repellent that is excellent for anglers.

They hold the applicator and stroke the repellent on exposed areas without having to touch it. In this way, the repellent is not transferred to the bait. Fish, apparently, don't like repellent either.

Insect repellents are safe even for a baby's soft, sensitive skin, according to the Union Carbide spokesman. Repellent contents and written material on the packaging must be approved by the Food and Drug Directorate.

Most work and play clothes can be sprayed directly with repellent, but avoid its use on rayon and "Dynel". Other repellents can damage rayon and rayon acetate, celanese acetate and vinyl.

Consumer response to insect repellents has been steadily increasing with the upswing in leisure-time activities -- such as barbecuing, camping, boating, patio parties, fishing, tennis, golf and many other recreational pursuits.

This summer you can enjoy yourself and avoid the mosquito menace simply by utilizing a safe, convenient and effective insect repellent.

FOR RENT

The poison ivy itch is about to strike again, with summer days, people are heading for outdoor places. Many people will come back with a rash that may be distressingly itchy for a week or more, say personnel of the provincial ministry of natural resources.

The first sign of poisoning is usually a light itching, followed by a faint blush of the skin. Itchiness increases, and small watery blisters appear, sometimes bursting to become irritating, oozing sores which finally dry up, forming scabs. A mild dose or a heavy one, how it can itch!

So, how to recognize the treacherous plant. Poison ivy takes many forms and grows practically everywhere, especially in southern Ontario.

It may only be a few inches high, carpeting the ground, two or three feet high like an upright plant, or vine-like, twisting itself around trees, shrubs or plants.

The leaflets vary greatly in shape and size; the margins from perfectly smooth to finely or coarsely toothed, to deeply and irregularly lobed.

The old saying goes: "Leaflets Three, Let It Be." The leaves, borne alternately on the stem, consist of three leaflets. The stalk of the middle leaflet is longer than the stalks of the side leaflets. All three are joined together at the upper end of one touch the plant itself. The oil can be transmitted from contaminated clothing, especially boots, and tools, picnic baskets, car tires and even an animal's fur.

Your dog runs through the poison ivy patch, you pet the dog, and the oil is transmitted to your skin. If you are sensitized to it, you start itching, not the dog.

If you have been contaminated, act at once. Wash with thorough latherings of much longer stalk.

It's the oil in the plant that causes the toxic action on your skin. You don't have to soap and repeated rinsings with water. If a rash appears, apply a thick paste of soap and leave it on overnight, or use a calamine solution.

Relieve inflammation with cool compresses of ice water. Contaminated clothing and articles should be thoroughly washed with soap and water.

Clothes to be sent to the dry cleaners should be labelled as poison ivy contaminated so the dry cleaning personnel will be aware of the danger.

Treat poison ivy with respect. Keep your distance.

Dedicated

Thousands of women and men are dedicated to the principle of service to their fellow citizens. As members of the health team, they make an inestimable contribution to the health and welfare of all people.

The Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario, the professional organization representing registered nurses living and working in this community and province in 1975, is observing 50 years of growth and achievement. Out of past achievements they are forging an exciting future for registered nurses.

The Mayor of Campbellford and reeves of all the surrounding areas have been invited to sign official proclamations to be displayed at the 50 Annual Convention of the RNAO in Toronto on June 11-14th. The highlight of local celebrations will be a dinner for all registered nurses and guests at the Legion in Campbellford on Tuesday of Nurses' Week.

All citizens are asked to recognize the role and contribution of nursing during this special week. A number of exciting window displays have been set up to depict the many changes in uniforms, caps, and pins over the past 50 years. The pictures are all of nurses from this area.

The 50th Anniversary theme is "Nursing-out of the past-an exciting future".

Are Tories privately backing Havrot's re-election as a P.C.?

Ed Havrot, the Conservative member for Temiskaming who was fired from two jobs by Premier William Davis, was nominated, unopposed, to run for the party in the next provincial election.

He told a cheering crowd of close to 200 he was accepting the nomination "because I'm going to get out there and really sock it to them." Havrot was fired as chairman of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission and as parliamentary assistant to Transportation and Communication Minister John Rhodes for derogatory remarks he admitted making about Indians.

He said the remarks were made because he was frustrated over delays in the proposed Maple Mountain recreation complex. The delays have been caused by Indian land claims.

Havrot said he was fired as a result of a conspiracy led by a Toronto Globe and Mail reporter and columnist.

"What hideous ways to fan the fires of racism and to get at Havrot and to backstab his leader," he said.

Havrot said the story came out at the height of racial tension in Toronto "created as the result of the tragic murder of a 15-year-old."

Premier William Davis refused to say whether his party would support the candidacy.

NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said outside the Legislature that Davis' reluctance to comment indicates that the Tories are privately encouraging Havrot to seek re-election.

The party's "anxiety about the seat" is greater than its concern for the issue, Lewis said.

Liberal leader Robert Nixon said that if the Premier is going to discontinue support for Havrot "this is the time to do it." He said the Temiskaming member would still have a right to run as an independent.

Davis told Nixon to "worry about candidates for his party and I will worry about mine."

He told Lewis to "solve his own problems" and asked: "How can you have Dr. (Morton) Shulman as a member of your caucus?"

Nixon urged Davis to follow the example set by the late premier Leslie Frost who refused official party endorsement in 1955 to James Dampsey, former member for Renfrew South who was involved in a campaign contribution scandal.

Havrot has also survived an attempt to censure him in the Legislature.

The motion was put forward by Phil Givens (Liberal-York-Forest Hill).

"This has grown far beyond a mere matter of internal constituency business and it is beyond a mere matter of internal party interest..." said Givens. "I find that we are surrounded everywhere with a rising tide of racism -- there are manifestations of this everywhere we drive in the city and everywhere we drive in the province."

Ian Deans said the NDP party doesn't subscribe "one whit" to Havrot's comments about Indians and "we find them most unacceptable."

He said the NDP was not supporting the motion for censure because that would entail a debate and the party doesn't think that Havrot's view "should be given a public forum for further expression."

The speaker ruled the motion out of order and a recorded vote was held on his ruling, with 19 Liberals voting against it and 16 NDP and 55 Conservatives voting in favor.

TRENTON

Sault site winter games

TORONTO --- Robert Welch, minister of culture and recreation, has announced Sault Ste. Marie as the site of the 1976 Ontario Winter Games. Mr. Welch said the games would take place in February, a department from previous years when the event was held between Christmas and New Years.

The three-day event will involve more than 1,500 Ontario athletes, coaches and officials.

Mr. Welch said the February date was considered most suitable by the participating sports governing bodies as it co-incides with the end of the competitive season for most winter sports. Another factor is deciding on the later date is that there will be no Canada Winter Games in 1976. In past years medalists at the Ontario Games have gone on to competition in the Canada Games.

Wed., June 4, 1975 - Page 13-A

As host, Sault Ste. Marie is providing facilities and personnel and will use the resources of the Sault Ste. Marie Board of Education, the armed forces armory and the community college.

Three other cities submitted bids to host the games, Kitchener-Waterloo, Ottawa and Barrie, but Mr. Welch said Sault Ste. Marie was selected because as a natural winter site it would be most suitable.

"Our Government" - A story by By Mrs. Agnes Gillette

First of a series

Our teacher, Mrs. Jones, told us kids to write an essay on 'Our Government' for homework. That night, I told Maw and Paw about it, and asked them if they knew anything about our government. Paw started pulling on his ear, he always does that when he gets upset.

"Who do you think that I've been writing to all those years," he growled. Then, he used some words which I'm sure Mrs. Jones would not like. Maw looked up from her knitting.

"Now, Paw, don't talk like that, Albert's teacher will be thinking that are a communist." Paw just pulled his ear again.

Later that night, Paw called me into the parlour. Our Member, Mr. Nobel was going to appear on television and make a speech on the election which was the next week.

"Our Member is a real handsome man," said Maw. Paw did not answer, he just pulled his ear.

Mr. Nobel started to talk. He sounded awfully worried about all of us -- his friends, his neighbours, business men and even the school teachers, but he was worried most of all about the "little men". He said that if some other terrible man were elected instead of him, our taxes would go up. That the prices that the farmer got for his produce would go down, food prices would go up and wages would go down. Now -- if he were elected, he'd help the 'little man' and the little business man. Why! He'd even let those little people borrow money from the bank at low interest so that they could keep up their high standard of living.

I was just beginning to wish that I were one of those 'little' folks, when our Member said, "Goodnight and God Bless you all!"

"He's a real kind man," said Maw. "There's an election coming up," Paw spat out, real mad like, "Just look what they've done to our front yard."

Paw has been writing to the Department, that's the Department of Highways, for a long time now. Once upon a time our Government decided to improve the highway that runs past our house. Before the job started the Department was real nice and friendly to Paw. They even sent men to explain all about the new plans and Paw felt real important. The government men told Paw that they might have to use a very, very small sliver of our land. Not enough to make any difference to us, mind you, it would be so small that if the Department had to pay Paw its real value in dollars and cents it would only come to two dollars and ninety nine cents. However, the Department could not pay less than five dollars. A few days later, Paw signed a paper then he got an important looking cheque - for five dollars.

Well, everything happened like the Department said, only they must have been a trifle absent-minded for they forgot to tell Paw that they would be raising the highway about five feet and then do nothing to fix up the mess that was left. Maw was upset, she could not sit in front of the window and rock the cat. The folks who drove by would peer down at her and Paw -- he was fit to be tied. He well nigh pulled his ear off that first winter since he could not get his old Ford up the steep driveway when there was lots of nice snow for us kids to play in. Paw wrote our Member, who wrote the Department, who wrote the engineer, who wrote the legal department, who wrote the construction company, who wrote back to the legal department, who wrote back to Paw and told him he had waited too long to do all his complaining. Paw wrote our Member again and he wrote to the engineer again. He came and told Paw that some people were always complaining and were never satisfied. There was a nice highway in front of his house, wasn't there? Some folks were most unreasonable and just could not be satisfied. Poor Paw! His ear just got redder and redder and Maw told him that he should not pull it so much, it did not appear dignified.

Maw shut the television off and told me to go do my homework.

"Paw, will you help me with my composition about our government?" Maw shook her head at me.

"Don't bother Paw tonight, Albert." Tomorrow I'd have to tell our Mrs. Jones that I did not know what to write and then I'd likely have to stay in half an hour for the rest of the week.

RULES — There are three parts to THE WORD CAGE: (1) clues, and (2) quiz, which lead to (3) the final answer, the "mystery word."
The clues and quiz are hidden in the grid — up, down, across, backward or diagonally. First, circle the clue words (you've found the first word for you). You may find the same letter in more than one word, so circle each letter clearly. Next circle the quiz words; the first letter and number of letters are given for each.
When you have circled all the clue and quiz words, the remaining uncircled letters will spell out the answer to this week's WORD CAGE!

CLUES FOR: CHRISTIE

A — Acknowledged, Author; C — Calais; Catches, Characters, Clues, Coach, Crime; D — Detectives; E — Enfold, English; F — Facts, Fame, Fans, Fiction; H — Hercule, Hints; L — Lasts, Loved; M — Mousetrap, Much, Murder; N — Novels; P — Plays, Plots, Pocketbooks, Poirot, Popularity, Prolific; R — Readers; S — Sell, Stories, Suspense; T — Tale, Toil; V — Victim, Volumes.

Healing of the Lame Man

And a certain man lame from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple.

Who seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple asked an alms.

And Peter, fastening his eyes upon him with John, said, Look on us.

And he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something from them.

Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk.

TODAY'S ANSWER

For And About Teenagers

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: I am 17 years old and my girlfriend is 20. My parents don't think we should get married. My mother is five years older than my father. People talk about us, but we love each other. What do you think we should do?

OUR REPLY: You should take responsibility for communicating to your parents exactly what your feelings are. They want to participate in your life, just as you naturally want to participate in theirs. Be certain they understand where you're coming from. Share your thoughts and feelings with them. For right now, you are still a teenager and most likely living at home. Thus, they make the rules. Accept them for what they are. Then you will get recognition and more responsibility. Be sure you're ready to accept all the responsibilities that marriage entails. You'll have to get out and earn your own meal money for starters. Be clear that's what you want to do. If you really take a look at it, you've got it made right now. A place to live, food on the table, probably got a car at your disposal, and much more. If you're certain you want to give all that up, communicate with your parents and your girl. Just be honest with your family, friends, and yourself.

Because of the volume of letters to this column, requests for personal replies cannot be accommodated. Editorial panel selects for weekly use, letter which best represents questions and/or comments from readers. FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, BOX 639, FRANKFORT, KENTUCKY 40601.

The co-operation we have experienced with this, our first issue, is an innate essence of the artists and craftsmen with whom we have had the pleasure of meeting. As their creativity is basically instinctive, so is their hospitality, understanding and quick grasp of another craftsman's situation.

It is not only an age group, or similar backgrounds, earlier associations or the necessity to pool financial resources. Whatever the bond, it is like birds migrating, or nesting, coming together and scattering, yet sharing, somehow and somewhere, the majestic pattern.

About six years ago, the Conqueror Worm (which has a store outlet at Hastings, and its co-operative heart in an old farmhouse, the Earthworks - see sketch, upper right, on page 1 - done by artist and teacher, Jeanne McRight - expecting a new addition to the family soon - came together, with six who had been friends mostly at school in Philadelphia.

Earthworks reflects more American than Canadian farm living, perhaps. It's a setting on a hillside, with Wayne Cardinalli's workshop for his many and varied salt-glazed pieces of distinctive pottery, and Mike Robb's glass-blowing.

It is here, also, that Dorothy Caldwell does her magnificent batik work (and plants gardens), and Fran Dorsey weaves.

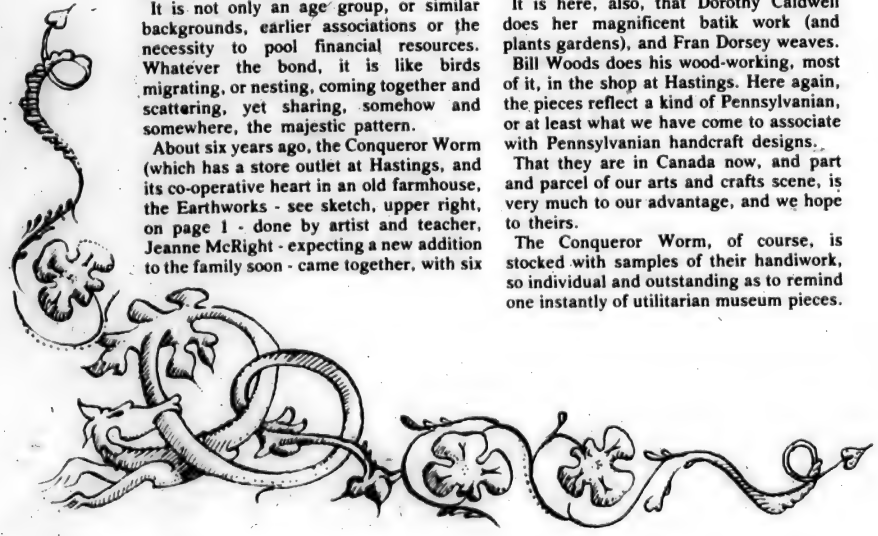

Bill Woods does his wood-working, most of it, in the shop at Hastings. Here again, the pieces reflect a kind of Pennsylvanian, or at least what we have come to associate with Pennsylvanian handcraft designs.

That they are in Canada now, and part and parcel of our arts and crafts scene, is very much to our advantage, and we hope to theirs.

The Conqueror Worm, of course, is stocked with samples of their handiwork, so individual and outstanding as to remind one instantly of utilitarian museum pieces.

FRAN DORSEY AND JEANNE MCRIGHT
Weaving.... and Artwork.... Ceramic tiles

Doing one's 'thing'

The tapestry is being woven surely, steadily. Husband-wife teams are relocating in tiny Shangrilas all over the broad sweep of Central Canada, in the irregular triangle of Toronto to Algonquin Park and Ottawa, enclosing our own area of Peterborough, Bobcaygeon and Bancroft, Madoc and Belleville, possibly Kingston. [See map, p. 6]

Potters and ceramicists seem to hold the current upswing, where once a short while ago, leatherworkers and weavers were experiencing their time in the sun. Not that interest in any art or craft is flagging. And, wherever tourist traffic is likely to provide summer, if not winter patronage, there an outlet is established.

Over the past decade, the back-to-the-land movement has brought to out-of-the-way farms and jewel-like settings on hills and riverbanks many a cottage industry, whether by senior or junior partnerships. Old historic landmarks, thanks to government intervention and assistance, are being preserved. Neglected housing, endangered to the point of disappearance, is being restored to usefulness. Where once beauty reigned, and became somewhat tarnished, there is beauty again. Much has been done. Much remains to be done. There is room for much more, and many more.

drive, talents and training long known to those in the countries they have come from to make their life and livelihood in Canada. Austerity provides as much good as bad. Which comes first, the chicken or the egg?

Indian works have come to be appreciated all over again. Pioneer arts and crafts, necessities in their time, are being revived to newer glory. Apprenticeship may indeed become fashionable again, and is certainly a necessity in our "instant" world. Co-operative efforts, such as this supplement, may come to be appreciated for their intrinsic values, one of which is practicality in doing one's own thing in conjunction with others of like spirit for the good of the integrated community and the encouraging of the individual in doing his own thing. Being kind, creative and neighborly nets us such great rewards.

Craftsmen use anything and everything at hand, imaginatively. Canadian natural materials lend themselves readily to many truly beautiful creations. Dried flowers, pressed leaves and ferns are used in wall plaques, tiny dried arrangements, and in jewelry (we have in mind the exclusive line produced by Jan and Everett Scheidt of Campbellford's Minerva Art and Crafts, for shops such as Fireside Gift on Highway 7, at the Indian River bridge, by the David Fife Memorial.)

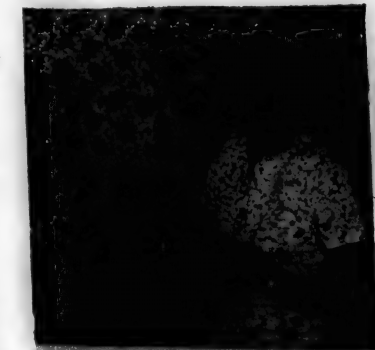

The Sax family has established its shop with a real fireside, as an adjunct to the refurbished historic old homestead in which they reside, and which Paul and Shirley Sax continue to improve as time goes on. When first I met Mrs. Sax, we discussed her handcrafted dried flower hasti-notes, among other things, and her

"KIT" BEAULERC and "Lil" McDermott at Lakefield's Kilt Craft discuss

In these pages, we confess, not nearly enough demonstrates as vividly as we would wish it the yeasty combination of Canada's rural scenes, natural materials, glowing visual possibilities, artists and craftsmen with their natural and acquired skills and talents, and opportunities afforded them to market their products, if only to renewing their ongoing supplies. As a pilot issue, it makes a beginning. Note the trends. Here an adaptation of the bread-dough we worked with as children, there the stitching, sawing, wool-weaving, quilting, corking, taken up again for the benefit of a new generation, has been developed to a cultural updraft, explosion and fallout, over a tremendously expanding territory.

interest in the pen-and-ink sketches of a talented neighbor, Muriel Fife. Now, two years later, the Fife sketches have been reproduced as hasti-notes, and wall prints under glass, available to all who would partake of the childhood thrill over work done by preceding generations. There are the wild things in fine lines and delicate inked shading, and the domestic dog, cat, horse and kitten, reminiscent of many an old book or reader, and Victorian artistry. There are also jams and jellies from Evelyn Robertson of the historic Robertson 1867 Farm at Dunsford; fine small carpets woven at Havelock, and crib quilts of dainty materials finely stitched into adorable patterns for heirlooms gifts to lucky babies; driftwood assemblies for wildlife depictions by a Lakefield carver, and decorated stone paperweights, unusual import items, collectors' delights all, and Canadiana.

Outlets for their work are very important, to prevent the artists and craftsmen from being besieged by the merely curious. Then, too, materials of a more synthetic nature must be obtainable, and a supply sir sandford fleming college

July 7 to August 1 are the dates for the annual Peterborough Fine Arts Summer School, offered in the City of Peterborough by the continuing education division of Sir Sandford Fleming College.

Once again, the school offers adults and children the opportunity to combine summer weather with creative activity, this year through a total of 11 day and five evening courses.

Each course runs for a basic two-week period, five days per week, although it is possible to make arrangements for one week only, or, if enough students wish it, extend the course for a third week.

Most courses are offered in the mornings, with evening classes from 7:30 to 10:00 p.m.

Day courses include sculpture, with W. A. Eakins; silk screen printing, with David Bierk; general pottery, Valerie Whetung and Garry Moxam; water-color - landscape painting, Wilma Foley; fabrics, including weaving, tie dye, block and screen printing, and rug hooking, with Jane Baum Bonnell; iron workshop (blacksmithing on the forge), Brian MacKenzie; portrait painting in oils, Marni Bradshaw; landscape painting (any medium), Graham Page; and photography, with Lawrence Weissmann.

Courses for young people are pottery for teens and pre-teens, ages 10 to 18, with Valerie Whetung, and the school is repeating its popular introduction to art for children, which is divided into four separate courses for various age groups from five years to 10 years of age. Judy Hodgkinson is the instructor.

JOHN ARCHER

Engraving is both craft and a fine art. Its uses are many. In the world's history, it has been in continuous use, although not all of us at any one time would realize its potentials, or consider it in so important a light. John Archer, whose letterhead from 372 Water Street, Peterborough, Ontario, states simply, "Engraver, Trophies for every sport", and adds, "custom work, rings, plaques and plastic signs (742-1112) has been six years in his present location with his wife's assistance building the business to its present size and staff.

Mrs. Archer worked elsewhere when they began, but now has more than enough detail and office management to keep her occupied with their enterprise.

An artist, sensitive and imaginative, John Archer can design and handcraft almost anything to carry his work with its variety of lettering and symbols, including machines and tools to effect the various operations. He makes the necessary adjustments in wood or metal for any size object.

His son, Donald, now works with him, also, on a machine making plastic markers lettered for business offices, plant operations, hospital corridors and desk plaques.

Leah Smith works at assembling, polishing and cleaning the various trophies, rosebowl, metal objects and plaques on which the other staffers, Marj Read, Carol Payne, and Leah's daughter, Claudia Smith, engrave messages, initials, presentation lines, names, dates, and whatever else is required, under the direction of John Archer when necessary.

by themselves when they have acquired the skills involved.

All agree there is nothing monotonous about their work. The amazing variety of the requests with which the Archers deal makes the work infinitely interesting and continually different daily. The most minute work will be required, on the tiniest of mementos, or much larger lettering on trophies or plaques or crests, with all the variations between. Copying and enlarging or diminishing family crests and mottoes is another of the Archer specialties.

children's books based on interviews with children in surrounding elementary schools, including Apsley, which two of their own children attend, Wendi and Gregory. An older daughter, Cheryl, attends Lakefield High School. Another project involves the production of "Women in Peterborough, Past and Present" for this International Women's Year. Still another ongoing enterprise is connected with taping and arranging programs for CBC exposure.

Hastings, last year for its Centennial, drew together an astonishing number of crafts people for its exhibition. Travellers to the Eskimo Arctic and into the more isolated areas of Indian, Mexican, pioneering places, have returned with the inspiration of "earthy" and natural practices in pride of handwork. The Ontario scene, alone, can boast having reached a zenith where elementary school children can benefit once again from a direct assistance, such as that provided by Mr. and Mrs. John Jacobs, Curve Lake.

It becomes apparent, with the example set by the Woods, there are many Canadians now becoming comfortable with the idea of riding one horse off into several distant directions. At this point, we would have to note a particularly adept personality in this area to our story - Charmian Edwards-Evans of Oriole Drive, Peterborough, of "Lumpies" fame. Originals by Charmian include hasty-notes with delicate sketches and old fashioned recipes. (See below).

The men, mice and women (?) who peer up at the onlooker with pin-eyed inquisitiveness and laughter-provoking expressions, clutching cheese or purses or their chests, or whatever, almost invariably invoke questions such as "Hi, guys, how are ya?"

KAWARTHA HANDCRAFTED candles, at Sandy Point Marina, by Edward Zielski - worth the drive north to Pigeon Lake.

instinctive and co-operative threads which delicately bind practitioners of arts and crafts to each other and to our mutual aims.

We met the Wood family by way of a longtime backwoods artist and writer, hearty Marvel Denning at Mount Julian, whose work in oils on birch plaques we have long admired as closely as our own home. Widowed, faced with the prospect of raising her family by herself, and independent of spirit, Mrs. Denning decided upon a most natural gift item. She cuts, slabs, dries and sands birch shop like the Odd Shoppe, at the corner of Park Avenue and Macdonnell, in Peterborough, under the proprietorship of Don Spargo, and Doris Vallery, is handiest.

Don prides himself on being able to advise on any craft item and its use out of his own expertise. Among the courses which prepared him to demonstrate all kinds of handicrafts was an 18-month candlemaking effort. It's located in just the right sort of atmosphere, as well, a former grocery store with the old fashioned "safe" woodwork and counter bins with their ornate lettering still in place, making it for all the world, with its piled-high shelves, like the restored village grocery and drygoods centre at Lang Century Village. Instruction books are available, on anything from decoupage to safety pin art. We know there are no minimum requirements on the orders he delivers regularly to Fairhaven, Balmoral and Extencicare for senior citizens, or to Camp Downey for Handicapped Children. It's a one-to-one relationship. Don's customers represent wide interests, two of them CNIB-trained and blind, Sally with skill in fake fur and jewelry, Gerald Miron in chair caning. The beads alone he has on hand, only one of his lines, are of glass, wood, pearl, plastic, metal and polished seashell, ceramic, buffalo horn, and metallics.

Dorothy Chew, long one of Don's customers, is an eggcraft specialist whose fame is spreading. Some of her work is in "The Crafty Owl" at Keene. She exhibits, fortunately, for the delicate jewel-like eggshell items she produces are well worth the viewing. It's a pity, in a way, they sell to individual collectors, for together, they present a most impressive sight.

Come to think of it, that can be said of most truly individual art, where no two items are even remotely like each other. Mrs. Chew takes each eggshell, from ostrich to duck, and makes of it a miniature world, a gilt-encrusted jewelry container, a cushioned couch for a tiny figurine, a "surprise" box, to the delight of young and old alike. If we cannot own, like the Russian Czarina of old, the actual jewels and goldsmithing, Mrs. Chew's creations are certainly a more delicate substitute. Pottery, pewter, wood-sculpturing, print-making, lapidary products and all other basics have come to Canada, to North America. Art appreciation is emerging from the school courses being offered, both day and evening.

One becomes aware of the extraordinary value of co-ordinating groups like D. N. Rishor and the members of his executive in the Peterborough Council for the Arts. Of course, there is a distinct difference in the various practitioners of arts and crafts. Those who emerge in any field are those who bend an effort to developing innate or acquired talent. Which is why we keep hoping the appreciation of apprenticeship will emerge to its fullest in future. We have none in Canada, to speak of, in comparison with the necessity for it.

SUZANNE and Don Wood, printers and publishers, artists, writers.

Something else is emerging. Personal expression has led many an artist to producing personal hasty-notes, holiday cards, and bookplates. The husband-wife team of Don and Suzanne Wood not only produces their own, among them the delightful "Mollie Moffet" design, but they are prepared to print for others at their Homestead Studios near Mount Julian. They live now on a farm, having severed all but a few connections with Toronto and Flemingdon Park where Suzanne was community coordinator and also the publisher of the Flemingdon Park Cookbook with its 93 pages of wonderful international recipes from such widely diverse places as Jamaica and East Africa. Don prints and Suzanne sketches and composes. Their combined effort is currently channelled into a series of MARVEL HENNING, writer, historian, artist, craftsman.

"Lumpies" are adorable little figurines of bread-dough adapted to her own personal formula by Charmian, for wall plaques, as well, just as her sketches have lent themselves admirably to wall hangings. I think Charmian has charmed us with "Lumpie" psychology. We all have a little of her mice, men and women "Lumpies" in us, which explains their appeal, and instant loveability. They're winners, all of them! Many must have viewed them, and purchased, at the East Central Ontario Arts and Crafts Festival, which presented area arts and crafts, and area school bands as well, at the Peterborough Memorial Centre in April, now being planned for a repeat performance in 1976. It was Charmian who drew our attention to Summer Kitchen Pottery, with its distinctive blue glazing. Such are the plaques, herself, and in most cases makes full use of knots in the wood and the structure of the tree growth for unusual effect. Familiar from childhood with the subjects she paints, Marvel Denning often turns to flowers as well as birds and wild animals for her plaques. She is primarily a wildlife artist. Brooches and pendants emerge in smaller-sized birch ovals, with appropriately-sized motifs, form under her skillful hands. If you wish to become familiar with her writing, you can find her history material in local weeklies, and occasionally in a daily or a magazine. She has campaigned for some time to develop a community centre in her own area, and is not averse to being outspoken on the subject of community necessities.

Certainly, there cannot be anyone, anywhere in the Mount Julian area who is more familiar than Marvel Denning with what has been happening there over the years. Part of her sensitivity is her awareness, arising out of living and farming thereabouts all her life. She is a natural-born artist, and a naturalist.

you obtain two copies of it from the weeklies with which it is circulating. Put the pages together, two and seven, with four and five, one and eight with three and six. We look forward to repeating this pilot issue on a larger scale October with a Christmas theme, so don't forget to let us know your interest. We have a variety of patterns, ideas and information on arts and crafts which we can make available in printed form. Just name it, and we can provide.

Of course, pottery pieces inevitably remind one of food. And, what arts and crafts issue could be complete without mentioning food? If you have not experienced the delight of buying from a food co-operative, try the only one of its kind there seems to be in our triangle -- Sangsara, Ltd., Natural Foods, 682 George Street North at Antrim, Peterborough. We buy most reasonably a fine variety of dried foods, navy, mung, kidney, romana, soy, lupini, pinto and aduki beans, green split, whole yellow and chick peas, red lentils and baby limas. Free recipes, over 50 herbs and spices from alfalfa herb powder to yarrow are available, plus ingredients for granola and other delicious mixtures. This summer, Sangsara's fresh produce and eggs will be offered at a sidewalk stand, against the blue and green painted forest scenes on the old brick facade which set this quaint co-operative apart from its neighbors and make it a "must" on your weekly shopping outing.

Sangsara has craft items, as well, although not as many as it had when it was farther south on George Street. There are Mexican baskets, handwoven belts from Anne Creighton of Zygote Farm, Mayberry, and fun things such as maple rock handcrafted pipes by Gord Smith of Peterborough. Goulimene beads, hand-crafted weaving shuttles, rosewood combs and glassdrop ear-rings.

Trudy Veerman, of Gui Studio, R.R. 3, Madoc, three miles north of the Madoc fairgrounds, at the "old Blair place" which her handyman husband is turning into a showplace just as he did with their earlier locations in Stirling and Batawa, prefers the pottery-adorned burlap wall hangings she creates. She has succeeded admirably in producing something not readily available elsewhere.

Although she does stylized flowers, Ontario trilliums for example, she loves the flowers and vines and leaves that have no root in anything other than her fertile imagination. So skilled is she, however, she can produce any pottery item to order. Just call 473-2093. Trained in Holland, at the Academy of Arts, and experienced by employment with Mobach at Utrecht, Trudy has used the diminutive of her own Dutch name, Geertruida Greta, in the studio name, Gui (sounds like "ghee").

We learned of Trudy Veerman's work through the Hudsons in-Madoc. Mrs. Hudson, teaching art at Madoc High School, spent weeks this spring organizing a most creditable showing of arts and crafts from the area, with artists from Bancroft to Belleville involved. Her artist husband is an instructor with COPE, Constructive Opportunities for Progressive Employment, 21 St. Lawrence East, Madoc, K0K 2K0, a community-sponsored project for handicapped people given Local Employment Assistance Program funding, in its second year of business and hopeful of being independent during the third year.

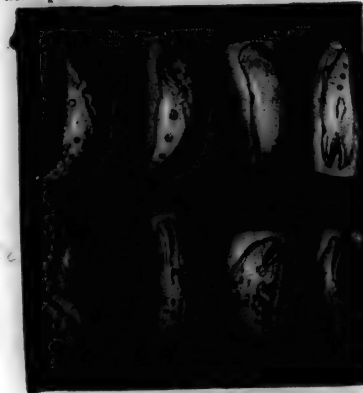

Currently, the group produces hand-painted figurines, animals, small vases, coffee mugs, steins and ashtrays, cast in plaster-of-paris moulds with white earthenware, and finished in electric kilns. A range of handmade and wheel-thrown stoneware will be added this year, using a native Canadian buff body. W.E. Gordon is project manager.

Swinging north from Lakefield takes one into colorful craft areas, not the least of which is the Ojibwa Reservation at Curve Lake, where Clifford and Eleanor Whetung have been working since 1966 to build up an outlet for Indian crafts, and have succeeded well beyond their initial intention of providing income for Reservation residents, and publicizing native crafts. They have 18 full-time workers on staff now, and provide an outlet for the home industry of many more. The Whetung Ojibwa Crafts Centre has to be one of the finest of its kind for native handicrafts anywhere on the continent, and certainly in Canada.

Its current Spring '75 Exhibition of Contemporary Indian Crafts offers carvings from 'ksan, argillite, bent boxes, one of a kind silver jewelry and pottery, masks and other handcrafted collectors' pieces. Open nine to five daily, including Saturdays and Sundays, this centre has a permanent museum, with some of the most interesting work outside Canadian and American archaeological collections to view. Much more than a trading post, its original log centre will shortly become an art gallery for the area.

Pottery offered is of exceptional quality, the work of the Whetung's own daughter, Valerie, trained in Banff. Quillwork, by one of the remaining quillworkers, Mrs. Mary Johnson, and black ash splint baskets, by still another senior, Mrs. Elwood Coppaway, may soon become the last of their kind, there being at the moment no interested young successors to their art, and industry.

THESE WHALE'S teeth, carved and inlaid with abalone shell by Loraine of British Columbia, are valuable in many ways. They are on display at the Spring '75 Exhibition of Whetung Ojibwa Craft now at Curve Lake.

It would seem teachers retire early from academic life to do their own thing, too. Percy and Doris Hoskins, both of them high school teachers until recently, Percy at Thomas A. Stewart Secondary School instructing in metalwork, have turned the old hardware emporium at Keene into a modern and delightfully stocked mart of handcrafted items. They seek outstanding artistry. They call their enterprise "The Crafty Owl" (Box 160, Keene, Ont. K0L 2G0) and both contribute, Doris turning out boutique items, including mantel art of gilded papier mache, Percy skilled pewter work - spoons, cream and sugar containers

DOROTHEA CHEW of Peterborough, whose eggshell craft is exacting and superb.

KATHLEEN BIERK at Artspace, Peterborough, with Indian artist Norman Knott.

Early retirement has offered some of our senior citizens an advantage to our advantage. That is to say, they have gone south, many of them, for the winter months into a crafters' climate, returning with new skills and ideas for themselves and their children and grandchildren. Going abroad, for young and old, has had its effect, as well. Noting the activities of overseas craftsmen and artisans, coupled with those of immigrants now in Canada, has been a boost to the home scene. There are those who would prefer leisure-time activity to be not only productive but lucrative.

Witness the request of coordinator Doris Hoskins, whom we've already mentioned in connection with "The Crafty Owl", for handcrafters and hobbyists to pool their efforts in a Craft Fair August 2, as part of Keene Otonabee 150 Years Pioneer Week celebrations, and the list she has issued of known doings, as follows: ceramics, houseplants, aprons, quilts, crochet, knits, birdhouses, leather, lye soap, string art, baked goods, tinware, rugs, tincan craft, blown glass, ecology craft, enamelling, stained glass, quilting, dolls, photos, metal sculpture, wood sculpture, soft toys, batik, eggcraft, dough art, steelcraft, toolwork, pickles, dollhouse furniture, seed-art, art foam, wrought iron, jewelry, embroidery, needlepoint, macrame, Indian crafts, candles, antiques, books, flea market items, stationery, papercraft, woven items, tie-dye, bookmarks, junkcraft, driftwood, bread, dried flowers, pictures, pine cone items, oil paintings, wall hangings, bonnets, wreaths, yarn pictures, decoupage, candy, china painting, maple sugar, garden flowers, lapidary art, beadwork, copper tooling, eggshell mosaics, "and many others !!". To register, call her at 295-4406. Hopefully, all those who were in the Marmora Chapter IODE Arts and Crafts exhibit May 30, and other such co-operative opportunities for pinpointing the current Canadian arts and crafts "NOW" scene such as Mrs. Hudson's Madoc effort, will make it to Keene, also, on August 2.

Ceramics heads her list, as well it might, for just as there has been a proliferation of potters, and the market is by no means anywhere near saturation, there has been a distinct recognition of the use of greenware and glazes.

In Lakefield, the Kit Craft Potteries have greenware, glazes, and clay-pouring services, as well as giving lessons, and completing the firing. This is the third shop "Kit" Beaulerc and "Lil" McDermott have occupied in the Queen Street complex of shops being developed into a New England type centre with quaint facades and shop signs, flowers and cobble walks (around one of our colleagues, The Lakefield Leader).

Kit Craft mushroomed, like the ceramic pieces they produce, from its initiation in 1974 because of the combined talents of England-trained artist Mrs. McDermott and natural promotion instincts of the Beaulerc family with its newspapering background and creativeness.

There must be at least half a hundred different items in that shop, from dish sets with the Petroglyph motif to Oriental urns and Canadian souvenir plates with handsketched local scenes and historic landmarks or commemorative legends. Assistants such as "Winnie" Kidd and high school students have been a necessity, from the beginning. Of course, Lakefield isn't the only centre with the current accent on ceramics. Peterborough, Norwood, and Campbellford all have courses going, and private enterprise outlets are springing up everywhere. Like many another craft, and art, it offers endless possibilities for self-expression. Perhaps its greatest enrichment is the stamp of personality some really involved artisan will put on it, just as Mrs. McDermott has with her handsketching and individual artistry. The salad sets Kit Craft offers, with their Canadian motifs, and mugs made to order with personal photographs, are just two of the more attractive items.

usage of which the items shown are only a small sample.

Mrs. Art Rutherford (Joy) of 673 Frank St., Peterborough, directs a most interesting group of women in and about Peterborough in what is sometimes a controversial medium, (Artex) liquid embroidery.

Far from being the static pastime which the uninformed might label it, liquid embroidery is exciting, with a variety of new possibilities not open to oils, acrylics and other such media. It can be utilized on glass, metal, wood, shrink plastic, sports equipment, a wide variety of highly washable materials, curtaining and clothing.

Here again, the husband-wife bit has prevailed for it was at her husband's suggestion Joy took up her tasks almost full time.

Free lessons and a continuing acquaintanceship with new techniques has made this field unlimited.

Curtains are lifted out of the ordinary, paintings on velvet, dramatic prints and plaques appear, and I suppose I am most impressed with the striking combination of dressmaking and liquid embroidery in such choice items as palazzo pantsuits and overblouses with Ukrainian or Bulgarian style flowered and crossstitch flavor. The adaptation of old tollware designs, alone, presents a vast and imaginative scope.

Many fine works on display at IODE sponsored craft show

We saw the work of Mrs. Percy Carman of Marmora at the Marmora IODE Exhibition Friday, May 30, in Marmora Town Hall. Past president of the Marmora Women's Institute. Mrs. Carman is a fine leatherworker, as well as having acquired most of the skills offered by her Institute instructors from time to time, and her own teacher training background.

Which behooves us, right this moment, to refer to the valuable efforts of local groups who set up these exhibitions, with a great deal of effort in most cases, to accommodate area artists, hobbyists, and craftsmen who might otherwise not have the opportunity to come together in so impressive a fashion.

The public, for an afternoon, was given the opportunity to view an extensive collection of beautiful work, from apple-head dolls and tincraft to professional weaving, copperwork, petitpoint, quilting and upholstery.

We were drawn to the cakecrafting of Mrs. Earl Stillman, from north of Havelock, to the certified exhibition art of W. G. Clayton, London-born copperworker and string art creator (among other of his talents, not the least of which is nailwork on wood, for which he has been televised by the CBC and CTV programs.).

INDIAN CRAFTS, language and dancing are being taught by Mr. and Mrs. John Jacobs of Curve Lake. Here, shown at Keene Public School with some of their students, and a leatherwork painting by Norman Knott, also of that reserve, whose work is showing currently at Artspace, Peterborough.

Ethel Caverly of Glen Allen Park accomplished artist, chats about available books in Marmora Public Library, with librarian Helen Jones, who arranged a small exhibit table on behalf of the library, and Mrs. Jack (Chris) Jones who holds some of her pottery eggs. Her further work in pottery and ceramics shows at the right.

Mrs. Charles (Helen) Brady of the IODE Marmora Chapter holds an apple doll created by Mrs. Melkjohn. The other dolls on the table are Mrs. M's, as well.

MRS. VIOLA PARKES and the IODE tea hostess, Mrs. Anne Walters (that's an art too, especially when tea breads are so delicious) examine a leather purse

MEMORIAL CRAFTSMAN Douglas G. Creighton effects one of the finishing stages on grey granite protected with a rubber coat.

An age old controversy arises often over what can be considered art, craft or simply trade. The fact is, it is the individual who lifts a skill or technique to the heights. There are those, possibly, who have never given a thought to the craftsmanship involved in memorials, and monuments, whether in pink marble, jade or simply grey granite.

There are at least five stages, and someone like Douglas G. Creighton of Norwood Memorials, during his apprenticeship, learn them all. Then, of course, the work has to be erected. "Doug" began as a boy in Saint John, N. B., and later worked in Toronto, Manitoba and Alberta, acquiring further skills as granite cutter and finisher. The stone he most commonly works is black granite from Sweden, red from Finland, Quebec and Ontario, or grey from Vermont.

Part of the pleasure of strolling in memorial parks or cemeteries is provided by the craftsmanship of stone workers like Creighton. A memorial can be simple or ornate, or in a variety of shapes. It takes experience and practice to produce as Creighton does in Norwood.

on trays, and goblets in varying sizes. To inspect the shelves is to appreciate how many artists they have managed to attract, one client from Marmora providing them with incredibly fine cutwork, embroidery and crocheted lace, still another with dolls, another jewelry. They feature the pottery of local artisans George and Lillian Blackshaw "Indian River Pottery".

George Blackshaw trained under Gerald Scott as a portrait painter, and many of his still lifes adorn the walls of the lovely home they now have overlooking the Indian River, and outward to Rice Lake, at Keene.

Although he has been in Canada for a quarter century, George Blackshaw was born and raised in Lancastershire. In Toronto, and later in Peterborough, before arriving in Keene, he and Lillian sculpted, woodworked, and raised a family which includes the talented Lesley Blackshaw Dubey, whose work illustrated the book, Peterborough, Land of Shining Waters, and who now is making a name for herself in fabrics, weaving and batiks. Another daughter is a registered nurse, still another operates Marino's Beauty Salon in Peterborough, and a son lives and works in Kingston. We really admire the special bird feeders, bowls, casseroles, planters, plates, trays, mugs and jugs produced at "Indian River Pottery" but we are especially mindful of the soufflé bowls, so scarce in Canada. The Blackshaws are a little like the Robertshaws, having come from Toronto to renovate an old home, and settle into it to establish a flourishing cottage industry.

As we said before, pottery seems the "in" thing. We marvel at the individuality expressed. Those who work at the wheel place an unmistakable stamp of themselves on their products. It's so exciting, it stirs one to return home and empty the cupboards of all other dishes, to begin afresh with pottery pieces created by someone you've met personally.

Another husband-wife team, on Highway 28 at Lakefield, the Kavanaghs, Bob and Cathy (with thriving baby son Sol), have been secondary school teachers. Bob was at Sir Sandford, but is devoting his full attention to his pottery-making and to completing his doctorate now. The inspiration for his present vocation came from studies in France, where he and Cathy had the opportunity to observe at first hand the work of established craftsmen accustomed to working with gas kilns. Theirs is The Earth and Fire Workshop, R.R. 4, Peterborough, Ontario, K9J 6X5, open week-ends only. It's a good idea to telephone first, because often they are out. (705-652-8528)

"Firing pottery with gas permits the potter to achieve very soft, warm colors, making use of the clay itself to influence color and textures in the glazes. Our glazes range through blue-black, white-tan, mustard-brown, shiny reddish-brown, deep olive-brown, grey-white-green, creamy white-amber-brown. We use two distinct clay bodies, Bob notes, "one a rich red-brown speckled with black, the other a grey-tan speckled. The basic problem for the artisan potter as we understand it, is to make utilitarian pottery as beautiful as possible, using the hand and the eye as the major tools."

Stoneware, as the Kavanaghs and the Blackshaws produce it, is extremely durable, dishwasher proof, oven proof, not easily chipped, not porous, so that the clay itself will retain water even without a glaze.

Salt-glazed pottery, such as that produced by Wayne Cardinalli of The Conqueror Work in Hastings, requires a kiln apart from that used in less-specialized work. "Ros" of the Summer Kitchen Pottery, just south of Bridgenorth on Chemong Road, produces a blue-glazed pottery and figurines which are outstanding.

INDIAN RIVER POTTERY, George and Lillian Blackshaw, Keene.

PEWTER-MAKER Percy Hoskins and wife Doris, Keene craft co-ordinator.

Here, again, the husband-wife idea prevails. The setting is a family-type farm, even to a pick-your-own berry patch and fields in which an entire flea market, bazaar or art showing could take place conveniently. "Ros" is still raising her family, although she has a married daughter in Peterborough. She keeps the Kitchen open from November 1 until December 31, weekends from May 1 to Thanksgiving, and by appointment at other times, if you call 292-7302. There is one aspect of her operation of which I particularly approve. A homemaker herself, who has turned several of her pieces into more functional ware, small goblets which can double as egg cups, and vases as candleholders. One visualized her favorite pieces, with what she calls "crawls" in the glazing, on a groaning board with shiny-topped bread twists and her big pottery bowls filled with fresh salads and pastry-topped meat pies. Not that her work isn't delicate. The colors are soft, earthy, muted, lending themselves to a very gently setting.

Which brings us to Artspace, 440 Water Street, in Peterborough, where the recent paintings of Bob Jordan have been displayed, and the ceramics of Bill Rowland, hanging planters and goblets, as well as the photographs of Neil Newton of Bowmanville. Norman Knott of the Curve Lake Ojibwa Reservation will be showing his legend paintings, and Alice Williams, also of Curve Lake, who teaches her beadwork. A sample of Knott's work, illustrating the bear legend, can be seen in the picture of Mr. and Mrs. John Jacobs elsewhere in this issue, of them with their students at Keene Elementary School, where they teach legends, language and crafts, for the department of Indian Affairs, in conjunction with an Ontario educational effort.

Artspace plans the showing of drawings by Stephanie Le Mans, and a summer sale of work by gallery artists and artisans. There are now two storeys to the gallery, allowing greater flexibility and space. To date, students from Sir Sandford Fleming College Fine Arts administration program have been assisting, but summer employees at Artspace have been reduced to two.

The director, David Bierk, is currently being shown and represented at Nancy Poole's Studio, 16 Hazelton Avenue, Toronto, and he is preparing for ongoing exhibitions elsewhere. An accomplished artist in several mediums, he has had exhibitions in Trent University, and Kingston's St. Lawrence College already this year, and in California, Montreal, Oshawa, Toronto, previously.

Mrs. Bierk is an artist, also. Her activities, momentarily, appear to be confined to supervising Artspace and its facets, many and varied, an alliance with the publication "parachute" and The Parachute Exhibition being not the least of her efforts, with paintings, poems, sculpture, and photography, by David Bierk, John Burrows, Dennis Tourbin, Denise Ireland, John B. Boyle, and B. Mackenzie, and others.

LIFE STYLE - Mural painting, toward which this student group's efforts have been directed during the past year, could well become a permanent vocation. They

Can you picture it? Since the Canadian centennial, in particular, 1967, when Montreal hosted the world with all its basic arts and crafts, and cottage industries, in a way no national or provincial exhibition has been able to do, despite the years since 1893 on this continent, there has been a continuous upsurge and interest in handwork for livelihood and leisuretime.

We still need Canadian souvenirs. We still need representative oddments and fragments of our Canadian scene for tourists to take away in their pockets, handbags and suitcases.

Senior citizens have been most successful in reviving the time-worthing activities of their younger days, with a little assistance from government resource.

In the schools, the art departments have been expanded considerably. One could use Norwood District High School, and Thomas G. Brewer, the art instructor there, as a fine example. From Grades 8 through to University, "Tom's" students are exposed with his sensitivity to a variety of artwork from print making to pottery. Brewer, himself, appears to have settled upon pottery as the most expressive outlet for his own talents at the moment, using both electric and wood-fired kiln at his 12th Line Dummer home studio to produce his "earthy" hues on pieces which are by no means standard or usual.

We have to mention again the inter-relationship of artists and community projects, and schooling, using the Hudsons at Madoc as example. Art teacher Hudson sets aside her own personal skill as an artist to organize a showing for the area, while her artist husband does likewise to stimulate a local ceramics project for the less able into being, in company with interested residents of the Madoc Community, both so aware of the necessity to drop whatever possible pebble into the pond of artistic availabilities and hope for rings of truly interesting repercussion to lap at the farther shores.

Still, if Peterborough experienced some hesitation over repeating its fine East Central Arts and Crafts Festival (it has since been made official that the 1976 festival will take place) who can take smaller centres to task?

The festival featured area schools, as well, among them the Peterborough All-Star Intermediate Band with its various secondary school music. Teacher conductors, under the direction of Peterborough Country Board of Education music man David Lee, and its members from as far away as Nepton, Havelock, Norwood and Buckhorn.

Mrs. Len B. Martin, known to many as Dorothy, has the Downtown Locksmith shop on Water street, on the Peterborough Square periphery, and its accompanying Artists' Bazaar, where for a number of years she has featured regional craftsmen, long before others took up the idea. These are craftsmen as distinct from hobbyists, who do like to sell occasionally but are not as interested in spending enough time at their "thing" for it to become part of their livelihood. Distinguished arts, and print-makers, leather workers, quilters, weavers, knitters and tatters, all have been and are represented at her place of business.

As the co-ordinator of the Festival, an immense task, along with others of her Peterborough Executive Women's Association, Dorothy Martin deserves much praise for her efforts.

The group has become officially known now, as the Peterborough and District Guild of Arts and Crafts with the interim executive headed by Orlin Junkin, president; Ann Jackson, vice-president; Lyn Sparling, secretary; Mrs. V. Johnston, honorary president; and Mrs. Rita Phillips, advisor.

To Wilfred Oates, treasurer, can be sent three dollars for individual, or five dollars for group membership, or to Sparling, 1259 Amundsen Drive (743-1460) Peterborough.

The boost to the festival from Peterborough's Recreation Commission under Ken Robinson, and the Sports and Recreation Bureau of the Ministry of Community and Social Services, has been undeniable.

Although there are separate committees, the inter-relationship again is apparent when one looks forward to the Peterborough Arts and Water Festival in August.

Out along the Lakehurst road, at Sandy Point Marina on Pigeon Lake, where the former estate of Sir Edward Kemp awaits its future, in an astoundingly peaceful and beautiful setting, a talented candlemaker, by name Edward Zielski, and his wife and daughter, display his Kawartha Handcrafted Candles. We saw them first at the Festival, and hope you did too, when he had more than 20 types, all different, of his artistry on view. Hanging planter-type candles in leather and thonging -- immense, floor-standing, marbledized rainbow-hued, with perhaps 50 to 60 pounds of wax -- tiny candles, mushroom-shaped in miniature to giant, round, wide, tall, tapered -- in beribboned and twisted effect, like delicious Christmas candies...dark, light, pale, vivid ... and all utilitarian, if need be, dripless, smokeless, odorless. It is really not far at all to where he is located, and the setting invites a weekend drive to obtain his wares, thus netting beauty on several sides. Just go north to the Kemp estate from Mom's Place, R.R.1, Peterborough. It's worthwhile, too, to note the happenings in the vicinity, where new housing will be developing in subdivision fashion shortly.

A short distance farther north, at Buckhorn, are several other artists. Ross Robertshaw, an artist in oils, makes his headquarters just past Flynn's Corners, where he and his wife, Lillian, also an artist, have transformed the old Presbyterian Church into the Rockcroft Art Gallery. A nearby log structure, long a pioneer home, is now their permanent residence as well, satisfyingly refurbished for themselves and school-age family.

The Robertshaws came from Toronto, too, which is why his paintings, forceful, colorful, and starkly beautiful, of scenes of Education. Several of their works, all mounted in Centre Hastings Secondary School, including a well-researched local familiar to many of us, tend to reflect -- certainly those still hanging at the present time -- Cabbagetown in spring, and glimpses in back alleys or through open window of half-forgotten but much-beloved incidents. More and more, understandably so, the freshet at the river's bend, and Ontario rocks and forests emerge from his brush and palette knife. He is experimenting with collage, and admits to a fondness for portraiture.

Mrs. Robertshaw makes candles, ceramics, dried flower arrangements, and other boutique items.

Rev. Robert K. Munro, of Keene United Church, co-ordinating chairman of "Keene, Otonabee 150 years" Pioneer Celebrations, in particular a gala week in midsummer, and his committee, have issued the official invitation to one and all to participate. Mrs. Jack Nelson is secretary, Jack Nelson treasurer, and jointly in charge of promotion and publicity, Clarence Glenn, and Robert Atkinson, R.R. 3, Keene.

Prize-winning catch in the Fish Derby (to August 1) should be registered at Bob and Pat's Resort in Keene. On June 1, there will be a kite contest and model airplane show at Hope's Mill, just north of the Lang Century Village, with a display of dizzying aerobatics by the Peterborough Radio Control Club. June 14, a 62-mile bicycle tour around Rice Lake begins at the four corners in Keene (entry fee) and returns for the awarding of a trophy.

June 20, Amateur Night in the Keene Arena offers all those with entertainment talent an opportunity to perform, and the accompanying Beauty Contest, with additional prizes for the best 1825 costume, should be pretty special. An Ecumenical Service and Picnic is planned for June 22 at Lang Century Village, with representatives of local Anglican, Presbyterian, Roman Catholic and United Churches taking part (bring your own picnic and chairs).

July 26, the Pioneer Days Dance will be held in the arena from 9 p.m., with a saloon theme, and August 1, Pioneer Days, will begin in earnest. A civic parade for Keene is being arranged, with Bill James (295-6243) accepting entries, an Olde Tyme Fiddlers contest, beard judging and square dancing. On Saturday, August 1, persons, families and organizations, are invited to set up their own pioneer displays in the Village of Keene. Mrs. Doris Hoskins at 295-4406 is co-ordinating. There will be refreshment booths, and an afternoon saloon in the arena, along with an afternoon art showing in the library. Hopefully, all other villages in the Peterborough Triangle will participate, community-wise and/or individually.

A limited edition of "Forest to Farm", Early Days in Otonabee, edited by D. Gayle Nelson, will be issued, and if you want a copy of the 160-page chronicle, send six dollars to Jack Nelson.

Bancroft Gemstone and the Kingston Lapidary and Mineral Club Mineral and Gem Show in August.

THOMAS BREWER, art instructor at Norwood District High School, has settled on pottery as his current personal medium.

The Haliburton School of Fine Arts will be running a new course in string music this summer featuring instructor Robert Skelton, who is currently on the violin faculty at the University of Western Ontario, and is Associate Concertmaster of the London Symphony.

"This is the first time a course in string music has been offered at the school and we are pleased to have someone of Mr. Skelton's calibre to instruct the course," said Don Popple, co-ordinator of the summer school.

Another new course at the school, which is operated by Sir Sandford Fleming College, will be spinning and dyeing with instructor Ted Carson. Mr. Carson started spinning and dyeing in 1953 and did much of the pioneering and research work in this field.

"Last year the school had an enrolment of 425 and we expect this to increase to about 500 this year. More people each year realize what an exciting vacation results when one combines an arts course at the school with a holiday in the beautiful Haliburton Highlands," Mr. Popple said.

The school opens on June 30 and runs through August 15 at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, overlooking Head Lake on the outskirts of Haliburton Village. There are courses for children as well as a babysitting service for pre-schoolers so that the whole family can enjoy their vacation, Mr. Popple noted.

There is a wide variety of courses including ceramics, painting, sculpture, photography, jewellery arts, and many others. Course length varies from one to two weeks and classes are held in the morning and afternoon.

A brochure listing all courses and accommodation available can be obtained by writing to the Haliburton School of Fine Arts, P.O. Box 339, Haliburton, Ontario.

Good news for taxpayers!

The province is kicking in with a 75% grant on water and sewer It's good news for the taxpayers of Madoc village who have been waiting for services to their homes for some time now. Councillor Tom Deline announced this week a 75 per cent across-the-board provincial grant has been approved for the cost of water and sewer installation to three streets and a general overall improvement to the entire system. Although it could take up to four years to complete the project, work will begin within the next week.

Priority will be given to the presently unserved streets, Prince Albert, Madawaska, and Seymour (from Deer Creek to Durham) with the two former streets to be completed first.

Although the total estimated cost of the project, 3.3 million dollars, sounds steep, the council hopes to be able to carry it out without burdening the taxpayers. The project involves completing the entire water and sewer services to the village, a new major trunk line to the schools on Elgin St., drilling a new well, as well as installing a new holding tank.

However, before this work begins, council will meet immediately with the engineering firm to determine the perogatives.

Councillor Deline also commented he hopes to "see more expansion and improvements to the village in the next two years than we have seen in the past ten." He explained sidewalk and road construction will be a major part of what he is referring to.

He also reports the village is sitting on the verge of potentially two new subdivisions and commercial and light industrial expansion, which could prove to be a big boost to the municipality.

Lottery winners are found here

At least two Olympic Lottery tickets sold locally proved lucky for their holders in Sunday night's draw.

Mrs. Pauline Harris, of RR 2, Madoc, shared a $1,000 win with three other ladies, her mother Mrs. Clayton McMurray, of Queensboro; her aunt Mrs. Arthur McClintock, of Marmora; and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Jack (Betty) McMurray, of Tweed. The four shared two tickets, with #5834223 proving the lucky one.

This ticket, along with a second $1,000 winner, were both sold by the Toronto Dominion Bank in Madoc.

The second winning ticket was purchased by Mrs. A. D. Morrison, of St. Lawrence St. W., who had given the ticket to her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Exton, Kanata, as a gift. Mrs. Morrison had bought six tickets and distributed them among her family. She was delighted to learn about the lucky ticket, even though it was not the one she had chosen to keep for herself.

Prominent contractor found in lake

A prominent plumbing, heating and electrical contractor of Madoc, Ross Pigden, 49, was found in the depths of Weslemkoon Lake shortly after noon on Monday, June 9th, after his empty boat was found adrift on Saturday afternoon and reported to police.

Provincial police at Bancroft report that the search was begun after Mr. Carl Austin, who operates a water-taxi service on the deep island-dotted lake, reported coming across the drifting boat floating in the centre of the big lake. The boat was out of gas, but its motor was still in gear. This was at about 4:30 in the afternoon when he was returning from taxiing passengers down Weslemkoon. Mr. Austin also operates the Four Loons Marina at the west end of the lake.

Upon investigating, the police reported that it appeared that someone was using the boat for fishing purposes and so treated the case as a possible drowning and began with an immediate search. That afternoon, dragging operations were carried out without success. On Sunday and Monday, divers from the Peterborough O.P.P. Headquarters and from Belleville were called in to carry on the search for the missing man.

The body was found at 1:30 Monday afternoon in about 30 feet of water not far from the point where the boat had been found adrift.

Mr. Pigden's wife is the former Mary S. Hamilton. He is the father of four, John, Carl, Anne and Katherine.

PARANUIK RETURNS TO REVIEW

She's in the saddle again

After nearly a year, Carol Paraniuk gets back on the bandwagon this week as she takes on the job of news reporter for the Madoc Review.

This type of work is not new to Carol, as she was editor of the weekly paper for three and one half years before it was sold to Mullan Publications of Marmora last summer. Since that time she has held the position of bookkeeper for Madoc Review Ltd. printing, owned by Maurice Goulah.

The new reporter plans to cover Madoc and area news exclusively, but this can only be accomplished through the co-operation of residents of the area. It would be very much appreciated if you, the readers, would let Carol know when there is a happening that would be of interest to other readers.

If you have an anniversary, unusual incident, meeting, sports achievement, or social item, just call Carol mornings or evenings at her home, 473-2912, or leave a message with the girls at the office during the afternoons, at 473-4194 and she will be happy to cover the event.

Carol commented she really enjoys this type of work and is most anxious to get going on the job, so why not help her to get started by phoning in an item for the social column today.

OPP boats to cruise

O.P.P. patrol boats will police Crowe Lake, Crowe River and Beaver Creek this summer, Sgt. Wilkinson of Madoc Detachment has informed the Marmora and Lake Townships Clerk-Treasurer Mabel Gawley.

Mrs. Gawley told the Townships Council that newly appointed Sgt. Wilkinson had called at the office hoping to introduce himself to Reeve Ritchie Wells, but the reeve was attending County Council that day.

Sgt. Wilkinson had given Mrs. Gawley the message that if a problem arises at any time, he will be pleased to be of assistance.

BROWN SELLS 10 MORE WINNERS

Ray Brown, of Deloro, had ten lucky winners in the Olympic Lottery last Sunday night.

Nine area people won $100 each, and one person $1,000. Mr. Brown declined to reveal the names, in case the people involved didn't care to have their names known.

Mr. Brown sold in the neighbourhood of 800 tickets on the 5th series. He has regular customers over a large territory, including the U.S.A. and has had winners in every series drawn.

Putting all eggs in one basket

The Quinte Exhibition has put all its eggs in one basket this year and is holding only one Fair, June 12 to 15.

"There will not be a spring and a fall fair this year, only a summer one," said Lyle Vanciel, president of the Quinte Exhibition and Raceway.

The fair directors feel this June date will catch the interest of more people, since the Quinte Exhibition will get the jump on the usual season of fairs, instead of competing with other areas' dates.

Deloro faces tax increase

Deloro Village ratepayers are faced with an increase in their property taxes this year, mainly due to the heavy Hastings County demand.

The Village Council has cut expenditures to the minimum, thereby lowering the municipal levy but the County demand puts a heavy load on taxes.

Levies for public residential and farm in 1974 were 111.89 mills and for 1975 will be 135.06 mills. For separate residential and farm and 1974 levies were 107.90 mills and for 1975 will be 137.17 mills.

For public business and commercial the levies were 137.15 mills in 1974 and increased to 158.92 mills this year.

Residents can expect to receive the tax bills the last week of June.

Headlining this year's grandstand performance are the three Albanis, an Aerial Motorcycle act. They will be joined by a comedy car act, a Swedish trampoline act and a unicycle act. The opening performance will feature heavy and light horse drawing. Canada's Conklin Shows is presenting a Trophy to the championship team in this event, as well as providing the midway and rides.

Senior citizens are among our most important resources.

This is what Ontario is doing to recognize them.

"It's the time of our lives"

Senior citizens prove over and over again that their lives can be both creative and productive.

Senior Citizens Week focuses attention on their contributions and needs — promoting and publicizing services provided by the Ontario Government to senior citizens, and encouraging development of recreational and social services in communities across Ontario.

For instance, lots of seniors are volunteering to help other senior citizens — driving them to appointments, helping them to fill out income tax returns, teaching them, sharing experiences with them.

Did you know that there are many senior citizens' physical fitness programs that you can join (including Senior Citizens' Olympics organized in some Ontario communities)?

Did you know that seniors themselves have developed many clubs and centres for their own special interests, including just about everything from gardening to world travel?

With 1000 senior citizens' clubs here in Ontario, as well as 90 senior citizens' centres, there's bound to be one in your community. What's more, there are many special interest clubs that aren't limited as to age — camera clubs, social clubs, study groups, a whole range of subjects that people who are retired now have time for.

Through special grants and other assistance, older people are finding the opportunity to go back to school and university — to develop new talents and concentrate on new interests.

For specific information about programs and services available to senior citizens, the Ministry of Community and Social Services has just published RESOURCES FOR SENIOR CITIZENS. For a copy, contact your local Ministry of Community and Social Services office or write:

Legion instals officers

New officers for the Madoc branch of the Royal Canadian Legion and Ladies Auxiliary were installed into office recently, with Tom Sandford and Edna Adams assuming the top two positions.

Serving as first vice president for the Legion is George Widdows, with Jack Armstrong as second vice. Don Bjorndahl is the secretary, Earl Morgan the treasurer. Oscar Baumhour the Sgt. at Arms, Capt. Jim Thompson the Padre, and Don Forestall the past president.

On the executive committee are Bob Heyworth, Charlie Murphy and Tim Clarke.

For the Ladies Auxiliary, the new first vice-president is Dora Heyworth, with Sybil Morgan as second vice, Maude Deline as secretary, Dorothy Bjorndahl as treasurer, Linda Adams as the Sgt. at Arms, and Agnes Bradley as the past president.

On the executive committee are Helen Scrutton, Eileen Widdows, Jean A. Rodgers and Lois Embury.

Pearson Peace Park appeal coming third week of June

The second part of the annual appeal of the Lester B. Pearson will be held the third week in June.

The appeal is for funds to maintain and develop the peace park as a free park for all who wish to come. The second part of the appeal is being made to those not contacted last year in order to complete the Mother's Shrine and the Tower of Hope, on behalf of all mothers who lost sons in the last two world wars.

Each year an annual festival and memorial service is held to which veterans, international speakers and the public is invited. This year the festival will be held July 19. No admission is charged for peace is for everyone.

The park does not receive a government grant of any kind, but the government gives an income tax deduction on all contributions up to 20 per cent of income. The cost of the Mother's Shrine and Tower of Hope is estimated at $2,000 and half has already been donated.

The park is the only one in Canada set aside as a peace park during Canada's Centennial. Since the park was dedicated July 1, 1967, over 12,000 persons, many of them school children, have visited the park.

The park is a practical demonstration of what local people can do by working together. Everyone works on a voluntary basis and all moneys donated are used to improve the park. All money received is audited and an annual return is made to the department of national revenue.

Contributions may be made by sending these to the Lester B. Pearson Peace Park, RR 3, Tweed, or at the Bank of Montreal in Tweed, or at the Toronto Dominion Bank in Madoc.

Around Huntingdon

Wednesday, June 4th, Bethesda U.C.W. had a tea bazaar and bake sale, which was very successful. Also, the plates with the picture of the church, emblems, and anniversary of the church have all been sold.

Mrs. Lucy Phillips and Harry of Copper Cliffe are spending a week's holidays visiting friends and relatives in the Madoc area.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Keller, Mrs. Lucy Phillips and Harry, Mrs. John Tebworth and Kathie motored to Niagara Falls, attending the wedding of their granddaughter and niece.

Last week Mrs. Lorna Francis gave a bridal shower at the home for Kathie Courteny, David Francis' future bride. The evening was enjoyable, with games and lunch.

Kathie received many useful gifts. Miss Myrtle Reid was a weekend guest of Mrs. Harold Reid.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Aylsworth and family attended the 25th wedding anniversary of her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Mitts of Stoco.

Some of the men of the community have improved the appearance of the cemetery by fixing the fence.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. George Allore (Reta Fleming), who celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary.

As a result of numerous complaints, action will be taken by the Village Council to change the business hours of a local store.

A motion was made at this month's regular meeting that a letter be sent to the Brewer's Warehousing Company to the effect that several complaints have been received that the retail outlet in Madoc is closed at noon hour and Friday evenings, while the L.C.B.O. retail outlet and all other business establishments remain open, and request the Company to review their hours of operation in Madoc.

OPINION

THE DESERVING ONES

One human ill we cannot eliminate

Disasters, natural or man-made, are one human ill that science is unlikely to eliminate in the predictable future. Instead efforts must focus on preparedness and on the swift, efficient supply of disaster relief.

Red Cross, an international disaster veteran, has long recognized that the days of well-meaning charity are over. Help that doesn't match needs, arrives too late, or isn't distributed, is no help at all. Instead Red Cross is developing an international force of trained disaster specialists, a purchasing network, a reservoir of technical and logistical know-how, to do justice to the public's generosity.

In this development, the Red Cross has helped pioneer the only rational approach to the disaster problem: countries in disaster-prone areas must be prepared for the worst -- with a national emergency relief plan of action! Many of the world's 122 National Red Cross, Red Crescent and Red Lion and Sun Societies are actively involved with the authorities to which they are auxiliaries in developing such plans and translating them into reality by training volunteers and regularly rehearsing for action, assuring a minimum stock of relief items and means of communication and transport.

The international nature, impartiality and neutrality of the Red Cross stand it in good stead, enabling it to respond quickly to needs in many different situations.

Despite its harnessing of modern technology, the Red Cross intends to remain a relief agency with a human dimension. It knows its most important asset is its human resources - millions of men, women and young people who channel their urge to help through their National Society. In an age when the individual feels he counts for less, Red Cross is saying people matter -- and holding out a lifeline.

Time to laugh L.L. out of existence?

The United States-controlled Little League Inc., tilted its rules recently to shut out tiny Taiwan from this year's baseball playoffs. Seems Taiwan's been winning too often.

But the "official" reason given by Little League executives is even more hysterical. They announced they couldn't afford to ferry in teams from far-off places because they have already blown $250,000 in court battles last year keeping girls from playing on the boys' teams!

Means Moe Druick, director of Canadian Little League Inc. "everytime we were sued by a mother wanting her daughter on a boy's team, we had to hire a lawyer to answer it."

As Montreal sports columnist John Robertson acidly put it, "If there's anything more demeaning than losing to a bunch of Orientals -- it's exposing America's red-blooded young athletes to potential defeat by the pre-teen feminist movement!"

Robertson said the whole infantile controversy makes him want to "throw up".

Isn't it time Canadian coaches and parents laughed the entire pressure-cooker, win-mad Little League system clear out of existence? We should set up more community leagues to serve ALL boys and girls interested in playing team sports -- teach them expertise, sportspeoplehip -- and let them have some FUN.

While F.L. Trudeau, M.E., Stoco, was repairing an 8-day clock the main spring and arbor suddenly broke, giving the wheel a rapid reverse whirl, and flying out of the movement struck Mr. Trudeau on the left hand, cutting off half of the nail of the index finger.

The sawmill at Actinolite, owned by T. Killingbeck, was destroyed by fire. They succeeded in saving the engine, but all the belting and other fixtures went up in smoke. The lumber was fortunately piled at a considerable distance from the mill, otherwise the loss would have been more serious.

The Red Cross Hospital at Coe Hill was officially opened and dedicated to the work of mercy among the citizens of the northern part of Hastings County.

Among the successful Madoc students receiving their degrees from the University of Toronto this week are: Jane Symon, who obtained her honor B.A. in Modern History and Modern Languages; Moira Watson, who obtained her honor B.A. in Sociology; and Alex M. Watson, who obtained his M.A. in English.

Fatally scalded by escaping steam while working atop a factory boiler at the Hunter Veneer Plant, at Tweed, Bert Cornell, age 50, of that village, died in Belleville General Hospital. Cornell, an employee of the firm working the night shift and was said to have been working on top of the boiler making some repairs when the blast of scalding steam caught him. Severely scalded, he was able to make his way down the ladder to the boiler room floor. He was given first aid by Dr. M.G. Dales and was sent to Belleville Hospital, where he died at 9:30 in the morning. The accident occurred near midnight. A second employee at the plant, a man named Marson, suffered second degree scalds on his arm, but these were said not to be serious.

A Midget Softball League with Tom Burnside as president, and Roy Downey as secretary, was re-organized here. The schedule will get underway at the completion of examinations. Teams and captains have been selected and the following teams will compete, Ivanhoe, Legion, Kiwanis, Community Club and Elks.

The Government of Ontario approved a grant of $2,950 to the Moira River Conservation Authority. This sum is 50 per cent of the estimated cost of developing the Vanderwater Conservation area. Acquired by the authority in 1958, the area consists of 415 acres in the Twp. of Hungerford, County of Hastings. As part of the 1960 program for the area, the government grant will enable the authority to gravel the area roads.

Madoc Village Council held their meetings in the Madoc Public Library for the summer months. In a special meeting of the Council, the bylaw setting the tax rate of the village for 1960 was passed with the mill rates being -- Commercial, 106; Residential, 99.

Want news from 'our town'

Would you kindly send us the Review from Madoc as we would sure like to get some news from home. How is everyone in "our town", hope you are fine and give them our regards.

Just returned from a trip to Mexico, Las Vegas, Las Vegas and we sure enjoyed our holiday although four weeks is just too much.

Visited the Carl Rollins family in L.A. Carl is of Cooper and Dee is from Millbridge one of the Ramsay clan they are in good shape.

We have returned to the grind stone again and I sure was glad to hear the news that Peter Ramsay has been selected to represent the handicapped in Britain, as Peter is my brother.

Queensboro and area highlights

Mrs. Thos. Ash celebrated her 85th birthday on Sunday, June 1 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Holmes. Although confined to bed, she enjoyed the day, visiting with members of her family: Mr. and Mrs. Orrville Ash and Laurie, of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ash, of Madoc. Mrs. Claude Keene visited her on Saturday evening, also Mrs. Frank Cleveland, both of Cooper.

Mrs. Doreen Lanzarotta, Mr. Phillip Lanzarotta, Misses Debbie and Jody Lanzarotta, of Toronto, were weekend visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Budinsky.

Mrs. John Thompson spent a few days in Toronto last week and visited her husband in Toronto General Hospital.

Several ladies from here attended the Lilac Tea in Bethesda Church June 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reid, Holloway, and Mrs. Claude Keene and Mrs. Frank Cleveland, Cooper visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Holmes Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Franklin spent Sunday last with Mr. and Mrs. Allan Herrington at their cottage at Belmont Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Franklin were dinner guests on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Foley, of Madoc township.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Franklin, Havelock, were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Franklin on Sunday.

Madoc Cadet Corp tours air base

Eighteen cadets of Centre Hastings Cadet Corp No. 385 and four officers arrived at Canadian Forces Base Trenton Saturday, June 7, to begin a tour of the air base that included being shown a Boeing 707 and the rescue station.

They were then taken to the mess hall for a light lunch.

After lunch, the boys went for a one and a half hour flight in a Hercules aircraft, flying over Oshawa, Peterborough, Belleville, Trenton, and then back to the base.

The boys found it a thrilling experience to be able to go into the cockpit and sit by the pilot, listening to ground and air communications.

After the ride, they returned home in anticipation of their inspection the following day.

It will be moved from its present location on Russell Street to the Athletic Field adjacent to the Senior Swimming area.

Joint parish service attracts 160 members

The parish of Madoc, Bannockburn and Millbridge held a joint parish morning service at St. Bartholomew, Bannockburn June 1.

For the first time, the three congregations joined together for a time of fellowship and Christian witness. The church was filled with over 160 persons present. A bus donated by Mr. B. Bateman brought many parishioners from Madoc while many other people drove their cars and brought friends.

The choirs of St. John's and St. Oswald's Millbridge, filled the sanctuary and sang the service in full.

Rev. J. H. Thompson conducted the service and preached on "What is a church for?" Mr. Alan Danford, lay reader, opened the service while Robert Hudson read the scripture lesson.

Attending this service were the Rev. and Mrs. Alan Brandon, of Newboro, along with their friends from Berkshire, England.

Old parishioners and friends joined in as well in making this combined parish service such a success.

Following the service, the choir paraded through the village, then returned to the basement of the church to join the congregation in a lunch served by the ladies of St. Bartholomew.

YEARS IN INDIA

Priest on holiday

Rev. Leo Forestell, who has been a teacher in St. Roberts School, Darrjeeling India for the last twenty-one years is home on vacation.

On Sunday June 8th, his many relatives came to his home parish in Marmora for a re-union and dinner in his honour at the Sacred Heart Parish Hall, Marmora, Ont.

About two hundred and fifty cousins and their families from Ottawa, Montreal, Kingston, Oshawa, Toronto, Peterborough, Campbellford, Tweed, Madoc and one cousin from Wainwright Alberta were present for the occasion.

After a delicious dinner, the group was called to order by Leo Roy, brother-in-law of Father Forestell, chairman for the occasion. Wilfrid Forestell, called on Father Forestell to address his many relatives and he told the history of the Forestell ancestors coming from Ireland and then mentioned his experiences in India.

Rev. Scanlan, parish priest of Marmora, welcomed everyone and expressed surprise at Father Forestell having so many relatives.

The heads of every family introduced their families and the rest of the day was spent in visiting and reminiscing about the past. Many of the relatives had not seen each other for years.

Father Forestell will visit in this area for about two weeks and then will take a tour of Western Canada, before returning to India.

Arthur Sweet devoted over 50 years to serving people

A man, who devoted over 50 years of his life to serving the people of Marmora, died last week.

Arthur Sweet of 24 North Hastings Street, died at Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday, June 4, 1975, at the age of 87. The funeral was held at St. Andrew's United Church on Friday, June 6 with interment following in Marmora Protestant Cemetery. Rev. John Peters officiated at the service and bearers were Robert Sweet, Patrick, Larry and Brian Bertrand, Jack Williams and Greg Sisson.

Mr. Sweet and other members of his family supplied the people of Marmora for over 50 years with some of the finest bread, rolls and pastry ever made.

The business was started by his father, William Sweet, at the corner of Main and Madoc Streets. The two-storey apartment building standing there now replaces the original building which the family sold and which was later destroyed by fire.

Mr. Sweet was born at Blairton where the family lived before coming to Marmora in the early 1900's. The family home on North Hastings Street was built about that time and remains in the family to-day.

In 1921, the Sweets built a large red brick two-storey building at the corner of Madoc and Forsyth Streets, to accommodate a bakeshop and grocery store. William Sweet died the following year and his sons Arthur and Frank took over the business. When Frank Sweet suffered strokes that incapacitated him for three years, Miss Jennie Sweet took over as assistant to her brother Arthur. Frank died in 1955.

The building was sold in 1953 to Charlie Kelly, later resold to Charlie Cassidy, then a man named Noonan and later still to Tom Cassidy, who operates a furniture store and funeral home, now.

Arthur Sweet learned his trade at a bakery school in Peterborough. Although "Family planning"

A family planning Hastings and Prince Edward counties program is currently in the growth and development stage at the health unit. "Family planning" means individuals planning voluntarily to have the number of children they want, when and if they want them.

Family planning is often synonymous with "conception control."

At present, the Program offers three services to the residents of Hastings and Prince Edward counties. They are --

--Information concerning all eight contraceptive methods.

--Individual counselling regarding family life, human sexuality and conception control.

--Dispensing of prescription contraceptives, in cases of financial difficulties, on a referral basis from the local doctors.

The co-ordinator of the family planning program is Mrs. Gale DePauli, public health nurse. The above services are free and can be obtained through Mrs. DePauli by telephoning 966-5500, or in her office at the health unit, 208 Bridge St. E., Belleville, or by requesting an individual home visit.

Community response is welcome for the program's healthy development.

he never married, Mr. Sweet was very fond of young people. He taught Sunday School for many years at the Presbyterian Church (where the new Free Methodist Church not stands) until church union in 1925 and then at St. Andrew's United Church.

He was made an honorary elder of St. Andrew's, after serving many years on the church council. A memorial service was held on Thursday evening at the Howden Funeral Home by A.F. and A.M. #222, for Mr. Sweet who was Past Master of the Lodge.

A very quiet, retiring person, Mr. Sweet will be missed from his neighbourhood as he was frequently to be seen as he went about caring for his garden and flowers.

Mr. Sweet is survived by two sisters, Miss Jennie Sweet and Mrs. William (Bessie) Tinsdill, both at home. Three brothers, Charles, Frank and William and one sister Alma predeceased.

The bakeshop business in Mr. Sweet's day was very different from the gas fired operation used to-day. Miss Jennie Sweet recalls that every fall many cords of hardwood were purchased and stored for use that winter. Many times more had to be purchased.

The cost of textbooks keeps increasing and our budgets keep declining....

Many of our texts do get left at home by forgetful students. If you have any copies of Library books or Secondary School textbooks lying around your house, you would save us all money by having them returned.

Please call the high school 473-4251 or 473-4252 between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m., any day this week or next.

We will pick them up, if you call us!

Besides supplying the residents of Marmora with their bread and other items, shipments were made every other day to places as far away as Maynooth. Nine or ten large baskets containing the bread were taken to the C.N.R. station east of Marmora and loaded on the train for their northern customers.

150th ANNIVERSARY OF FOUNDING

THE MOST REV. J. L. Wilhelm, Archbishop of Kingston (centre) was in Marmora last Friday for celebrations marking the 150th anniversary of the founding of the first Roman Catholic Church in the area. The archbishop is seen leaving Sacred Heart Church, following celebration of a Mass of Thanksgiving.

OPP check 8 mishaps

Officers of the Madoc Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated eight accidents during the past week. Damages amounted to $3,675.00 with one person injured and one fatality. Three persons were charged in connection with these collisions.

Six thefts were investigated.

There were four reports of break and enter.

Eight reports of wilful damage were investigated.

Two disturbances reported.

There were eight persons charged for having liquor under the Liquor Control Act to Ontario.

Approximately 40 other occurrences have been reported to this office, some of which include traffic control, trespassers and erratic driving.

Co-op sponsoring 4-H club

Madoc Co-op have agreed to sponsor the Madoc 4-H Horse and Pony Club and will provide trophies for their Achievement Day, members of the club were told last week.

Training films scheduled for the meeting were unavailable and were set over for another date.

In other business at the meeting, leader Mrs. Irish answered questions on training and caring for horses. The members also decided to help raise money by holding a car wash in a few weeks, time and place yet to be decided.

Only seven of the 12 club members were present at the meeting, held at the home of Jennifer Sprague. The next meeting, due to be held June 17, will take place at the home of Jane Robinson.

Many topics on agenda clergy meet

Insurance on church property, the support to the cathedral's renovations, music and photography at weddings and a clergy meeting in New York State were on the agenda last week as the clergy of Hastings Deanery met in St. John the Baptist Anglican Church.

Rev. J. H. Thompson, rector of the parish, celebrated Holy Communion, assisted by Rev. Virgil Earle, rector of St. Margaret's on the Hill, Belleville. The meeting was chaired by the Rural Dean, Canon Peter Tett, rector of St. Thomas, Belleville.

Included in the discussions were a clergy diocesan conference at Prescott June 26, summer holidays and assistance and the fall budget which has been called for November 8 to be discussed by Synod.

The next meeting prior to this Synod will be held at Coe Hill Sept. 29.

The ladies of St. John's served the dinner and thanks was expressed by Rev. George Elson of Bancroft.

Madoc plays host to Anglican Church Women

St. John the Baptist A.C.W., Madoc, was host to the Hastings A.C.W. Deanery meeting May 27.

Representations from the parishes of Christ Church, St. Thomas and St. Margaret on the Hill, Belleville, Trenton, Frankford, Stirling, Bancroft, Roslin, and Madoc, attended this Mission Rally. Sixty ladies were present for the event, along with Rev. A. W. Smith, Rev. George Elson, of Bancroft, and Rev. J. H. Thompson.

Madoc ACW president Miss L. Phillips welcomed the ladies, with short devotions conducted by the clergy. Nicola Thompson played the piano for the hymns.

Hastings ACW president Mrs. Betty Price brought greetings to the Deanery and thanked everyone for their support during the past year. As she had been re-elected for another term, she again called on the ladies to make her job an easy one by giving her the same support.

Mrs. Mary Mackey, Diocesan president, was introduced, bringing greetings from the Diocesan committee.

Mrs. Kathleen Thompson introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Joan Elson.

Mrs. Elson had served two terms with the Wycliffe Bible Translators in New Guinea in the Pacific as an assistant in the drawing, printing and publishing of bibles and Christian material.

She gave a detailed outline, first of the history of Wycliffe, of the organization, principles and policies that the missionary outreach had in various parts of the world.

Mrs. Gladys Nayler expressed thanks to Mrs. Elson for her talk on an organization of which few people knew.

A collection was taken and $75 was given to support an Anglican missionary working for the WBT in South America.

Rev. Alfred Smith closed the meeting followed by a social time. Mrs. Betty Price thanked the Madoc ladies for the evening.

A member of LOL, Black Lodge and IOOF #179, Frank Arnold Palmer, of RR 2, Madoc, died June 4 at the Hastings Manor in Belleville. He was in his 81st. year.

Born in Madoc township, he was the husband of the late Merle Irwin, and the son of the late Herbert Palmer.

He is survived by his children Mary (Mrs. I. Ambler) of Paris, Ont.; Winona Palmer, of Peterborough; Doris (Mrs. G. Wiley) of Frankford; and Madeline (Mrs. D. McKinnon) of RR 2, Madoc.

He was the brother of Laura (Mrs. G. Begley) of Hanover, and Roy Palmer, of Toronto.

A retired farmer, he attended the Cedar School, and was a member of the United Church.

Services were held June 7 from the MacKenzie Funeral Home, Madoc, with Rev. D. Heard and Rev. E. Hawkes officiating.

Interment was in the Hazzard's Cemetery. Pallbearers were Allan Thompson, Bill Glover, Merv Lees, Allen Ketcheson, Allen Franks and Stan Moorcroft. Memorial services were held June 5 by Black Lodge.

Merry Mixers

wrap up season

The Merry Mixers of Madoc held their last night of modern square dancing last week, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ashton.

Glen and Janice Andrew graduated and received their certificate and pin.

In the election of officers for the new year, Harry Ashton was installed as caller; Milton and Lois Elliott as president; Floyd and Margaret McLuckie as vice president; Ethel Bateman as secretary; Helen Roemer as treasurer.

OTTAWA -- Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet last week released the full agenda for the national seminar on consumer product marketing and the law, which takes place in Ottawa on June 12 and 13 at the Chateau Laurier Hotel.

"This meeting of industry, consumer and government representatives will provide an unique opportunity for free and full discussion of the federal laws which govern the marketing of products for consumer use in Canada", he said.

The program is based upon a series of nine workshops. These sessions cover a range of federal legislation and programs, including advertising, food labelling, non-food labelling, intellectual property, consumer product safety, metric conversion and measurement methods, performance labelling, food standards and competition policy.

Information and general policy guidelines will be outlines to the delegates, who will have the opportunity to respond to the programs and express their views and concerns.

Mr. Ouellet will open the seminar on June 12, with a keynote address. Following the first set of three workshops, Dr. Sylvia Ostry, deputy minister of consumer and corporate affairs, will participate at a luncheon for the delegates. The afternoon workshops are followed by a dinner at which the chairman of the Food Prices Review Board, Mrs. Beryl Plumtre, will speak.

After the final series of workshops on Friday morning, there will be a luncheon and question and answer session with the five cabinet ministers whose programs have been discussed through the seminar.

Madoc Sr. Citizens plan special week

The May 14 meeting of the Madoc Senior Citizen's Club was held in the church parlor with the vice-president, Frank O'Rourke in the chair in the absence of the president.

The meeting was opened by a welcome to all and a poem "A Friend Who Just Stands By," followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison and a reading "Mom's homemade bread."

Those having birthdays in May were asked to stand, and a poem was read for them.

Games were played, followed by lunch. The meeting of May 28 opened with the president, Mrs. Broadworth reading a poem.

Correspondence and business were dealt with.

Next week is Senior Citizens Week, with many activities and entertainments planned.

Mrs. Frank Palmer was in charge of the program and all sang "The More We Get Together" and an action song.

Mrs. George Palmer gave a reading "My Grandmother" and Mrs. DeClair, one on Education.

Mrs. O'Rourke conducted a game and a contest by Mrs. McMurray.

Hostesses today are Mrs. Margaret Post, Carmelita O'Riordan, Emma Reid, Grace Raney, Jess Reid and Jim Rollins.

C Bronson, C/I.D. Empey, Second in Command C/Capt. Wayne Blair.

This was the first time a joint annual inspection has been attempted in this area. Both cadet corps are joined by one particular command bond and both wear the Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment badge. However, other common factors exist, such as the central aim or reason for existence to train cadets.

The programs of both corps have provided a variety of experience for cadets. Local headquarters training consisting of drill, weapons, map and range subjects have been augmented by outdoor exercises and tours throughout the area. The corps have also participated in civic functions such as parades and the local poppy fund campaigns.

The General Inspection and Salute was taken by Lt. Col. Duffy.

During the afternoon drills were held under C/MWO Jacob, and a display of weapons under C/Lt. Kraszewski. The girls platoon of cadets demonstrated a drill under C/Capt. M. L. Wood.

Lawn displays were then on view, including a first aid display under C/Capt. W. Blair, the tactics display under C/Lt. F. Kelly and bush craft under C/Sgt. J. D. Lykins. O/C C Bronson presented a display of World War I and II medals.

The CHSS Cadet Band, under Band Major Clinton Gaebel, also performed during the day, including a band drill with leading drummer R. Rodgers.

Centre Hastings cadets receiving awards during the ceremony included a Senior NCO proficiency award to C/WO Laverne Rohrbach, presented by Sec. Lt. Johnson; the Excellent Award for Leadership went to O/Capt. Wayne Blair and C/Lt. Frank Kelly, presented by Capt. Belisle; the Band Award went to Cindy Redding, Anna Patterson, and Belinda McKnight, presented by Capt. Thompson and D. Empey; the best cadet in ranks was C/Capt. Ron Adams, presented by Richard Hagerman; and the Kincaid trophy, for the best cadet in corps, to C/Capt. Wayne Blair, presented by Mr. R. Henderson.

RECEIVES DEGREE

Jung Mah, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mah of Madoc, received his degree as Doctor of Medicine from Queen's University at the May convocation. Jung was a graduate of Madoc Public and Centre Hastings Secondary Schools, prior to studying medicine.

Grads face problem filled world

By Garnet Pigden

Young people leaving school this year are coming up to the starting line in a world filled with problems.

Nevertheless, the graduates should keep alive their hope of an improved future.

Last week, the graduating grade 13's at Centre Hastings Secondary School received their notices of acceptance to higher institutions of education. Many grads will be going to university and some are seeking their future in particular fields at college, but whatever they attend, they will have the realization of the vast storehouse of knowledge that is available to them.

With the acquisition of more and more knowledge, the secondary school graduates will no doubt feel the pangs of discontent with things as they are at present. By being exposed to a new horizon they may experience the desire and the will to change things for the better.

However, you cannot do as you see fit. You can only do what can be done. You may know of something that is wrong or something desirable that is missing. The evidence of maturity is that you show the patience and the guidance necessary to find the way to set things right. Proposals for improvement of any sort need to be positive, pointed and purposeful.

Change is usually more acceptable to the young than to the old. But there is an experience gap between the young and the old - the young people have not lived through world wars and depressions. Young people are impatient to establish change. However, of alterations in the educational system and society, the young people should practise a little tolerant understanding in attempting to achieve their idealistic ends.

The youth of today are often charged with being surrounded by the chains of idealism. Idealism usually leads to very productive realities. It is possible for youth to shape the future of things, but not if they overlook history.

There is a pleasant feeling of security in using old things and thoughts wisely. This year's grads cannot avoid making the same mistakes as previous generations if they neglect the importance of the past. Learning about the answers to problems similar to those of the present day which were made by ancient scholars will help today's grads to search for an intelligent solution and avoid the mistakes made in the past.

Graduation day may seem to some students as just another day, nothing has really changed. But it has changed for each student. Last week he was being instructed under educational enforcement and this week he is on his own, plotting his own path.

A graduate will find that he was safe and secure under school discipline and guidance and now when he is part of the working world he will encounter many difficulties which were not exposed to him at high school. He must learn to cope and to adapt to situations as they arise.

The real joy in life is being able to accomplish or be a part of things which show a beneficial result. Competition with others for place and prestige has great appeal, but the most challenging ambition is to excel yourself each year.

Having a set course, and a desire to do something to prove your worth, gives you the drive to surmount obstacles and attain achievement. This is far from the lazy-brained idea of some students who believe that they are in school and society to enjoy themselves with vanishing whimsical pleasures.

Common sense tells us that drifting from interest to interest is a dissatisfying way to live. We become superior only by preparing to be superior. Perfectionism is not an undesirable characteristic but an admirable trait.

It is an ambition of young and old alike to seek to raise their level of living while enjoying life in accordance with their particular set of values. If people don't consider what is best, but only what is pleasurable, then they are not better off than the most senseless animals.

This year's graduates should try to cultivate the love of mental adventure. They should exercise their mind muscles and strain them a little. It is said that an athlete who practises improves, but the athlete who works hard, pushes himself to the point of exhaustion, will cross the finish line a champion. The attainment of new knowledge is an occasion for jubilation and the source of lasting pleasure.

If you follow the urge to know, then you will escape the manacles of conformity. If you seek to improve yourself and enrich your interests then you eventually obtain true individualism.

Within the next few years, the graduating class of 1975 will have had countless amusing, frustrating, disappointing and happy experiences. As the grads walk the sometimes rocky, sometimes paved road to success, they will have to adapt to many situations and overcome obstacles which block the path. Sir William Osler, Canadian-born physician who became Regius professor of medicine in the University of Oxford, said to graduating students that they should nature "coolness and presence of mind under all circumstances, calmness amid storms, clearness of judgment in moments of great peril."

At no stage in his career should a graduate think it wise to allow luck to pull him through a crisis. It is often heard at graduation ceremonies a cherry "Good luck next year" accompanied by a reassuring slap on the back. Actually he will rely on skill to surmount difficulties, not merely luck.

You should search for a place where your special qualities can be used to their best advantage. Find a firm place from which to push off as any sprinter would desire. Once the sturdy support is found, the lever of your particular qualities will move any obstacle.

Much of the misery of life is caused by efforts to control the uncontrollable. The wise and happy person is he who applies himself to controlling the controllable items and refuses to worry about the others.

This year's graduates should always strive to do their best. A successful high school sprinter was asked "What do you think about when you are poised at the starting line?" He replied, "I just say to myself, 'run as fast as you can'."

Belleville Yardmen here

The Purina-Ettes will play the Belleville Yardmen in Madoc Thursday night at 8:00 p.m. The Yardmen team has yet to lose a game this year in the schedule. However, as the Purina-Ettes defeated them once this season in an exhibition game, Thursday's match should prove interesting.

The Review extends apologies to the Purina-Ettes for some errors that appeared in last week's write-up.

Darlene Bedore was the winning pitcher for the Purina-Ettes. She was chosen as the most valuable player and she received the voucher from the Madoc Dairy.

Ginny Irwin, centre field for Mobil Plastics was chosen most valuable player from the visiting team. She won the voucher from Kramp's Happy Hut.

Aileen Barr does not play for the Purina-Ettes, nor was she chosen as the most valuable player. Also, she was not the winning pitcher.

Another pet - this time a 'pig' ★ By Mrs. Agnes Gillette

In addition to Black Dog, Grey Cat and Old Goat, I decided to go one step further and acquire a pig. I was fortunate in securing a nice healthy young pig that was almost fully grown.

It was a delight and surprise to discover that she was not only a novelty, but a most intelligent sow who soon became as much of a pet as either Cat or Dog.

I decided to name her "Baby," a somewhat incongruous name, for the animal, but it suited her perfectly.

She liked nothing better than to be petted and made a fuss of, having her back scratched and spoken to in baby language. The peak of her delight was to be scrubbed with warm soapy water until her skin glowed pink and clean beneath the short wiry hair.

No matter what corner of the field she would be happily rooting, I had only to call her name to have her run to my side, frolicsome as any puppy, bestowing her affection wholeheartedly. We had a happy little animal family.

On going walking in the bush, a gun was quite unnecessary, what with Black Dog scampering with reckless abandon and Old Goat charging indiscriminately at anything that caught his fancy and Baby ambling along, now touching the 200-pound mark, but managing to keep up a steady flow of grunts and conversation, remarking on the beauties of nature and the appalling state and our poor old world was in and other such weighty matters. We made our own little trails through the bush and the animals soon became familiar with them.

Then came the day when it was obvious that Baby would soon be having her own little family. Naturally I was pleased and excited as well as concerned and just a little worried.

Writing to the Department of Agriculture for advice and information, I discovered them to be most helpful, providing me with pamphlets on the various problems to which brood sows are susceptible and advising how best to care for pigs at such times.

Following their advice to the best of my ability, I cleaned and sterilized her pen as best I could. Baby shared in this responsibility by keeping her bedding clean though rather untidy, continually scattering the straw until she had it in such a way as pleased her.

It was a black day for me when she fell sick and was unable to stand on her feet. An emergency visit from the veterinarian at the cost of $15, then only to be told that I had almost killed the animal by overfeeding.

He spoke rather reproachfully as though I ought to have known better. However, he did manage to get her back on her feet. Before leaving he left medication along with strict instructions as to her feeding, this I proceeded to follow faithfully.

Time passed rather slowly in the days that followed. Often I would awaken in the dark hours of the night and begin to worry about Baby. At such times I would get up and, lantern in hand, would hurry down the laneway to her pen.

Dog was quite philosophical about these nocturnal goings on, but Cat would react indignantly at having her slumber disturbed. The expectant mother, however, did enjoy those little unexpected visits. Not bothering to rise, she would remain comfortably in her bed of straw, exchanging small talk.

The night before the happy event took place, it was difficult to concentrate on everyday matters. Black Dog was nervous, Grey Cat was nervous and even Old Goat was more restless than usual finding himself tied up securely in his shed, he pawed and bunted his horns against the old boards.

Animals have retained the sixth sense lost to humans in ages past through lack of use, but the four-legged creatures need neither voice nor writings to be aware of events and happenings still to come.

The restlessness was infectious. Poor Baby, too, was irritable and cantankerous, so foreign to her nature. She tried repeatedly to leave her pen.

Fortunately this was impossible since the lower half of the door was securely fastened and though she was endowed with strength seldom put to use, the door held despite her excited violent banging against it which frustrated and angered her because her instinct was warning her of a new experience.

There was little that I could do, other than lean over the door, talking to her, in what I hoped was a soothing voice.

There was little or no sleep that night. I found myself pacing back and forth along the laneway, more like an expectant father than a woman old enough to know better.

Cat and Dog seemed quite satisfied to watch the performance, moving restlessly around. Towards dawn, I called them and retraced my steps to the house and there I shut both animals in, much to their indignation at being deprived of their liberty.

Making their displeasures heard in a chorus of combined barking and loud meowing as I closed the door firmly behind me.

Holding the lantern high, I made my way gingerly towards the pen, missing the comfort of Black Dog padding along by my side.

Reaching the pig pen, but not wishing to disturb Baby, as I could tell by the sounds that came clearly through the stillness of the night that she was giving birth, I leaned against the old boards of her house. Hanging the lantern on a convenient nail, I waited, shivering slightly in the coolness of the predawn.

There was nothing for me to do but stare into the darkness. Suddenly, without actually realizing it for a moment, I became aware that I was watching the dawn of a new day.

The eastern sky was lightening almost imperceptibly. Even as I watched, narrow ribbons of red slowly pushed their way over the horizon, showing between the darkness of the tall pines.

As the red streaks rose higher in the heavens, they grew stronger and solidified, signalling to the sleeping world the birth of a new day.

Gradually, the eastern sky became a sea of flaming red, and from the field beyond, a veil of white soft mist rose to greet 'ol and fade. An early bird trilled its song, awakening the sleeping life of the pine woods.

Moving softly, I opened the lower gate of the pen and gazed with awe upon this second miracle of nature, eight healthy little piglets nuzzled at Baby's huge swollen side. She grunted a greeting as I entered.

She was tired, but maternal love glowed in her eyes as she watched me pour a giant dose of her tranquilizer, obligingly opening her mouth to swallow it, then laying her head back on the straw, closing her eyes in peace as the newborn pushed and nuzzled, their tiny feet moving at random over her still bloated body.

Returning to the house, I brewed a pot of strong tea, fed Black Dog and Grey Cat, then following the example of Baby, I lay down and drifted into sleep.

June is Dairy Month...

Milk is often called "the perfect food" because of its high nutritional quality; an excellent source of calcium, riboflavin, protein, and a good source of phosphorus and thiamine. However, not everyone likes milk. But most people enjoy "eating" their milk in the form of cheese. It takes 100 gallons of milk to produce 10 pounds of cheese. No matter what type of cheese you select, you can be assured of a nutritionally "perfect food." The choice of flavor and texture is endless.

Nursing homes changing

FLORENCE MARTIN, now of Campbellford and formerly of Norwood, is one of 30 residents in the Centre Hastings Nursing Home, Deloro. She is seen with home owner, Michael Horvath, and a copy of her home-town paper, the Norwood Register, which she receives every week to keep up with 'what's happening back home'.

BETTY HORVATH, Myrna Neal and Lilith Lummiss stop for a chat in a main corridor of the Centre Hastings Nursing Home. [Mid-Week Photos].

Pleasant atmosphere in modern premises brings waiting list

Big events planned for special week

There will be big goings on at the Centre Hastings Nursing Home, Deloro, come Nursing Home Week, June 15-21.

Sunday, June 15 will feature a community service for patients and residents.

Monday, members of the Deloro Village council, and their mates, will be guests at dinner.

Tuesday, a social, and musical program, will be presented.

Wednesday, a square dance set from the Frankfort Club of the Trent Valley Squares will entertain.

Thursday features an open house at the Deloro Community Centre for patients, relatives and staff.

Friday will be a 'day off' and Saturday will feature a garden party.

Thirty residents in Deloro home

Present residents at the Centre Hastings Nursing Home are Mrs. Ida Grant, Mrs. Ida Ham, Mrs. Augusta Hancock, Mrs. Lilith Lummiss, Mrs. Florence Martin, Mrs. Maude McNeely, Mrs. Anita McNamara, Thomas McKeown, Mrs. Vivian Naylor, Mrs. Catherine Phillips, Mrs. Elizabeth Ray, Mrs. Jane Robson, Mrs. Mary Rorke, Mrs. Sarah J. Rutledge, Mrs. Cora Wellman, Mrs. Hilda Turpin, Mrs. Mary Bigelow, Mrs. Lena Bird, Mrs. Lillian Boise, Miss Gertrude Burns, Amos Caverly, Mrs. Janet Campbell, Mrs. Edith Davidson, Mrs. Emma Dawson, Mrs. Estile Dietrick, Mrs. Blanche Downey, Mrs. Margaret Downey, Mrs. Mary Franklin and Wilfred Generoux.

About half hail from Madoc, with the rest coming from the Marmora, Campbellford, Gilmour, Norwood and Havelock areas:

NDP CAMPAIGN WORKERS STRIKE

Win beer rights!

A school for New Democratic Party campaign managers was held recently at Cedar Glen camp at Bolton, just north of Toronto. Attending the camp was Neil MacLean, of Marmora, and Al McNeill, a Tweed public school teacher. Of the about 100 delegates from Ontario, Mr. McNeill and Mr. MacLean were the only representatives from Hastings-Peterborough.

For the purpose of educating delegates on how to run a campaign, a simulated campaign was held. The cornerstone of a NDP campaign is canvassing, which requires volunteer workers of the signmaking Committee who had formed a union.

The issue was the working conditions, specifically, the absence of beer in the backroom.

Collective bargaining was begun, but negotiations faltered and the union in rebellion against the dictates of management (Michael Lewis) picketed the committee room.

The beer was bought and tranquility restored.

Although the situation was at times awkward, it was with appreciated glee that canvassers and other workers stopped by to see how the "union" was making out. It's victory was celebrated by all, management included.

Nursing homes are no longer the place elderly people once feared.

Now, bright, breezy and friendly, nursing homes are finding a growing list of senior citizens eagerly awaiting the opportunity to become residents.

The Centre Hastings Nursing Home, Deloro, now 'home' to 30 area senior citizens, is a prime example.

Residents like the home - they are well cared for, have good variety in their meals, and find many things to do to pass the hours.

"If we admitted everybody that wants in, we'd have to have another new addition," notes owners and operators Mr. and Mrs. Mike Horvath.

"We've always had a waiting list, and guess we always will. We have no plans for further expansion at present."

Completely modernized in an expansion program last year, the home has private, semi-private and ward rooms, a chapel, dining room, two television rooms, and a sun deck.

The home, registered with the Ontario Nursing Homes Association, provides a lot of employment - 28 full and part time staffers draw regular pay cheques.

A continuing education program is run, with employees going to seminars and taking in-service courses.

Residents have 24 hour registered nursing care, and the services of Dr. H.G. Parkin, of Marmora, the advisory physician, and Dr. C. Derry, and Dr. Arun Dosaj, both of Madoc.

Campbellford, Belleville, Peterborough and Kingston Hospitals have affiliation with the home, and provide treatment when the need arises.

Residents are free to have their meals in the dining room, or enjoy them in their bedrooms, and about 75 per cent prefer the dining room atmosphere.

About half the residents go for walks in the out-of-doors in the nicer weather; and take advantage of the second storey sundeck.

Many outsiders frequent the premises. Volunteers come in to assist the residents - taking them for walks, writing letters, or just plain chatting.

"But we could always use more," notes Mrs. Bernice Young, of Deloro, who helps out at the home.

"All volunteers are welcome." Female residents like a hair do once in a while - what gal doesn't like to spruce up? The home obliges, with hair dresser Mrs. Hazel Lavender of Marmora visiting once a week.

Some residents like to engage in handiwork - and the resulting masterpieces are a sight to behold. Some of the work decorates the home's corridors.

Area clergymen of Roman Catholic, Anglican, United, Pentecostal and Free Methodist faiths take turns conducting Wednesday evening services; and an average 90 per cent of the residents attend each week, regardless of personal denominations.

Of the 30 residents, 15 are listed as United, six as Anglicans, five as Roman Catholics, and one each as Free Methodist, Baptist and Pentecostal. One lists no denomination.

The oldest resident is Mrs. Ada Ham, who will be 97 years old October 23rd. The average age, of the residents, is 87.

Young people take an interest with church groups from Sacred Heart R.C. Church and St. Andrew's United Church having been out to run bingo games.

Choirs from St. Paul's Anglican Church, and St. Andrew's, have favored with musical nights.

And Mr. Horvath, noted as the residents' 'choir leader,' conducts a lively sing song before the evening meal once a week.

"We make them sing for their supper that night," he laughs.

'One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, PO Box 267, Elmira

It strikes me that farmers are the most progressive group of producers in Canada.

How many noticed a story late last month about major car manufacturers finally deciding that buyers really want small cars?

After 20 years, they finally got the message.

If farmers were as backward as their public image makes them, this country would be starving to death. No other segment of the work force has adapted so quickly and unobtrusively to modern methods than the farmers of Ontario. If it had taken them 20 years to adapt to technological developments and the needs of consumers, they would all be out of business.

Ford president Lee A. Iacocca is quoted as saying: "Buyers of new cars are making it clear that fuel economy is mighty important. We intend to stay in business so we're going to provide what they demand."

Did it take him 20 years to get that message? Small cars have been a big part of the market since 1955. Ford has continued to corrupt its small-cars for years. The company had one of the best small cars on the market with the original Mustang.

They had another success story with the original Thunderbirds. Then they deliberately re-styled them bigger and bigger.

General Motors did the same thing with Vauxhalls.

Detroit doesn't seem to have accepted, even now, what thousands have realized for years: a great number of people will lay out more dollars for a fuel-efficient car, convinced that over the long run energy shortages and higher gasoline costs make the smaller car a better buy.

To give you an example: I drive 22 miles to work and 22 miles back home five days a week. Some friends of ours went on a two-week vacation and gave us a small, foreign car for that period. I know it costs me more than $10 a week to keep my Detroit gasoline-guzzler going daily. I drove the small car for two weeks for less than $10.

Why has it taken American and Canadian car manufacturers this long to come to the same conclusion? Probably because those in decision-making positions drive the big gas-guzzlers on company money. They simply are not close enough to the man-on-the-street who keeps them in business.

That is why the family farm is a successful enterprise. The owner-manager of that farm is right there where decisions should be made. He is not only a farmer. He is a business man, a part-time accountant, a welder, a mechanic. He knows something about animal husbandry and crop specialization. He is an expert on weeds, fertilizers and fungi.

Because he is making important decisions — to him — every day, he has his finger on the pulse of his entire operation.

He is not sitting in an ivory tower removed from the rest of the world. He is studying markets and market trends every day. Whether most people believe it or not, he is one of the most knowledgeable small businessmen in Canada. He has to be to stay in business.

Perhaps his biggest advantage over the multi-national executive is his freedom to make decisions. The small farmer is not burdened with a huge bureaucratic machine. He is not surrounded by a group of staff-line experts who are eager to make impressions on the boss.

The farmer's independence keeps him effective.

Obviously he is effective. He is now feeding far more people than ever before in the history of mankind. In addition, he is doing much more than his share by producing surpluses to feed a hungry world.

One hundred years ago, one farmer produced enough to feed three people. Today, one farmer produces enough to feed 50 people.

If that isn't tremendous progress and adaptation to modern technology then I'll whistle at your wedding or dance at your funeral.

Warm spring causes weevil to develop much faster

The warm spring in Eastern Ontario that we have been experiencing will cause the alfalfa weevil to develop much faster. This leads to unusually early damage and farmers should be on the early watch this spring. Larva feeding within the stems and later on the leaves and buds cause most of the damage. Heavy infestations will result in shredded leaves and the entire field taking on a grayish colour.

Best control is to cut early and immediately remove all the forage from the field. This will insure that a period of time exists when food is unavailable to the weevil. Cut the alfalfa as low as possible to expose the larva to the hot drying sun and leave them without food in the stubble.

With early cutting chemical control is seldom necessary. The key is to examine each field twice a week. Different areas of the field should be inspected as the population can vary considerably within a field.

If damage is evident cut between late bud and first flower removing all forage from the field as soon as possible. Be sure to check the regrowth as larva may keep it trimmed as fast as it grows. If this is the case spraying will be required. Be sure to use only recommended chemicals to avoid toxicity problems.

With good management, a small garden can produce plenty of fresh greens.

"Avoid space-consuming crops, such as squash, cucumbers, melons, potatoes and corn," recommends Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist D.M. Sangster. "Concentrate on miniature tomatoes, peppers, lettuce, and radishes for efficient use of the area available."

Cucumbers can be trained to grow up a trellis, post or fence. Acorn squash, pole beans, malabar spinach and peas can also be trained to grow up supports. Staked full-size tomatoes take less room than full-size tomatoes.

Save trees when planning new homes

Imagine new subdivisions where large trees shade the lawns and houses. "They are hard to find," says Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist R.A. Fleming. "Many subdivisions are scraped clean of all vegetation before developments begins. Even when established trees are left, they frequently die from injuries caused by excavation and land grading. Excessive amounts of fill dumped on tree roots also cause death."

According to Mr. Fleming, more trees could be saved if tree wells or retaining walls were properly built around them. These must be planned before fill is added or a grade changed so that room can be left for their construction. The tree and an area beneath the spread of the branches — a minimum radius of 10 feet from the trunk — should be protected from machinery and earth-moving equipment.

Most tree wells require a radiating grid of drainage tile or loose stone fill, vertical tile connected to the loose stone fill or the tile grid, and a wall of tile, brick, cement blocks, cut stone, or fieldstone. For safety, metal or wooden grating may also be needed.

South Korea next world trouble spot?

By Don Fredericks

SEOUL, KOREA — (SF) — If you were taking bets on the next trouble spot in Asia, South Korea, and this capital of 6 million people would command pretty fair odds. It was that condition which took me here, on a break from Ottawa politics, on a foray into international affairs.

Having spoken to several dozen political and military leaders in the government of President Park Chung Hee, and having sipped a few cool ones over conversation with a few Western diplomats, I became convinced that shooting trouble of one degree or another is likely to occur here before the end of the year.

President Park's government and the regime of Kim Il Sung in the North are direct opposites. Critics call Park neo-fascist; Kim Il Sung's operation makes Albania seem slightly revisionist by comparison. In the wake of U.S. withdrawal from Southeast Asia, Kim is working hard to drum up support for another whack at the South. He's already been to Peking, and before high summer he'll be visiting Moscow, seeking manpower and weapon aid at best; tacit verbal support at least.

But his two Communist big brothers aren't likely to provide that support. Both are afraid that heightened tensions in Korea would lead to the re-arming of Japan, and should the U.S. stay in Korea and fight in a new war, things could rapidly go nuclear, forcing China and the Soviets to take sides.

Kim, however, is under considerable pressure for action of some kind against the South, because he's been holding out the promise of eventually unifying Korea under Communism for more than two decades.

President Park and his government — particularly the South Korean military — fear that Kim will embark on all-out war, aimed at overrunning the South quickly in a blitzkrieg campaign which would be over before the U.S. could react.

Western diplomats thought that was too severe a prediction. They pin-pointed, rather, the condition of five islands off the West coast of Korea, which were awarded to the South in the peace which ended the 1950-53 Korean War. Those islands have about 20,000 population, and the North concedes they are Southern territory, but maintains the waters around them are Northern territorial waters. The regular ferry from the South heading for those islands is met every day by warships of the North Korean Navy and escorted to its destination.

Should Kim Il Sung decide to test United States resolve, his most likely move would be a take-over of those islands, something he could accomplish in a matter of hours. He could do it, then call for a cease-fire, announcing that this would be positively his last territorial demand.

The U.S. would not be likely to fight all-out, and if she refused, her reputation in Asia would nose-dive again, with a permanent wedge driven between President Park's Government and Washington. Hopefully, that's one of the contingencies now being studied in the Pentagon.

Travellers to foreign lands need inoculations first

by David Woods

Travel may broaden the mind, but it can also play havoc with the body unless proper health precautions are taken before the intrepid traveller sets out.

This is especially important if your destination is one of the so-called developing countries where standards of hygiene may be lower than in Canada.

The fact is, much of the health protection Canadians get here in this country is largely unseen — and generally taken for granted — such things as good sewage systems, pure water supplies and pasteurized milk. These are provided for us. And we expect them.

But when you visit other countries, especially those in the tropics, you'd be advised to provide your own protection; to be, in a sense, your own medical officer of health.

This isn't too difficult to do — and it's obviously well worthwhile.

Dr. Shirley Johnson, senior medical consultant in epidemiology to the Ontario Ministry of Health, says that the first step is to find out what the inoculation requirements are for the country you're going to visit. You can get this information from your family doctor or your medical officer of health.

In addition to protecting yourself against, say, cholera, smallpox or yellow fever before leaving for countries where those diseases are found, Dr. Johnson also urges you to update your vaccination record generally. Before going away, she says, it's a good idea to make sure that your protection against tetanus, polio and diphtheria is still effective; and, if you're taking the children with you, check the status of their measles vaccinations as well. Children may be at greater risk of contracting measles in other countries — an event that could ruin their vacation. And yours.

Since the required inoculations can't always be given at the same time, you should give the doctor plenty of warning about your travel plans. If malaria should be present where you're planning to go, be sure to see your doctor first for a malaria preventive, which is taken orally.

Once you arrive at your destination, you can still keep your health guard up without spoiling the fun. Try to avoid eating raw fruit or vegetables that you haven't washed and peeled yourself; make sure the water you plan to swim in is O.K.; be careful with the local exotic dishes, and especially avoid those served by street vendors or in unhygienic surroundings. And steer clear of stray animals since rabies is rampant in some countries. Also, if you have any doubts about the drinking water, remember to avoid the ice cubes, too.

While there are no absolute guarantees against Montezuma's Revenge or other such gastrointestinal upsets during your trip, by following the suggestions mentioned you can improve your chances of having a trip abroad unmarred by ill health. Bon Voyage.

Bill Smiley

So who wants Celsius?

By BILL SMILEY

IKNEW it! Iknew it! They started screwing around with that Celsius thermometer, and the weather has gone crazy. Who ever heard of a heat-wave in May?

We had one this year, at least in these parts, and the entire population was reeling around, sunburned and sun-stroked, when they should have been wearing sweaters and turning the heat up in the evenings.

As I lay on the bed the other night, nothing over me, both windows open, gasping for breath, I up and told my wife, I told her: "It's that damned Celsius, that's what it is. They've thrown the whole country out of kilter. I must have lost a litre of sweat and a gram of weight."

She told me to stifle myself, as far as she was concerned. She has been a little owly later, owing to the fact that she can't zip up her new slacks owing to the fact that she has been hitting her own desserts too hard, and chiefly owing to the fact that I told her she had gained about 25 millimeters around the bum, which sounds a lot worse than a couple of inches.

And so it goes. You never get much appreciation around home, whether you are battling the town council, or taking on the whole government of Canada.

But I can tell you that there are a great many people in this country who think the current move to Celsius and metric is as stupid and arrogant as I do. I've had a steady stream of letters supporting my anti stand, since a recent column lambasting the change as needless and heedless of the people's desires. Many of the correspondents are also writing their MPs, and getting back the usual oily, evasive and feeble letters we expect from our MPs.

These letters are not from cranks. They are from intelligent Canadians who are getting sick of being pushed around by the mandarins in Ottawa.

Ann Judd, who writes a column for the Port Elgin Times, says: "No matter what the federal government tells you, believe me, it's a rip-off." She goes on, as many other readers do, to point out the tremendous cost of the unasked-for changes. And this in a time of racking inflation, when every citizen is, and the government should be, trying to make every dollar go as far as it will stretch.

A chap with the charming name of Volodimir Barabash makes the same charge in a poem called It's Madness printed in the Dauphin Herald.

Wes Rodgers of Mar, Ont., and Fred Salisbury of Peterboro agree with me completely, and see nothing beneficial in the change. Angela Alworth of Waterloo says: "If it's not too late to stop the big wheels from rolling regarding change to metric and Celsius, my vote is NO." It's never too late, Angela and all you others. We have only begun to fight.

You see, what we are dealing with here is chickens. Politicians are chickens and civil servants are chickens. Who ever ran away from a fight with chickens?

Believe me, chaps, it is not worth it, and if you don't oppose the changes for any other reason, fight them on the basis of cost.

Your week ahead... By Dr. A. W. Damis

LIBRA
Sept. 23-Oct. 22 It's not that things have been boring. Nonetheless, affairs of the heart will take a rather surprising twist, for the better, naturally.

SCORPIO
Oct. 23-Nov. 21 Keep your long term plans under wrap. According to the aspects in your chart, a female is determined to betray you in a rather subtle way.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22-Dec. 21 There are times when intuition, E.S.P. or whatever you want to call it—can do more harm than good. You'll find out what we mean, this week.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22-Jan. 19 Prevailing stellar patterns indicate that most members of your sign will be in conflict with the opposite sex. If you are the exception—look for favors with strings attached.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20-Feb. 18 Strange as it might sound, ancient ruins or antiquity will play an important role in this week's events. Also, there's a possibility that you might duplicate a past mistake.

PISCES
Feb. 19-Mar. 20 Most members of your sign will give serious consideration to how far they've come along in life. A cloud of meditation and deep thoughts hovers over your head.

ARIES
Mar. 21-Apr. 19 Beware! According to your chart, mischief that you have scheduled for someone else, will in fact—happen to you! Try to observe the golden rule, this week, at least.

TAURUS
Apr. 20-May 20 Many under your sign will discover that: A member of the opposite sex, who should not, will toss subtle overtures your way. No question, stay in bounds, is a must!

GEMINI
May 21-June 20 Get into your harness, Gemini! Again, there's a heavy workload coming your way, disguised as a special task that requires a particular aptitude.

MOONCHILD
June 21-July 22 Stellar patterns suggest that a good first impression is, now, in order. Apparently, the "impression" will involve closing the door on one project, while opening another.

LEO
July 23-Aug. 22 Being reasonable, this week, won't be one of your strong points. It's nearing that time again...you'll put a member of the opposite sex—to the "acid test."

VIRGO
Aug. 23-Sept. 22 At one time or another, we all go through it. But, this week, it's your chance. Meaning? You'll be given credit or blamed for something you did not do.

Demand crack down on loose bail systems

The 4,000-member Ontario Provincial Police Association demanded the federal government crack down on loose bail and parole systems and again hang murderers in Canada.

In large newspaper advertisements the association said: "It is high time politicians pay attention to the public. By all current polls the vast majority of Canadians want capital punishment."

"Surely it is time for our politicians to stay out of our courts and uphold the law."

The association said 33 policemen and two prison guards have been slain since 1967.

"But not once was the capital punishment law enacted. The murderers are serving death-commuted sentences of an average of 13½ years."

"If 13½ years is the probable maximum imprisonment for the ultimate crime against society, is it any wonder that the incidence of violent crime is growing?"

The call came a day after the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, meeting in London Ontario also urged Ottawa to retain capital punishment for murder and stop overriding death sentences handed down by judges in murder trials.

In 1967 Parliament passed a law prescribing the death penalty only for the killers of policemen and prison guards. But since December, 1962, all death sentences have been commuted by cabinet action.

The police association advertisement urged the public to clip out a coupon and send it to Members of Parliament indicating whether they feel the law should be upheld or abolished.

"The cabinet is undeniably violating the spirit of the law when it upsets the findings and sentences of a judge and jury as well as the judges of the appeal court," the association said.

It rapped the bail system as "too lax" and said it created extra crime and cost to the public -- "too many lawbreakers get released on bail 10 to 11 times."

The association also called for a tightening of parole procedures. "Too many habitual criminals are being given paroles too easily," the association said.

"How come?"

A minute could knock off gov't

NDP crime fighter Dr. Morton Shulman brandished a .22 calibre semi-automatic rifle and some live ammunition in the Legislature, a dramatic demonstration of the lack of gun control laws in Ontario.

Shulman bought the rifle for $125 and said the clerk told him it is "really only good for killing."

He became aware of the sale of the rifles, including many much more powerful than the one he bought, when a Salvation Army officer complained after the store's catalogue was mailed to him.

"They really shouldn't be allowed to sell weapons like this," Shulman said. "They didn't ask what I wanted it for or if I had a license. The OPP told me I could walk down the street carrying it and there's no law against it."

Premier William Davis, shown the rifle outside the Legislature by Shulman, said "It's something I'm very hopeful our people here and in Ottawa can sort out soon ... the ultimate responsibility is in Ottawa but that doesn't stop us from making representation to them."

Shulman said he carried the rifle into the building under his arm. Asked if any security guards stopped him he said, "Security isn't the tightest here. Maybe they thought it was a golf club."

The Italian-built rifle uses magazines of 15 to 30 shells. "As for security, I could knock off the entire government in one minute," Shulman said.

Camping Family Style

BY ANGELA AND FORD BOTHWELL

Q. How much gas mileage do you sacrifice when pulling a camping trailer?

A. Less than you might think. Towing tests made by Popular Science magazine showed that low-profile camping trailers being pulled at slightly under cruising speed often used less gasoline than the same tow vehicle operating at high speed without a trailer.

The Coleman Company, using a variety of towing vehicles in road tests, drove them on 100-mile round trips at 50 mph without trailers, then repeated the trips with campers in tow. In each case, towing took less than one additional gallon of gas for the entire 100 miles.

Q. Should you waterproof a tent every year?

A. No, you might be doing more harm than good. Believe it or not, tents don't need waterproofing until the first leak appears. When you do the job, wait for a hot, sunny day and apply the waterproofing mixture sparingly with a spray device. Never apply it heavily with a brush.

Q. What do you do when a campground doesn't turn out as advertised?

A. Tell the campground owner your complaints. If he's conscientious, he'll try to correct them. When you return home, you might write to the publication that carried his ad. If the campground belongs to an organization, write to them also. Best of all, tell other campers.

Q. Can I leave my refrigerator pilot light on when traveling in my motor home?

A. No. It's not only unsafe, it's against the law in most states. Always shut off all propane bottles when traveling to eliminate the risks of fire and explosion. Even simple gasoline spillage at a service station can trigger a tragedy if your pilot lights are on.

If you have perishable food in your refrigerator, keep it in an ice chest en route to the next campground, where you can turn on your gas again.

Q. My husband insists he's going to take us on our first camping trip this year. Can you tell me what type of clothes women wear at campgrounds?

A. Stick to clothes that are comfortable, rugged and functional, such as slacks, shorts, dungarees, jerseys and blouses. Don't forget sensible shoes and something to keep you warm if it turns cold, dry if it rains. For the most part, you can forget feminine frills, although you might bring one or two semi-dressy outfits if you're planning to leave the campground. The best rule: if you don't think you'll wear it, don't bring it.

Q. How do you keep the legs of cots from damaging the floor of a tent?

A. Fit them with heavy rubber caps. Or you can use ordinary household furniture coasters underneath.

'Old' Smokey retires!

NEW SMOKEY... A new bear has assumed active duties as the most famous animal symbol in the nation—Smokey Bear. The old Smokey, is 25 years old (equivalent of 70 years in

AREA PRIESTS were among those in attendance at the concelebrated Mass of Thanksgiving marking the 150th anniversary of the Roman Catholic Sacred Heart Parish, Marmora, last Friday. They were

Archbishop celebrant

Most Rev. J.L. Wilhelm archbishop of Kingston was the main celebrant at the concelebrated Mass of Thanksgiving to mark the 150th Anniversary of Sacred Heart Parish, Marmora, on the Feast of the Sacred Heart, Friday, June 6th.

Joining him were Marmora native-son priests: Rev. Karl Clemens, Kingston; Rev. Leo Forestell, S.J., Darjeeling, India; Rev. Francis Quinlan, O.M.I., Ottawa; Rev. Donald Gillen, Calgary; former pastor, Monsignor J.A. O'Neill, Lyn, and neighbouring priests, Rev. P.H. Murphy, Madoc; Rev. C.R. Kay, Norwood; Rev. J.C. Groenewegen, Stoco; and the present pastor, Rev. T.G. Scanlan.

Two Marmora Sisters, Sister Mary Josephine O'Neill and Sister Mary Bernard Finnegan, presented the offertory gifts. Lectors were Mrs. Breen O'Connor and Paul Brady. Organist was Mrs. Hugh Brady.

A representative group of C.W.L. members accompanied the president, Mrs. Tom Brady, to the sanctuary to present the gift of a gold chalice. Father Scanlan graciously accepted the memorial on behalf of the parish.

Homilist Father Forestell sketched the early history of Christianity in the community, starting with the little stone church built in 1825 by all members of the community, and used by them. The remains of the early church on the west bank of Crowe River, are now a historic site.

A brick church built in 1875 was burned in 1903; the present church was built in 1904. Father Forestell emphasized the debt of gratitude owed the early French missionaries who brought the faith to the Indians of this region, and to the many early settlers who have left a heritage of Christian faith.

His concluding message was to urge the people to share their treasure of faith, to bear Christian witness by their love of other people.

The recently-formed parish council held a reception in the parish hall following the Mass. The president, James Hughes, greeted the visitors who included ministers and church members of all denominations. Pourers at the tea table were senior ladies of the parish.

Greetings and congratulations were extended by Archbishop Wilhelm (who noted that Marmora parish is one year older than the diocese), Monsignor O'Neill, Father Quinlan, Jack Reynolds, reeve of Marmora Village Ritchie Wells, reeve of Marmora and Lake Township, and Dough Lynch, reeve of Deloro Village.

A historical display prepared by Mrs. Charles Brady consisted of a showcase of commemorative china and altar vessels of the early days, old documents, a 1848 Bible, a mannequin dressed in Sunday finery of the 1870's, and three bulletin boards of pictures and newspaper clippings outlining the parish activities from 1900 on.

CARDS OF THANKS

I WISH TO EXPRESS my sincere thanks to all kind friends, relatives and neighbours. Also, Norwood U.C.W. the W.I. and Senior Citizens for cards and gifts, while I was a patient in hospital. Special thanks to Rev. Kimball, Dr. Must and nurses. -- Mrs. Ernie Warner.

WE WOULD LIKE to thank our friends, neighbours. Also, the fire men for their assistance the night of my fire, and for the careful removal of our furniture. -- Lene and Joan Nash and Jean Fraser.

THE FAMILY OF the late Mrs. Everett (Anna Laura) Heath thank all their friends and neighbours for their many expressions of sympathy shown during the loss of a loving wife, mother and grandmother. A special thank-you is extended to Rev. J.A. Lombard and Rev. R.H. Stewart and furthermore our sincerest appreciation to the women of St. Mark's Anglican Church, Bonarlaw for their extreme graciousness.

THE FAMILY OF the late Patrick Walsh wish to express their thanks for the many expressions of sympathy during their recent bereavement. A special thanks for the kindness of those who acted as pallbearers, to the MacKenzie Funeral Home and to Aunt Agnes and Uncle Allie Walsh.

I WOULD LIKE to express my sincere thanks to everyone who sent cards and flowers, and thanks to those who visited me while I was a patient in Belleville General Hospital. -- Sophia Van Heukelom.

THE FAMILY OF the late Kenneth Bain wish to thank relatives, friends, neighbours and Branch 237 Royal Canadian Legion, for the many expressions of sympathy and kindness shown them in the loss of their beloved father, father-in-law and grandfather. Special thanks to Rev. John Peters and Howden Funeral Home for their comforting words. -- Ken, Betty and Ken Jr. Bain.

I WISH TO EXPRESS MY sincere thanks and appreciation to Rev. Neilson, neighbours, friends and relatives for their visits, phone calls, cards, gifts and assistance to me and my family during my stay in Toronto General Hospital and since my return home. -- David Fisher.

IN MEMORIAM

BAKER, WALTER - In loving memory of a dear husband and father who was taken from us June 4th, 1963.

God knew that he was weary,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So he closed his weary eyelids,
And whispered, Peace be thine,
Away in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest so fair,
Some day we know not when,
We will meet our loved one there.
Lovingly remembered by wife Mary and family.

BAKER - In cherished memory of a dear father and grandfather, Walter Baker who passed away 12 years ago, June 4, 1963. A light is from our household gone, A voice we loved is stilled, A place is vacant in our home, Which never can be filled, Some may think you are forgotten, Though on earth you are no more, But in memory you are with us, As you always were before. Gone but never forgotten by daughter Barbara, son-in-law Milton and grandchildren Ken, Ron and Janice.

WILSON - In loving memory of our parents Andrew and Isabel Wilson who went to their eternal rest. Dad: June 11th, 1954 and Mother: June 5th, 1964. Always remembered by Jack, Eva, Margaret and Anna Mae.

IN MEMORIAM

McCANN - In loving memory of a dear mother, Margaret Pearl, who passed away May 29, 1974.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true,
There's not a day, dear mother,
We do not think of you.
Lovingly remembered by her family.

GOODCHILD - In loving memory of Clifford L. Goodchild, who passed away June 14th 1973. -- Wife, Doris and family.

WOODS - In loving memory of Garry, dear son and brother, who passed away June 10th, 1974.

There is no time that we could set,
For parting, we who must remain
Are never ready for such pain.
Even our prayers would be not yet,
Not yet dear God another day,
With us let our beloved stay.
We must believe when falls the blow,
That wisely God has willed it so.
Will always be missed by Mom and Dad;
Jim and Cathy.

Need special ombudsman to speed up housing process

A leading Ontario real estate developer said the province should have a special ombudsman whose only job would be to speed up the housing approval process.

J. Richard Shiff, president of Barmalea Consolidated Developments Ltd., told the Canadian Bar Association that red tape is holding back badly needed housing as much as five years.

The special ombudsman would have the authority to settle differences between municipalities and developers and overrule municipalities if he thought they were unduly delaying development plans.

Ontario recently appointed its first ombudsman, lawyer Arthur Maloney. Shiff said his ombudsman should have special criteria for subdivision development that would set province-wide standards.

The mass of approvals required -- as many as 100 in some cases -- before a subdivision plan can be registered is the "real culprit" behind the housing shortage, Shiff said.

Stephen Lewis wants an end to 'adults only'

Ontario NDP leader Stephen Lewis called on the provincial government to introduce legislation forbidding landlords from restricting occupancy in apartment buildings to adults only.

"We're looking at it very closely," Housing Minister Donald Irvine told Lewis during question period in the Legislature. "I know there is a problem but supply is the answer to all of it."

Lewis said too many families with children find it difficult to rent when construction of new housing is lagging.

Few drivers are using seat belts!

A province-wide roadside survey of 6,000 Ontario drivers indicates 16.4 per cent of those who co-operated were seat belt users, according to the Systems Research Branch of the Ministry of Transportation and Communications.

Only 205 motorists declined to answer the one-minute questionnaire which covered: type of seat belts installed, if at all; belt usage; what is being worn and how; attitude; vehicle data -- warning system, year of car; trip data, such as distance from home and trip length; and passenger belt use.

The survey covered Ontario by regions, including northwestern, northeastern, western, eastern, central (other than Toronto) and Metropolitan Toronto.

It was found that people who wore seat belts were often driving late model cars, on long trips or away from home, or on expressways.

Automatically-adjusted three-point belt systems were worn more frequently than manual lap-and-shoulder belts.

Twenty-four per cent of the cars surveyed were equipped with the automatically-adjusted belt systems. And in this group of cars, twenty-seven per cent of the drivers were wearing their belts.

Thirty-eight per cent of the vehicles stopped were outfitted with older-type manual lap-and-shoulder belts, and only two per cent of the drivers of these cars were wearing both belts.

In Toronto it was found that 20.6 per cent of those questioned used their seat belts regularly. In Sault Ste. Marie 7.9 per cent were seat belt wearers, London 23.1 per cent; Brockville 14.9 per cent; Mississauga 22.4 per cent; District of Algoma 18.5 per cent; Regional Municipality of Waterloo 15.5 per cent; Ottawa 23 per cent; Kingston 22.9 per cent; Bruce County 12.6 per cent.

On expressways which represented 3.6 per cent of the sampling 33.9 per cent of drivers were seat belt users.

A more detailed report is being compiled looking at such areas as drivers' opinions on the ease of use of seat belt systems, their actual use of belts and the usage rate in 1974-75 cars.

*Shovels of dirt
are never alike*

One shovel of dirt often looks much like another, but no two are really alike, according to Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist J.K. Hughes.

"There are basically three types of soil - sand, silt and clay," he explains. "Each has a characteristic size, from large sand grains to medium silt particles to very small clay particles. The smallness of the clay particles causes them to compact and harden more readily than the others. That's why plant growth in clay soils is sometimes restricted by poor root development and drainage."

To prevent clay soils from becoming lumpy, avoid working them when they are still overly wet. Add organic matter - such as cattle manure or composted straw - in the spring or fall to help open the soil so that roots can breathe.

This fellow just lives for hockey

Ask Tom his great interest and the answer is hockey. He plays; he watches games on TV; he follows the teams in a local league; he reads the sports pages; and the few books he is interested in are about hockey. His ambition is to be a professional player, preferably a goalie.

Tom plays baseball too but obviously considers it just a pleasant way to keep fit till hockey time comes again.

Tom is French Canadian in descent, tall and sturdy with blonde hair, blue eyes and fair skin. His glasses are for near-sightedness. He is having some orthodontic work done, which the Children's Aid Society will continue to pay for if the cost is in the way of Tom's adoption.

Tom is in opportunity class. He is co-operative and conscientious, always doing his best at whatever he undertakes.

With a happy, pleasant personality, Tom gets along well with people of all ages. He needs a family who will appreciate his lovable, sensitive nature and will not worry about scholarship.

To inquire about adopting Tom, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. In your letter please tell something of your present family and your way of life.

For general adoption information, consult

Refuse full scale OHC check

Housing Minister Donald Irvine refused to order a full scale investigation into the Ontario Housing Corporation over reports that a Sudbury couple, both active Conservatives, made about $200,000 on land deals with OHC.

Irvine, reacting to a charge by Liberal leader Robert Nixon that OHC has "outlived its usefulness because it is not prepared to do business in public," said "there is absolutely no need" for an investigation and "OHC has done a lot of good work."

Irvine read a prepared statement in Legislature about OHC's dealings with Sudbury insurance agent Eugene Vannier and his wife. He admitted that to date 79 transactions were left off a list prepared by OHC in response to a Liberal question asking for all corporation land purchases from 1968 to this year. None of the deals involving the Vanniers was listed.

Nixon asked if the Conservative party still has its Sudbury headquarters in Vannier's building. Irvine shot back, "You keep harping about the past ... there's nothing wrong with the Conservative party doing business with a Conservative."

Sees strong opposition Pickering Airport

New Democratic Party leader Stephen Lewis suggested that the Ontario Government is laying the groundwork for strong opposition to the Pickering Airport.

Reacting to Premier William Davis' response to questions in the Legislature on the issue, Lewis said he detected a "carefully modulated shift in direction" to provincial opposition to the federal project now underway.

He said the shift was one "which will give the government the opportunity to say, 'We oppose the airport. We will not service it.'"

The Premier dodged direct questions from Liberal leader Robert Nixon on whether a provincial position has been drafted.

He said a meeting had been held with federal Transport Minister Jean Marchand and further communications were expected in the next few days.

Davis said he could recall no written agreement between the provincial and federal governments for the province to provide servicing and additional support.

He said "some understanding" was reached but it was "not that definite." He said it was a question of costs.

Power eaters - Campaign to save energy!

By Robert Angus

Ever since power bills started edging upward in my house, there's been a campaign on to save energy. You know the sort of thing -- turning the light out in the kitchen the minute Mom delivers the roast to the table, cutting the time on the clothes dryer's cycle. So you can imagine what happened one evening recently when we arrived home from a party and Mom discovered that I'd left the stereo system on all the time we'd been out.

"Ah-HAH! Lecture me, will you? I'll bet you've put another $2 on the power bill. And for what?"

She went on in that vein for a while until I resolved to discover just how much the hi-fi system was costing us to operate.

"You had to have the most powerful system in the block, four channels and tape. I'll bet we spend as much on that system each month as we do on the air conditioner in the summer."

Now I must admit that my amplifier is comparatively powerful, putting out 300 watts RMS when fully driven. And while I'm aware that today's transistorized circuits are highly efficient, compared to the tube circuits of a generation ago, it stands to reason that my amplifier must be drawing more than 300 watts from the wall, right? Wrong.

The amplifier actually produces 300 watts only when fully driven -- that is when it's reproducing a test tone at top volume. Since I don't normally listen to test tones, and rarely listen at top volume, my amplifier actually is producing 30 watts or less most of the time. This means, depending on its efficiency, that it's drawing no more than 30 to 50 watts of power from the wall outlet. Since I listen mostly at moderate levels, the actual power it consumes is significantly less.

In order to consume one kilowatt hour's worth of electricity, it takes my amplifier some 20 to 30 hours of operation. Depending on where you live, the rate per kilowatt hour may run anywhere from three to nine cents. At that rate, if you operate your amplifier on an average of three hours a day, you're getting music for three to nine cents a week.

Compare that with the .33 kilowatt hours the average color television set consumes each hour -- about 10 times the consumption of my amplifier. A steam iron burns up about one kilowatt in an hour -- and many a time I've found it idling while my wife chats on the phone.

"But the amplifier is only part of what's going on," she pointed out. "What about the motor in the turntable, the tape deck and the FM tuner?"

Well, a typical turntable motor draws about 12 watts of power. This means that it consumes less than two night lights. It can play both sides of nearly 125 long-playing albums before clocking one kilowatt hour.

My tuner, it turns out, draws about five watts per hour (if it were a tuner section in a stereo receiver, it would draw even less). That means more than a month's worth of music to accumulate one kilowatt hour, even taking into account that my wife uses it to provide background music all day long.

True, the tape deck does draw a bit more

-- 50 watts or so for the open reel unit, considerably less for the cassette deck. The reason is that the former has two motors instead of one, plus a pre-amplifier.

Of course, I don't operate all of these components simultaneously. But let's suppose I'm using my open reel tape deck to record something from the cassette deck or turntable. The total power consumption per hour comes to 102 watts -- or less than the two 60-watt bulbs we left burning so that we could find the front door the night I left the system on.

Here are the figures for other household products, as a means of comparison: 16-cubic-foot frostless refrigerator consumes about twice as much power per hour as my entire system, for a total of five kwh per day; an electric range can consume 1.5 kwh cooking just one meal, enough to run a stereo receiver for more than a week of average listening; a vacuum cleaner about the (0.67 kwh) as 10 hours' of phonograph listening. A night clock burns up 1 1/2 kwh per month, or about 1/10th of what your hi-fi system is likely to consume; each load in the clothes dryer costs you 27 cents, if you're paying as much as nine cents per kwh.

At that rate, even a high-powered audio system is one of the best energy buys around.

For And About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER:

"I have a very disturbing problem. My best friend likes this boy. He flirts with me a lot. My best friend has just found that out. She is upset about it. I want him to stop before he ruins my friendship. What can I do? She thinks I'm crazy about him but I'm not."

OUR REPLY: Take responsibility for the situation. Communicate to both your girlfriend and the guy what your feelings are. Be truthful and honest about what you're experiencing. Make certain they are clear on what you're sharing with them. Get clear yourself on whether this dude is flirting or just being friendly. Keep the lines of communication among all of you open. The fact of the matter is you all like each other. Don't confuse the issue. It's okay to be friends with more than one person at a time. It's actually pretty simple in your case. Your girlfriend's friend wants to be your friend, too. Then, you'll all be friends—and that's kind of nice, don't you think?

Organized crime behind the tainted meat scandal?

York South MPP Donald MacDonald has renewed the call for a public inquiry into the tainted meat scandal because of what he called the "growing evidence that it represents another example of how organized crime is digging itself into Canadian society."

Speaking at a riding nomination meeting, the former provincial NDP leader charged that Agriculture Minister William Stewart's handling of the scandal has been "alarming."

He said to ignore evidence that the tainted meat rings are financed and controlled by organized crime is "an even greater threat to the public welfare than health considerations."

Stewart told the Legislature earlier in the week that he has no proof that a Mafia-run ring dealing in horse meat and tainted meat is operating in Ontario.

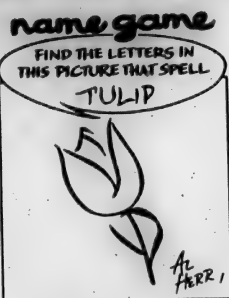

He later said he interviewed a former Ontario Humane Society inspector, Wally Koegler of Kitchener, who says a tainted meat racket has operated in Ontario for years.

After a two-hour session, the former Humane Society chief inspector, produced no evidence which could lead to the laying of charges or on which provincial police could proceed.

The meat scandal grew out of an inquiry into organized crime in Quebec which was told that hundreds of thousands of pounds of meat from dead, sick and dying Ontario cattle have been shipped to Quebec. Earlier NDP justice critic Dr. Morton Shulman charged that the sale of illegal horse meat is still widespread throughout Toronto.

In Kingston health inspectors have found 250 pounds of uninspected pepperoni in two retail outlets, officials say.

The uninspected meat was found during a routine inspection of food outlets and placed under detent. The meat is being tested by public health laboratories to determine whether it is tainted.

The Canadian Renderers' Association meanwhile called for tougher legislation to deal with the disposal of dead and diseased animals.

"We have felt there has been a laxity in the system of having licensed collectors act as the middleman between the farm and the plant," said association president Garry Young.

Young urged that dead animals be disposed of only at federally inspected plants to ensure that they are not sold for human consumption and to curb the spread of disease.

However, a spokesman for Ontario animal food suppliers said he knows of no industry members breaking provincial laws in their sale of tainted meat.

Gerald Punnett, a Guelph lawyer and secretary of the Ontario Dead Stockers Receiving Plant Operators Association, was speaking on behalf of 27 member plants which he says represent the bulk of the industry in Ontario.

Jim Watson and Helen Carruthers talk with leader

Grits want gov't in hands of people

The Liberal Party wants to put government back into the hands of the people.

Robert Nixon, leader of the Liberal Party in Ontario, paid a surprise visit to Madoc last Friday evening, and in addressing a crowd gathered at a dance sponsored by the Hastings-Peterborough Provincial Liberal Association, said it's perhaps "inevitable after 32 uninterrupted years of power that a government loses touch with the people it's supposed to serve. But Bill Davis's Queen's Park doesn't listen. He and his Ministers seem caught up in the web of bureaucracy."

"Under Bill Davis, Ontario's government is becoming even bigger, even more impersonal and remote. He has centralized many local governments into large regional units, that can't possibly respond to individual and community needs. He's continued to build huge government towers in central Toronto. And since April, he's even instructed the Ontario Municipal Board to tell municipal councils which specific capital projects they can and cannot build. Brantford, for instance, was told to postpone replacing a bridge which is in such a serious state of deterioration that the provincial police won't cross it."

"This is a diverse province, with diverse needs that cannot all be recognized or satisfied from the ivory towers at Queen's Park. But Bill Davis still believes that Ontario's problems can be solved with more centralization, more bureaucracy, more bigness, more spending."

"As Liberals, we reject that approach to government. Unlike Bill Davis, we don't want to control everything. We don't want government by technocrats."

"We have a different vision of the kind of Ontario that we want to live in. We want an Ontario where people are more important than pressure groups, where the needs and desires of individual citizens override those of a faceless and alien bureaucracy. We want an Ontario where people have a voice in the decisions that affect their lives; where decisions are made in the open, not in some smoke-filled backroom. We want a government that puts people before politics."

"That's the kind of Ontario that we, as Liberals, are working for. That's why we're determined to clean house. That's why we believe this government must be defeated."

"It's not the 32 years of Conservative government that people are fed up with. It's the four years of William Davis."

May operate health club

As a result of the high interest shown in the questionnaires distributed in Madoc last year, the Kiwanis Club is still working on the idea of running a health club with a sauna, exercise room and possible tennis courts at the Kiwanis Centre as soon as enough funds can be raised to get the project underway.

Kiwanian Ron Powell has announced that a summerfest has been scheduled for Saturday, June 28th, in the Centre, starting at one o'clock in the afternoon with horseshoe pitching and continuous live entertainment from two o'clock to six and again from eight o'clock until one in the morning. Three types of music will be featured: Rock, starring Creed; Country and Western, starring Roadblock, and Dixieland, with the Metronomes.

Each of the first 200 people to purchase a ticket will receive a free beer mug. Admission, $2.50 per person, is restricted to persons 18 years of age and over.

If you were born June 18-June 24: You are industrious and extremely capable. Your ideas are original — sometimes too original to be practical, but at least you're always in there pitching. Money is important to you, but you sometimes have difficulty hanging on to it.

Sewer grant result many years work

The provincial government grant announced last week to be received by the Village of Madoc for the proposed water and sewer works projects is the result of many hours of meetings and discussions over the past few years.

The policy in this regard as it appeared in the recent budget announced by the Honourable W.D. McKeough, has come about through the continued interest and efforts of Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P. Hastings, who constantly worked with the council. The Member arranged several meetings in Toronto between council representatives and the Ministry of the Environment and on many occasions presented the council's views and opinions, on behalf of the Village, to the Ministry.

Over the past three or four years, several offers have been made by the Ministry for water and sewer developments, but with the stipulation that the proposed project would be government-owned and would, therefore, be installed to the Ministry's specifications. Council continually opposed this set-up, because, in their opinion, each suggested plan was far beyond the means of the ratepayers.

The general policy in the budget gives the municipalities the right to operate such projects on their own. However, certain guidelines have been outlined by the Ministry.

The provisions are, that the proposed works must be designed by a competent consulting engineer (subject to the approval of the Ministry from a technical point of view) and that the installations of the works would be supervised by that consulting engineer. The payment of the grant on an interim or final basis, would only be made in respect of completed work, the Ministry would be the final arbiter of the extent of work to be carried out at one time and would be able to require any works that it considered essential to be included in the works to be constructed.

In a recent letter to council, W.B. Drowley, P. Eng., Assistant Deputy Minister, Utility and Laboratory Services Division of the Ministry of the Environment, confirming the availability of Provincial fundings, stressed that the Ministry's position at present is not clearly defined, but assured council that further details will be supplied for consideration as soon as they have been clarified.

These background details were scheduled to go into the Review last week, but the information for same disappeared with a change of news editors. We thank Councillor Tom Deline for giving us the information we did carry, as it was pretty close to press time when it was realized the story had not as yet been received.

Kevin Lowry and Brian Hyde

The Boy Scouts of the First Madoc Troop were given awards recently for their participation in the Tree Planting held on May 10th, 1975.

Brian Hyde was the top recipient with 26 pledges, while Kevin Lowry placed second with 24 and Paul Hyde placed third with 15. These top three scouts received trophies. The other Scouts in the troop received a thank-you plaque for their efforts.

Ken Smith, 22, of Eldorado was fined $300 when he was convicted of a charge of assaulting a peace (police) officer. The incident occurred in Madoc Village April 4, 1975.

Destroy goodwill basis after-school activities?

Legislation designed to govern bargaining between teachers and school boards would destroy the goodwill basis for after-school activities. Jim Forster, president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, warned.

Forster was referring to a clause in proposed legislation which would include in its definition of strike the discontinuation of extra-curricular programs.

He pointed out that if activities which up until now have been voluntary are made mandatory, it follows that they would become part of negotiations.

"If that happened, there will be an inevitable increased cost to the taxpayer," Forster said.

A teacher who decides not to continue a voluntary activity could be fined as much as $500 a day under the proposed legislation.

Forster said the federation has advised its members to formally notify their principals that they will not be undertaking voluntary duties unless the controversial section is dropped or clarified to the satisfaction of the federation.

JOHNSTON'S PHARMACY

473-4112

If you are 65 or older and have lived here for the past year, most prescription drugs can be free.

This is what Ontario is doing for you to get them.

Effective August 1, we have a new law in Ontario. It will allow almost everyone who is 65 or older and has been an Ontario resident for at least the past 12 months to receive most prescription drugs free.

That means prescriptions written by physician or dentist and filled in Ontario. Only those drugs listed in Ontario's Drug Benefit Formulary are free.

Here is who is eligible:

Ontario residents who receive Old Age Security.

If you are 65 or older and are presently receiving an Old Age Security cheque from the federal government, you will automatically receive your new Drug Benefit Eligibility Card before August 1. (And, of course, if you are already getting a drug benefit card, you will continue to get one.) You don't have to do anything about it.

Ontario residents not receiving Old Age Security.

If you are 65 or older, and have lived in Ontario for at least the past year but less than 10 years, you too are entitled to Ontario's prescription drug benefits. But because we don't know who you are, you'll have to apply for the drug benefit card - at your pharmacy or from the Ministry of Health. After you're enrolled, you'll automatically receive your drug benefit card.

Here's how Drug Benefit works.

There are more than 1,500 prescription drugs listed in the Ministry of Health's Drug Benefit Formulary. When you visit a physician or dentist, tell him you qualify for the Drug Benefit so that he can prescribe medication from the Formulary. Then, give your Drug Benefit Card to the pharmacist. Your pharmacy will keep your card. But you can have it returned - in case you move or want to go to a different pharmacy.

No cost to you.

When you get your prescription, you pay nothing. The pharmacist will be paid by your Ontario government.

In Ontario, we wish you the best of health. And we're doing something about it. So if you need to apply (and most people don't), pick up your Drug Benefit application form at your pharmacy, or write to:

Queensboro W.I. meet

Mrs. Harry DeClair was hostess for the June meeting of the Queensboro Branch of the Women's institute, which was held in the W.I. Hall on Friday evening.

Mrs. M. Lees, President, opened the meeting with the Ode and Mary Stewart Collect.

The Roll Call, "What has more influence on a child's upbringing, the home, school or church?", was answered by 16 members and 11 visitors.

Mrs. DeClair gave a short report of the District Annual, which was held in Marmora in May.

Mrs. John Thompson and Mrs. Harold Tokley offered to attend the workshop for curators in Madoc on Tuesday, June 17th, if possible.

Mrs. John Thompson introduced the guest speakers, Mrs. Elaine Kapusta and Mrs. Barbara Jones, teachers from Toronto, who gave a very interesting talk and showed slides of how small children from five years up are taught in schools in England and also how they are teaching in Toronto.

Mrs. Roy Rollins thanked the speakers and presented them with gifts.

The meeting closed with "The Queen", and lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants and a social time was enjoyed by all.

Happer Hoers

On Tuesday, June 3rd, the third meeting of the Crookston Happy Hoers was held at the home of Mrs. Donald Blackburn.

The meeting was opened with the 4-H Pledge and Sharon Govier read the minutes of the last meeting. The exhibit for Achievement Day, entitled, "The Well-Planned Vegetable Garden", was discussed.

Other topics discussed were: Insect and Disease Control, Lawns, Flower Beds, and Transplanting and Thinning.

The next meeting is to be held on Tuesday, June 24th, at the same home.

On Tuesday, June 3rd, the First and Second Madoc Brownie Packs ended the year by visiting the First Madoc Guide Company.

The occasion was a Fly-up ceremony in which 14 girls left the Brownie Packs and were accepted into the Guide Company.

Rev. Heard was in attendance to present Religion in Life Emblems. Suzette Downey, Angel Fox, Kelly Derry, Kristi Bjorndahl, Beth Empey and Donna Empey received their First Stage. Terra Downey, Carol Fleming and Cheryl Willock received their Second Stage.

The preceding week at the Girl Guide Mother and Daughter banquet, Lori Love and Laurie Matchett received their Second stage from Rev. Hawkes.

Tudor & Cashel Council

Council approved a motion to request the Ministry of Transportation and Communications to replace the entrance to the Hastings Road on the east side of 62 Highway at Lot 6 EHR at their regular monthly meeting in Gilmour on June 6th.

All members of the Townships of Tudor and Cashel council were present.

After the reading and approval of the minutes, the following accounts were ordered paid: Fire #5, $240; Fire #6, $100; Fire #7, $45; Madoc Review, $80.97; B. Baker, mileage, $71.55; Photo Copies, .60; Registry Office, $20.50; Telephone, $9.56; Postage, $96; Humpage, Taylor and McDonald, 1974 Audit, $600; Madoc Review, $6.

Other business included a decision to deny approval of the land severance being Pt. Lot 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, EHR, but to approve the land severance being Pt. Lots 23 and 24, Con. 2, Cashel.

On motion of Bruce, Burkitt, a lottery licence is to be granted to the Millbridge Community Club to conduct a raffle.

A bylaw for the purpose of setting the rates to be levied against taxable property and business in the Townships of Tudor and Cashel in 1975 was read a first, second and third time; signed; sealed; and numbered No. 7-75. Council then resumed general business.

It was decided that the Road Superintendent be authorized to request the Ministry of Transportation and Communications to align the Construction project on Pt. Lots 13, 14, and 15, Con. 17, Tudor.

A motion was made by Councillors Robbins and Bruce that the owner of Pt. Lot 27, Con. 2, be notified that Councillors does not approve of a second driveway to his property.

The clerk was instructed to advertise tenders for a new truck.

Council adjourned to meet July 4 at 7:30 p.m.

Receives BA degree

Standard Church pastor leaving for new circuit

An enjoyable social evening was held in the Standard Church parsonage on June 11th for Rev. and Mrs. Larry Hart, prior to their leaving Madoc for their new circuit at Bloomfield.

A program, arranged by Mrs. Roy Johnston, consisted of community singing, a solo, quizzes, different readings and a duet.

The following address was read by Mrs. Johnston:
Madoc, Ontario
June 11, 1975

Rev. and Mrs. Hart:
We are pleased to be gathered here this evening to enjoy a social time with you before your departure from us. We were very much disappointed to learn of your being moved and regret it.

We appreciate all you have done in the church, you have put forth many efforts for the good of the church. We think of the interest you have shown in the children and young people, getting them to Sunday School and Church, and etc.

Your many acts of kindness and thoughtfulness for each one, always willing to be a help in time of need.

We have all appreciated your visits in our homes and you have proved yourselves real friends at all times. We know you have made many friends in Madoc and people speak very highly of you. As with the poet we can say, "Friendship is a chain of God, shaped in God's all perfect mold. Each link a smile, a tear, a grip of the hand, a word of cheer. Steadfast as the ages roll, binding closer soul to soul. No matter how far or heavy the load, sweet is the journey on friendship's road. It's the giving and doing for somebody else. One that all life's splendor depends and the joys of this life, when you sum them all up are found in the making of friends. When good friends walk beside us, on the trails that we must keep, our burdens seem less heavy and the hills are not so steep. The weary miles pass swiftly and all the world seems brighter, when friends walk by our side."

Bro. Hart we have enjoyed your inspired messages from time to time and also the musical talent of you both.

We feel you have worked hard for the church, have done so many things. Perhaps there may have been some discouraging times but reward will follow for your efforts. Our loss will be another's gain.

We present these gifts to you with our love and best wishes, praying God will abundantly bless you in your new circuit. From the Congregation of Madoc Standard Church and your friends.

Mr. Reg. Chisholm presented the couple with a platform rocker, two lawn chairs, and a purse of money. They also received other gifts for which they both made suitable replies.

"Blest Be The Tie that Binds Our Hearts in Christian Love", was sung followed by a lovely lunch served by the ladies.

All enjoyed a very lovely evening together.

Kleinsteinuber reunion attracts nearly 100

The Kleinsteinuber reunion was held at Price's Park on Sunday, June 8th, with 70 sitting down to a bountiful dinner.

The President, Joe Kleinsteinuber, welcomed everyone present and in the afternoon nearly 100 attended the reunion. The group missed Mabel Kleinsteinuber, who is the secretary, as she was in Germany at the time. Ruth Kleinsteinuber filled in for her.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kleinsteinuber were on the program committee. While the younger children were taking part in the races and contests, Ted and Wayne Kleinsteinuber entertained the older ones with their favourite songs by playing their guitars.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Kleinsteinuber from Picton received the prize for the oldest married couple. Tillie Kleinsteinuber was the oldest lady present and Theodore Kleinsteinuber was the oldest gentleman. Both received prizes. The prize for the youngest couple attending went to Victor and Linda Samuels. Victor is a grandson of Victor Kleinsteinuber. Mrs. Dewey Kleinsteinuber was rewarded for having the most grandchildren and little Stephen Reid received the prize for being the youngest one present.

A peanut scramble was enjoyed by the tiny tots in the afternoon. Ralph Rutter received the prize for guessing the number of candies in the jar. Mrs. Don Freeburn received the prize for guessing the number of matches in a cross made by Victor Kleinsteinuber. In the father and son race, Lucky Lees came first, followed close in second place by his father, Mervil Lees. Everett and Victor Samuels came in third and fourth here. Numerous other prizes were given out and four o'clock rolled around too soon. Ice-cream was served to old and young. Everyone was soon saying good-bye for another year.

Officers elected for 1976 were as follows: Past President, Joe Kleinsteinuber, Picton; President, Don Kleinsteinuber, Belleville; Secretary, Mary Crawford, Picton; Program Committee, Mildred Kleinsteinuber, Sulphide; Ruth Ann Kleinsteinuber, Sulphide, and Gloria Reid, Ivanhoe.

The President thanked the program committee for doing such a splendid job and welcomed everyone to his daughter's (Betty) tourist resort in Picton for the next reunion on the second Sunday in June, 1976.

Everyone had a good time and the program committee was pleased with such a good turn-out.

Doubleheader

The Purina-Ettes will play a doubleheader in the Madoc Ball Park on Sunday, June 22nd, to make up scheduled games previously rained out.

The first game will begin at one o'clock when the girls meet Lakeside Oxygen. Then, at three o'clock, they will play Belleville Yardmen.

Belleville Broadloom will play the Purina-Ettes here on Thursday evening at 8:00 p.m.

Tweedsmuir history W.I. topic

Fifty members of Women's Institutes of Hastings West, Hastings North, Hastings east and Peterborough met on Tuesday, June 17th, with Mrs. R. C. Walker, St. George, the Provincial Curator of the Tweedsmuir History Book, to learn more about these books. Each Institute Branch has its own Tweedsmuir Book containing pictures and articles to show the growth and development of its community. Mrs. Walker gave many useful instructions and ideas for improving these books.

During the noon-hour, Mrs. R. Hudson illustrated a Micro-Fische Reader and modern methods of making history available.

The members of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, No. 179, preceded by the town band, marched in a body to Trinity United Church for Divine Service. At the door of the church they were joined by the members of the Order of Rebekahs. Following the service, the brethren then proceeded to the cemetery, where a service was held in honor of deceased members, and the graves were decorated with beautiful flowers.

Mr. H.B. Adshead, MP, of East Calgary, was a caller at the Review Office. Mr. Adshead was renewing acquaintances in this part of the country, having been a former resident of Madoc and attended Madoc High School.

A large hen's egg was left at the Review office, measuring 8" x 6 1/4". Mrs. John Lewis left a still larger egg, which measured 8 1/4" x 6 1/4".

Just as a point of interest, it was noted in an issue of the Review the following: "There are now approximately one million motor vehicles in Canada, compared with just one such vehicle 30 years ago. In 1903 there were two hundred and twenty motor vehicles registered in the Dominion." Can you imagine how many there are now -- 47 years later?

A new public school was officially opened at Gilmour on June 7th, 1951. This school has been built at considerable cost, but is a monument to the foresight and work of many local people and their Reeve. When the meeting opened there was a large attendance of the general public and school teachers and two school inspectors. The tape was cut by Colonel Watson, representative Minister of Education. Mr. Roy Armstrong, Clerk of the Council, presided, and Colonel Watson, in his address, paid glowing tribute to the foresight of the Council and citizens of Gilmour. Other speakers were Mr. W. J. Simpson, Inspector of Schools, Reeve Sprackett, Mr. Roscoe Robson, M.P., Mr. Chandler, St. Ola, and Rev. T. H. Good of Madoc.

The Madoc Community Centre held a public meeting in the Madoc Armoury on June 4th, 1951, with Mr. C. R. Forsythe, recreational director of the Y.M.C.A., Peterborough, as guest speaker.

The attendance by the public was indeed disappointing, as it was hoped that the response might be an indication of the general support the committee in charge of the community centre might expect.

At 3:01 a.m. on Sunday, June 18th, 1960, in a co-ordinated program that will take less than two minutes to complete, the Madoc Telephone System will be converted to dial operation. At the time, all local telephones will get new numbers consisting of the exchange designation 473 and four figures. These numbers are listed in the telephone directory supplement, mailed to customers this week. The changeover to dial Sunday will be made with virtually no interruption in telephone service. The actual changeover to the dial equipment will be made according to a closely co-ordinated procedure, requiring split-second timing to insure that the period when all the community's telephones are "dead" is kept to a minimum. When the sign to begin is given, the power will be shut off at the manual exchange on Durham Street and a gang of men wearing goggles, necessary because of the method of disconnection, will go into action to disconnect all lines leading to the old switchboards. As soon as the old exchange is dead, the signal will be passed over a special line to the dial exchange building on Prince Albert street where another gang will stand in readiness to remove blocking picks from the dial equipment. These picks are attached to cords so that they can be yanked out in a few seconds. As soon as they are gone, the dial equipment will be in operation. After that, Madoc telephone users will no longer hear the familiar "Number please", when they pick up the receiver. Instead, they will hear the hum of the dial tone, which announces that the switching equipment is ready to handle the call. As the first callers dial, the switching equipment in the new exchange will begin to click, opening a new era in Madoc's telephone history.

Area teachers pleased with bill, but.....

Area secondary school teachers appear pleased with Bill 100, a provincial act to regulate school board and teachers' collective bargaining.

"In particular, the key provisions allowing teachers the right to negotiate working conditions and to strike are welcome," notes Judie Carty, president, Hastings Division, OSSTF, c-o, Centennial Secondary School, Belleville, and Charles Bovey, Communications Officer.

"However, after careful study, three aspects of the Bill have been found to be disturbing in their implications. Principals and vice-principals will be denied the right to strike although they are members of the Federation. This denial is a serious infringement on basic human rights, preventing freedom of choice. Further this provision could well create a communications barrier and mistrust between teachers and principals since principals will be separated from their colleagues during any possible strikes.

Under the terms of the proposed legislation any teacher acting with others to limit the operation of the school by discontinuing extracurricular activities is, by definition on an illegal strike. The reaction to this cause centred on two main areas. The terms "cocurricular" and "extracurricular" have not been defined and hence are open to misinterpretation. This lack of precision and the illogic of declaring compulsory that which is voluntary make it clear that the Bill must be amended by deleting such inconsistencies.

"Of no small importance to the members was the provision that the termination of all collective agreements should take place on the 31st day of August. Not only would a severe strain be placed on the negotiating system established by the proposed legislation but should all Ontario schools choose the legal strike route all secondary schools could conceivably be closed at the same time by strikes.

Receives $100 for articles

Roy Cadwell, chairman of the Lester B. Pearson Peace Park, has received a cheque for $100 for two articles, "Insurance and the Law", and "What To Do After An Automobile Accident," published in the June issue of the Legion Magazine.

Mr. Cadwell is author of "Communism In The Modern World," written as a result of his experiences dealing with the communists when he was with the Canadian Department of External Affairs, in Indo-China as legal adviser to the Canadian Peace Commissioners. He has given the $100 to the peace park in their current campaign to raise money for a Mother's Shrine and Tower of Hope at the peace park.

Loyalist considering new courses

Loyalist College is considering the possibilities of offering courses related to the reopening of the uranium mining industry in North Hastings.

The suggestion was made during the June meeting of the college's board of governors.

The possibility of offering an individual nursing course was also suggested.

The possibilities of courses in subject areas are being looked into, and a report will be made at a future meeting.

Plans were finalized for the June 21st convocation of graduates from the diploma nursing, nursing assistant, project Loyalist and retraining programs.

The meeting was advised that the new school liaison officer, Miss Wendy Blackwood, was now on staff, and would be involved in liaison with the visiting of the many high schools in the college area.

It was agreed that in view of the favorable response to the recent OISE seminar that another such community seminar be planned for next spring.

Hastings B of E notebook.....

Hastings County board of education, at its June meeting, decided To approve the transfer of a bus route operated by R. Crosby, of Coe Hill, servicing township roads south of Coe Hill, to D. McCaw of Coe Hill.

Approved the erection of an ice arena at the eastern boundary of the Stirling Senior School, at no cost to the board, and on condition that area school students have free use of such an arena during school hours, subject to a feasibility study by the Stirling Village Arena Committee.

Continue its established program of meeting the educational needs of pregnant students through informal school assistance and by home instruction where a suitable qualified teacher is available; and supports the formation of tutorial groups for these students wherever this is practical.

Make arrangements for the establishment of a local driver training instructors course in 1976, with applicants for such a course in Toronto this year, being given $60 to underwrite the cost of their fee.

Teen-age girls hurt in Madoc accident

Two teenage girls sustained minor injuries, when they were passengers in a car driven by John Eric Petty, 16, of 26 Queen Victoria Street, Madoc, on Wednesday evening, June 11.

The injured girls were identified by Madoc Provincial Police as 16-year-old Mara Bossio of Durham Street, Madoc, and Linda Alexander, also 16, of R.R. 3, Frankford. Three others in the car were uninjured.

Apparently, the car crossed the highway at the junction of the Crookston Road and Highway 62 and went into the ditch at about 11 p.m., while westbound on the Crookston Road. Four hundred dollars damages resulted to the 1972 Maverick. Constable Don Creelman was the investigating officer.

Campbellford man charged

A Campbellford man was charged on three counts as a result of a single-vehicle accident near Stirling early last Thursday morning.

Kenneth R. Myers was charged with impaired driving, failing a breathalyzer test and careless driving by Constable Al Borger of the Madoc Detachment, Ontario Provincial Police, when he failed to negotiate a curve about 1.5 miles west of Stirling on County Road 8.

Alone in the westbound vehicle at the time, Mr. Myers lost control of the 1968 Ford and took out four guide posts, three fence posts, and approximately 30 feet of wire fencing, to a total of $125 damages. It is estimated that it will cost $250 to repair the right front of the vehicle.

The mishap occurred at 1:25 a.m. on Thursday, June 12.

Honor Durland Adams on his retirement

Friends and relatives from as far away as Copper Cliff and Toronto honoured Durland Adams with a retirement party in the Madoc Orange Hall on Friday evening.

The gathering of approximately 150 enjoyed a time of social visiting before the program began at nine o'clock. Dancing was enjoyed for the remainder of the evening.

All of Mr. Adams' five children were present for the occasion. They are Kenneth and his wife Lorraine, Carl and his wife Donna, Marlene and Ivan Bronson, all of Madoc; Pat and Gary Owens of Belleville and Bonnie of Toronto. Also present was his only sister, Mrs. Alice Marshall of Toronto, and all of Mrs. Adams' sisters: Mrs. Irene (Ken) Gordon, Madoc; Mrs. Lucy (John) Wannamaker, Belleville and Mrs. Myrtle Ferguson of Napanee. Mrs. Adams was delighted to see her aunt, Mrs. Merle Young of Bancroft, attend the party. Mrs. Young had raised Mrs. Adams, who lost her mother as a young child.

Two fishing buddies of Mr. Adams, Ken Thompson of Tweed and Art Young of Belleville, were on hand to make the presentations and to relate some truly interesting "tales" from some of their fishing trips. An engraved silver tray and a serrated cake knife, also engraved, was presented to the honoured guest from the family and friends. Other gifts included chocolates, a four-section pickle dish, a pair of fridge ornaments and money. The practical joker he is, Mr. Adams received a couple of comical gifts. One, a piece of sandpaper mounted in a frame, and the other, a bottle of spirits with a nipple on it and a straw on the side.

Dr. E.L. Dixon of Belleville, another fishing buddy of Mr. Adams, and for whom all three of the Adams girls have worked at one time, brought along two large cakes appropriately decorated. One, designed especially for his retiring friend, had a smashed up car on it and the other, for Mrs. Adams, was decorated with cooking utensils.

Among the guests were four of the district salesmen with whom Mr. Adams has dealt while conducting his body shop in town.

The retirement of Durland Adams marks the end of nearly 50 years in garage work, which started in 1927. He first worked at Naylor's garage, followed by employment at Pigden's Motors and Brett's Garage. For a four-year interval (during the war) he took time out to work at an ammunition plant at Ajax. Returning to Madoc in 1947, he started his own shop on Dingman St., where he has continued ever since.

The business will be carried on by his son, Carl, under the new name, Adams' Auto Body.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams will continue to reside in their home next to the shop.

Little damage

The Marmora Fire Department was called out at 8:45 Friday morning to the Marmora Fair ground where they extinguished a fire in the cow barn. It is believed that someone passing by may have thrown a cigarette into the straw in the shed to start the fire. There was little damage. The fire was reported by Gary Barker who lives across the street.

$1,000

A Deloro resident, Troy Corrigan, won $1,000 in last Thursday's Wintario draw. His ticket number was No. 87729 and the winning ticket for the two grand prizes of $100,000 each was number 97729 in series 46 and 19. Mr. Corrigan purchased his ticket from Ray Brown of Deloro who averages sales of 1,200 tickets every two weeks.

KILLED

A deer was killed and a teen-ager slightly injured when a motorcycle ran into the animal on Highway 7, just west of Mac's Mobile Homes, west of Marmora, June 15th.

Wolfgang Kolher, of Smith Falls, was travelling along the highway, when the deer darted into his path.

He was taken to Belleville General Hospital with elbow injuries.

A passenger on the bike, Barry Woods, also of Smith Falls, wasn't injured.

Honor teacher

A party honouring Mrs. Patricia (Pat) McNamara, who has been connected with Sacred Heart School as teacher and principal for 21 years, was held Saturday evening in the church hall.

Here's four good reasons why more than 30,000 farmers rely on Gulf.

All over Canada farmers have come to count on Gulf quality farm petroleum products and the fast efficient service of the Gulf agent or distributor.

Mike Hudak, Hudak Farms Ltd., Essex, Ont.

"After 20 years with my Gulf distributor, I'm convinced that they know their stuff. Take Gulf Barium greases... on my combines, with high speed bearings, Barium keeps them cool and I don't have to grease as often. We keep running longer and with less wear, thanks to Gulf."

There's a Gulf agent or distributor near you. He has the expert advice that can help make a big difference in your farming operation.

Low Vanderheyden and Son, Strathroy, Ont.

"Growing tobacco is tricky business. I've got eight burners for the kilns, the temperatures should be kept between 85° and 165° when drying. Too much sway can cause problems. Gulf's kept me out of trouble. My Gulf agent usually calls three times a week. The service is exceptional."

Ralph and Neil Schade, Schade Bros., Ramblelawn Farms, Listowel, Ont.

"We've got an 11 year old tractor with about 8,000 hours on it. With Gulf oil, it still has its original pistons and sleeves. For the last 27 years we've had no complaints with Gulf. We take pride in our machinery, so it's Gulf all the way - nothing else."

Edwin Smart, Fergus, Ont.

"With 50 head in the field, service is an important factor in my farming. Sometimes, I need things within 24 hours. My Gulf agent bends over backwards to get me what I want. Gulf's never let me down. As for their products I wouldn't use anything I didn't believe was the best and I'm using them all."

Call the Gulf agent or distributor nearest you.

OFY PROJECT

History not an easy undertaking

By Garnet Pigden

This summer I shall be working on an Opportunities For Youth project, which will involve writing and compiling historical information about the Marmora area. A small book will be published within six months of the completion of the O.F.Y. project.

Some persons have said to me that a summer job of this nature would be very easy undertaking. They believe that the project merely involves the collecting of a few historical facts and typing them into book form.

History is often taught as most high school students think of it: as a record of the past, or as an account of what happened at earlier times. Teachers passing a number of papers to students, tell them to learn the facts they find and ask them to repeat these facts in class the next day. But history is not as simple as a pile of facts about the past.

We know that history is recorded from a historian's point of view. It is constantly changing and there are many different ways in which you can look at history. We could say that history depends on the importance of a certain event, and the importance of the individuals involved. The things that we may consider history at the present time may be considered useless or irrelevant in the future.

Every human being feels it of great practical importance to have "ROOTS" a heritage of which to be proud.

We all feel a strange link to our ancestral past. We must belong to something, we must know where and how we came into being. To have an accurately functioning memory that enables us to know of the past, how it explains the present and how it will mould our future is an asset to all mankind.

History is very important to us and this is one of the reasons why we cannot describe history as being simple.

The belief that history is made by men and women appears to us a principle justification for studying it. It will give us the knowledge to become a judge of actions and designs of men which will enable us to plan a prosperous future by avoiding past mistakes.

The study of history is something more than a weary pilgrimage through a text book. Man has begun to realize history is not only the memorization of facts taken from books which have dust an inch thick on them, but facts taken from the years past and relating them back to today's world.

History by no means is simple, but it can be made interesting, so that it will not seem boring and hard to comprehend, as some persons view it. Facts forced upon a student are most likely to go in one ear and out the other. History, like any other subject, requires work and a lot of concentration.

The notion that history is merely "past politics" is a gross fallacy. History should depict the whole of man's activities: not only the way in which he earns his living, but also the manner in which he lives. The study of history should involve man's opinion towards his society and his contributions to it. History is made by men and women, it is not a cold, isolated product produced by impersonal forces.

History can be dramatic and exciting. It is full of excursions and alarms; hair-breadth escapes with life and fortune resting on the blade of a paddle. History is a thoroughly good story. I guess you could call it a movie in technicolour, acted out on a vast stage, by lively characters who are intriguing, romantic, wise and foolish, good and bad, but hardly every dull. History is an account of great attempts made boldly, lost or won gaily, important events where one item has played an important part and is still playing an important part in the world of today.

In preparation both for university and for life, everyone should learn of history, not fictionalized but as a factual story. Such knowledge would give the student an understanding and a memory of our country's and the world's past heritage. History is one of the most satisfactory means by which students can preview the world where they will spend the greater part of their lives.

History builds personality. Through history we are encouraged to defend a hypothesis, to formulate critical attitudes and thus develop a number of historical values.

Through history we learn tolerance and a recognition of the facts and fancies of political, social and cultural differences that form a profound background in any historical recording. The desire to understand that histories make men wise, should be the principle conclusion of the study of history. Such a desire will enable us to draw the line between truth and folly. It will allow us to make a contribution to our own and other societies, a contribution that will make us able to cope with future shock.

It is commonly believed that history is over and done with, and therefore unalterable. But history is not the past, it is a record of the past. If there is no record, there is no history; and all records have a recorder whose views and prejudices enter into his record, and color it. We all know that two people generally view an event differently, because everybody is unique. Therefore, how can we assume recorded history to be the truth? No one can describe an occurrence in exactly the same way as another person.

In conclusion we can see that history is a compound of fact and imagination. Imagination brings the facts of life. The historian must interpret the facts and extract their importance.

Famed historian, Arthur Nevins describes history this way: "History is actually a bridge connecting the past with the present and pointing the road to the future."

It is interesting to read an episode in history, big or little, and apply one's mind to it in the light of today's knowledge. How could a threat have been better met? How a catastrophe averted? How was a great opportunity seized and developed?

It has been said that the youth of today live for the present, do not prepare for the future, nor look to the past. This is not true because most students are genuinely interested in the future and in history. Through history they can continually feed their minds with facts, thoughts and experiences, and as a result they will be prepared to assess situations, plan actions and hopefully cope and surmount any crisis.

Those who know little of history must be dull people. In studying the past of every man there is something which we need learn with advantage. His errors need not be repeated; his successes can be copied. We can learn without the hardship and loss of time involved in experimenting on our own.

Sunday June 15th was the first day of Nursing Home week. At Centre Hastings Nursing Home in Deloro, activities opened with a dignified and a very appropriate manner.

Ministers from the five different churches in Marmora held an interdenominational service held in the spacious dining room of the Home. Revs. Father Scanlon, J. Lombard, J. Peters, G. Kemp and J. Stevenson delivered choice Scripture readings and short Homilies to twenty-seven residents able to attend along with sixty relatives, friends, volunteer helpers and staff on duty. Mrs. Myrna Neal accompanied on the organ, throughout the service.

After the service a light lunch and tea was prepared and served by Mrs. Don Donaldson with Mrs. Lou Marshall and Mrs. Gordon Casselman assisting at the tea table, to the ministers and Mr. and Mrs. Horvath.

A social hour was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Horvath and the ministers.

With this opening today, the ecumenical spirit was very much in evidence as all the residents with relatives and friends, joined in worship of God in their own way and in their own belief. This a wonderful way to enjoy christian fellowship.

Couple celebrate 60th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. David Vansickle, of Lyndhurst, celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary, on Saturday, May 24th, 1975, they were married north of Marmora, by the Rev. Charles Goodrich.

In honor of this auspicious occasion, a very special dinner, planned by their son and three daughters, along with their grandchildren and great grandchildren, was held at a Hotel in Havelock, when 39 relatives attended. Mr. and Mrs. Vansickle had resided in the Marmora area for many years before moving to Lyndhurst.

They were presented with a beautiful crystal vase, which contained a colorful arrangement of white mums, and red and pink carnations.

Following the dinner a social time was held at their son's home in Marmora, where relatives attended from Bowmanville; Brighton; Buckhorn; Burlington; Campbellford; Cobourg; Lyndhurst; Marmora; Peterborough; and Sudbury.

One week later this popular couple were honored also by their church friends on May 30th, when the congregations of the Sweets Corners and Athens Free Methodist Churches, gathered at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Donald McGregor, of Lyndhurst, and presented them with two beautiful plaques, as well as a gift of money.

A delightful social evening was enjoyed by all.

The bride and groom of sixty years received many cards of good wishes, including messages from the Governor General and letters of congratulations from Hon. Robert Stanfield; Hon. James A.C. Auld, MPP, and Tom Cossitt, MP for Leeds, as well as a plaque from Premier William Davis.

Township man escapes uninjured

A Rawdon Township man, David John Oliver, 27, escaped uninjured, on a one-car accident around 12:30 a.m. June 14.

Mr. Oliver was alone in his vehicle and was eastbound when he lost control of his vehicle and took out a length of fence and gate belonging to John Lindale.

OPP Constable D. Traviss estimated damage to the car at $500 and to the fence and gate at $75.

RACCOON BLAMED

A raccoon is being blamed for a one-car accident on Highway 62, at the Crookston Road, five miles south of Madoc, at 5:45 a.m., June 15.

Terence Dancey, 22, of Oakville, was driving north on the highway, and said he lost control of his car when a raccoon ran across the highway.

The car dropped off the pavement on a curve, skidded 105 feet, then went back onto the highway. It skidded on the wet pavement for another 120 feet, entered the ditch, and went 196 feet through the ditch, and then another 348 feet before rolling at least three times and doing a cartwheel.

OPP Constable Bill Haggerty says the car is a complete writeoff at $1,500.

Dancey and a passenger Allan Best, 21, also of Oakville, were taken to Belleville General Hospital by ambulance. Both suffered lacerations to the face and head.

Area teen-agers injured in crash

Two area teen-agers were injured in a two-car accident on the Old Marmora Road, 3-10ths of a mile west of Highway 62, at 7:50 p.m. June 14.

Robert P. Willemsen, 17, of Madoc, was taken to Belleville General Hospital by ambulance with a cut left arm.

Wilma Cherlebois, 15, of Bonarlaw, received neck injuries and also was taken to hospital by ambulance.

Both were passengers in a vehicle driven by Willemsen which was involved in an accident with a vehicle driven by George Rose, also of Madoc. The latter was alone in his car and was not injured.

Damage to the Willemsen vehicle was estimated at $1,000 and to the Rose auto at $500.

OPP Constable Bill Reid investigated. Both injured people were treated at the hospital and released.

$1,000 damage in accident on Highway 7

No injuries were reported in a two car accident at the intersection of Highway 7 and the Deloro Road.

Patrick E. Maloney, 41, of Deloro, was attempting to make a left turn into the Deloro Road, when a second vehicle, driven by Nathan Bronson, 23, of Madoc, came into collision with him.

OPP Constable Bob Bonter estimated damage to the Maloney car at $600 and to the Bronson vehicle at $400.

Appointment

A former minister of the Ivanhoe Pastoral charge, Mr. G. Arnold Creaser has accepted the appointment to serve the Queensboro-Eldorado Pastoral Charge of Belleville Presbytery in the Bay of Quinte Conference. He will succeed the Rev. Wendell M. Sedgwick B.A., B.D.

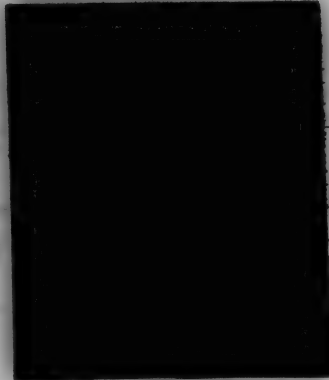

Mr. Creaser has served nine years in Erie Presbytery of Hamilton Conference, having been at Lesterville-Vanessa for four years before his appointment to Nanticoke where he spent the past five years. It was during Mr. Creaser's ministry there, that he celebrated his 25th anniversary in the ministry of the church.

His ministry at Nanticoke and Cheapside will conclude on June 3 and he will conduct services at Queensboro and Eldorado on Sunday, July 6.

Mr. Creaser was married to the former Phyllis Irene Twiddy 25 years ago on September 8, 1950, and they have two sons Dwight and Dana.

The family will reside at the United Church Manse in Queensboro, eight miles north-east of Madoc.

Mr. Creaser was a minister of the Ivanhoe Pastoral, in 1949.

Sandford Leonard Smith, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred L. Smith, Sateclonia Ranch, R.R.#1 Madoc, Ont. graduated from the University of Guelph with a Bachelor of Science (Agriculture), degree on May 23, 1975. Sandy will be continuing his studies at Althouse Teacher's College, University of Western Ontario in London.

Likes news of 47 yrs ago

Thank you! for your decision in putting back the oldest in your Looking Back column.

And, as an example of the value to me and I have no doubt others, was the lead item of 47 years ago in June 4th, 1975 issue mentioning Edward Plane and the short hen's egg story.

I might say I knew him well as a neighbour and trustee of Jarvis settlement school, which I was attending as a child in 1906 and later. There was also a lake near the school by the same name.

I am looking forward to the book which was announced in the Review last year of old days in Madoc Township, to which I have already sent a small contribution of remembrances and some pictures.

Yours truly,
Ray W. Jarvis.

Remembrance Day no longer a holiday in the schools?

WE public school students in the County of Hastings no longer have a school holiday on Remembrance Day, November 11, each year?
Such could be the case, if the Hastings County board of education goes along with a motion moved by J. Forbes and seconded by R. Williams, at its June meeting. The motion stipulates that commencing with the 1976-77 school year, that Remembrance Day, if it falls on a school day, will be a working day for public and staff, and no longer declared a school holiday. An amendment was moved by D. Williams, and seconded by F. Rose, that the motion be deferred to the policy and bylaws committee for consideration and further recommendation to the board. The amendment was carried, and the original motion deferred. The issue will be discussed again when the committee makes its recommendations.

It's up to public to push the gov't

Serious inflation will continue until the general public tells government, through the electoral process, that it wants meaningful anti-inflationary policies, Alan B. Hockin, Executive Vice-President, Investments, of Toronto Dominion Bank, said recently.

Speaking to a meeting of industrialists, Mr. Hockin said that the problem of inflation could not be approached in realistic fashion without recognizing the basic human condition of greed.

"I firmly believe," he said, "that the old-fashioned sins of selfishness and greed lie at the root of most inflationary situations."

In most cases, he said, the current struggle by certain groups for economic advantage is a response to some prior aggrandizements by others.

"I am afraid that politicians are only reflecting the attitudes of the electorate," he said. "Until the general public is prepared to carry its determination through an election, governments are likely to be unwilling to commit themselves to meaningful anti-inflationary policies."

"One of the traditional elements in society which could be relied upon to favor saving and investment, namely the business community, has been circumscribed to a degree where its willingness and ability to provide for future consumption needs of society as a whole through investments has been weakened."

Governments, he said, have encouraged consumption to cure unemployment and focus attention on the immediate short run problems at the expense of more fundamental and long range issues.

"As a result, governments have fallen too easily into the trap of choosing immediate benefits for which the bill will come in later," he said.

In addition, there is an increasing atmosphere of skepticism and disbelief in the skill and capacity of governments and a broad distrust of the intentions of governments where one's own interests are at stake.

Mr. Hockin said that businessmen should be cautious in their own operations, particularly in investing only on the assumption of future inflation.

Trudeau spends hour with Nixon

Prime Minister Trudeau spent about an hour on provincial Liberal leader Robert Nixon's farm taking part in what was billed as an old-time political picnic.

Trudeau, the press corps and his aides arrived on three defence department Huey helicopters worth $1 million each, a day after Conservative Tom Cossitt criticized him for using defence craft on a whirlwind weekend tour of Ontario.

Telling the crowd of about 3,000 he wanted to remain non-partisan on such a fun occasion, Trudeau said that Nixon had invited him in for a family gathering, but "I didn't think he had such a large family."

As soon as Trudeau's helicopter touched down, security men suffered a few anxious moments when the cheering crowd rushed through the security ropes and crushed forward to get a glimpse of the Prime Minister.

As soon as Trudeau's helicopter left, most of the crowd began leaving also.

Rollins lists senior citizens program

Clarke T. Rollins, MPP Hastings, today hailed senior citizens week in the province as the ideal time to acquaint everyone with the programs, services and recreational activities available to those 65 years and over in the Province of Ontario.

"These programs," he told this newspaper, "cover income protection, shelter and health care, along with a host of recreational activities at reduced costs, and are designed to keep our senior citizens active and content in day to day living."

INCOME PROTECTION:

The Guaranteed Annual Income Program (GAINS) assures all people 65 and over a minimum annual income of $2,880 for singles and $5,760 for married couples. This is the highest rate in Canada and, I believe, money well-spent.

The Ontario tax credit program can offset the tax burden for many senior citizens. The property tax credit has been doubled from $90 to $180 and the pensioner credit has been raised from $100 to $110.

SHELTER:

The Ontario Housing Corporation provides subsidized housing in apartments throughout the province for those 65 and over. There are several of these buildings in Hastings and more under construction. Geared to income, the rent averages about $46 per month.

Ontario funds a low-cost nursing home program to which a patient can pay as little as $5.90 a day. There are now 400 licenced nursing homes in Ontario and 23,000 beds.

HEALTH CARE:

A major part of a senior citizen's income is often budgeted for drugs and other medical expenses. Ontario has an extensive program which covers health needs at a minimal cost to the individual concerned.

The Ontario Drug Benefit Plan will give free prescription drugs to all residents 65 and over effective August 1, 1975. Drug therapy will also be available in the home. OHIP is now free to all senior citizens who have lived in Ontario for at least one year. This covers all eligible dependents. OHIP must be notified when you turn 65.

A Home Care Program - providing specialized services in the patient's own home - is available to 99.9 per cent of Ontario residents on the recommendation of a doctor.

RECREATIONAL ACTIVITIES:

Many universities and colleges charge only nominal fees to senior citizens who wish to take courses.

Most entertainment attractions around the province - eg. Upper Canada Village, Ontario Place, the Canadian National Exhibition - have reduced admission rates for senior citizens.

Travel rates are considerably less for those 65 and over on major rail, air and bus lines.

Senior Citizens' Clubs in Hastings are celebrating Senior Citizens' Week with a variety of festivities. Picnics, bus trips, pot luck dinners, bazaars and group church services are some of the activities I know about. I hope everyone concerned will join in the fun.

ONTARIO SCHOOLS

New legislation should go long way to preserve peace

By Don Fredericks

If Education Minister Tom Wells' new legislation on teacher bargaining is strictly and impartially enforced, it should go a long way toward preserving peace in Ontario schools.

I'm not worried by the fact that it makes teacher strikes legal. They've been taking place anyway within the existing legal vacuum so they might as well be legalized.

The important point is that, even though legal, they'll now be a lot more difficult to carry out.

The new legislation has many provisions but there are four I think are particularly important.

The first is the requirement of a secret ballot vote by teachers before any strike takes place. This should apply to any strike by any union in any kind of business, industry or government service.

I only hope that it is rigorously enforced by the Ontario Government in the case of teacher-board disputes and carefully supervised so that the voting is, indeed, secret.

Many strikes in many kinds of organizations have taken place in the past few years, not because the majority of union members really wanted them, but because strong radical leaders have been able to ram through strike votes.

Many of these so-called votes were merely by a show of hands at hysterical meetings attended by minorities of union members. Moderates hesitate to attend such meetings and those who do go are often intimidated by loud-mouth radicals.

Teachers tend to be, by nature, intelligent and moderate. If they're assured the protection of absolutely secret balloting, I don't think majorities of them will vote to strike except in the face of really serious grievances.

The second important point is the provision of heavy fines for those taking part in illegal strikes, sick-in or other sanctions.

If not enforced, this part of the legislation could become a mockery and boomerang on the government. If the government makes it clear, however, that it will be enforced and that teachers breaking it will be fined, it should prevent wildcat walk-outs and harassments - like that one in December, 1973, when Metro teachers stayed away from school for a day.

Here again, teachers are basically law-abiding. The majority will not want to come into conflict with a law, particularly if it has the support of a majority of citizens.

A third and most important section of the new legislation would make it unlawful for principals or vice-principals to take part in any teacher strike or sanction, legal or not.

In the last couple of years, principals have been taking part in teacher strikes. Whether they've really wanted to has been questionable. They've been forced to walk out through fear of being isolated from their teachers if they didn't.

If the law now says that principals must not go on strike, I'm confident they will not. This will put school boards in stronger positions to fight strikes and keep schools operating if they occur.

The principal is the key man in any school. He's in a position of special responsibility to the school board, the students, the parents and the whole community. If, in the face of clear and definite legislation, he chooses to ignore that responsibility and take part in a strike or walk-out, he should be fired. An educator who can't live with this restriction shouldn't take the job of principal in the first place.

A fourth important point in the new law is the one prohibiting walk-outs, slow-downs, work-to-rule campaigns and similar teacher actions while a contract is still in force.

I hope this will be strongly enforced. I hope teachers will generally accept and support it.

Wild-cat sanctions may be appropriate for postmen, truck drivers and some other industrial workers. They are not for teachers who should value public confidence and try to live up to the high opinion that most parents still have of them.

Teachers, not school boards, have been the losers in the last couple of years through irresponsible walk-outs and similar actions. They've lost prestige and public respect.

On the whole, I think the new teacher bargaining legislation is moderate and fair. It's intended to give teachers equitable salary scales but not unreasonable and greedy ones.

I think the public will support it. For their own sakes, I hope the teachers will, too. I hope they'll sincerely try to make it work to end the disgraceful and juvenile squabbling that has brought all education into dispute during the last year.

Grit organizers plan strategy

Organizers from throughout the new provincial riding of Hastings-Peterborough met with an organizing team from the Liberal Party of Ontario, Toronto, at the Hobson Ranch, near Apsley.

David Hobson, the Liberal candidate contesting the new riding in the provincial election expected this fall, and his wife Annie, hosted organizers from Madoc, Stirling, Belleville, Bancroft, Maynooth and Apsley.

The LPO workers explained party procedures, outlining campaign organization.

Other things discussed were the recent party picnic held at the farm of provincial party leader Robert Nixon, where Prime Minister Trudeau was an honored guest. Some 7,000 people attended the event.

A campaign school will take place in Toronto at York University in early August, and several people from the riding are to attend.

Mr. Hobson has been visiting all parts of the expanding riding, and has been meeting as many constituents as possible.

One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, PO Box 267, Elmhurst

Farmers don't have a huge voting clout these days but they are obviously being heard at the various levels of government.

The recent announcement that the province has vetoed a Metro Toronto plan to dump city garbage in the Port Hope area was encouraging to farmers and environmentalists. Common sense has prevailed because some concerned citizens stated their case clearly and forcefully.

Those eggheads in the big city of Tranna have been stumped again in trying to get rid of their garbage. A year or more ago, they were planning on dumping about 400,000 tons a year in the Tavistock-Palmerston area. The great outcry from the boondocks at that time made them change their mind.

Then, they suggested that the Great Pine Ridge Area might be a good place.

Area citizens, including a strong delegation from the Ontario Federation of Agriculture and the Durham federation, protested vigorously. In fact, the Durham federation representatives made their point in a forceful and sensible manner.

"Why," they said, "didn't you bigshots consult us before you even proposed the plan to the government?"

That makes sense. Farmers are the last ones to want the natural beauty of the country desecrated. They don't want to live beside a garbage dump, the same as any urban citizen. Especially a garbage dump the size of that which would come from Metro.

Large-scale dumps such as the one proposed could pollute groundwater and endanger water supplies on farms. Besides, it stinks. No matter how they try to disguise it, garbage stinks. It can be covered with earth within a few hours of being dumped but it still stinks.

No matter how thin you slice it, it's still bologna.

Recent breakthroughs in research should stop all this talk of dumping garbage in the country. University of Guelph researchers, for instance, have come up with an idea on farm effluent which could revolutionize energy.

Their idea is that manure manufactures methane gas and methane gas could become an excellent source of energy on the farm. Think of it! All that hog manure or cattle manure may be heating the farm home some day. Not only that, but when the methane gas is removed, the farmer will still be able to spread the stuff on his land and retain most of the fertilizer-value in it, too.

Those are the kind of eggheads we need in this province: men who can come up with practical solutions to problems.

Which is why that extra $3 million for research money in agriculture was a blessing when introduced by Bill Stewart early in June. The province will provide the money in addition to the $15.8 million already being spent on agricultural research.

For those who don't know, Mr. Stewart is the minister of Agriculture and Food for Ontario.

It sounds like a lot of money: Total $18.8 million.

And agriculture is fortunate to get an increase when it's difficult these days to get anything extra from the province. But the amount was put in perspective by the researchers at Guelph. They said the total gross value of agricultural production in Ontario last year was $2.3 billion. The amount of money for research then becomes less than one per cent of the total industry.

Which is not a high base for a high, technology industry.

Most industries in the same category in the public sector, they said, would be spending as much as five per cent of the gross for research and development so one per cent is not exorbitant.

However, it's nothing to be sneezed at.

Mr. Stewart said some of the extra money will be spent on developing soybeans so that this important commodity can be grown more extensively in Ontario and perhaps other parts of Canada. Hardy strains are needed for the shorter Ontario growing season. If these hurdles can be jumped, Canada will not be nearly as dependent on the importation of soybeans as it is now.

And the way this product is being adapted for food these days makes it an important crop, indeed.

Don't work soil when its still wet

"Do not start working on your garden while the soil is still wet," advises Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist J.K. Hughes. The soil in many subdivisions is basically clay and it is important to let it dry out properly before turning it over. Otherwise, it comes up in large lumps and dry out and remain unmanageable throughout the growing season.

Improper drainage because of compacted soil is the main cause of poor gardens in Ontario. To improve drainage by increasing soil porosity, incorporate some organic matter or coarse material, such as composted straw or sand, into the garden. To get crops growing, plant them in soil that has had about two pounds of a 10-10-10 analysis fertilizer incorporated every 100 square feet. Some row crops will require a side-dressing of additional nutrients part way through the summer.

Choose native trees for your garden

Choose Canada's native trees and shrubs for your garden. Although they are not as popular as many European varieties, they can be just as attractive.

"Because our ancestors had to clear the land so they could farm, we tend to regard native trees and shrubs as weeds," says Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist D.B. McNeill. "However, some of the best native plants perform just as well or better than imported varieties in Ontario gardens."

Watch for Blue Beech or hop hornbeam at your garden center. This hardy, small tree grows to about 30 feet and can be used as a shrubby lawn specimen or a dense screen. It grows well in dense shade and is particularly suitable for large yards and park-like settings.

Be the first on your block with a Kentucky Coffee Tree. This rare plant grows to a height of 50 feet and does well in southwestern Ontario. It is picturesque -- particularly in winter when its large, open branches show to best advantage.

Small trees from Ontario suitable for landscape use include the Showy Mountain Ash, Canada Plum and Canadian Serviceberry. The White Cedar is attractive singly or in a hedge. Among the large native trees to consider are the Eastern Hemlock, Red Maple, White Ash, Red Oak, Black Cherry and Shagbark Hickory.

Parliament Hill

Long working days mean most MP's earn their increased pay!

OTTAWA — (SF) — The working day for MPs on Parliament Hill begins anywhere from 7:30 a.m. to noon. Most members arrive in time for constituency chores and mail tasks before they head for committee sittings at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday there are no committees in the morning, because the various parties caucus until 1 p.m. On Friday, the Commons opens for business at 11 a.m.

Question Period is the event which attracts most newsmen into the Commons chamber, and it begins shortly after Parliament opens at 2 p.m., and lasts until 3 p.m., except on Fridays, when 11 a.m. is the opening of the sitting.

It's a common complaint of visitors that there aren't very many members in their places in the Commons, but few outsiders realize that the committee schedule runs during the morning three days a week, and in the evening until 10:30 p.m. — often later — three days weekly. Afternoon meetings of committees begin at 3:30 p.m., hence the deserted appearance of the Commons after that hour.

A handful of MPs belong to what the people on the Hill call the "Tuesday to Thursday Club," so named because its members habitually shake the dust of Ottawa from their shoes on Thursday to head for home constituencies, and do not return until Tuesday noon. In some cases, it's a travelling necessity, because of the distances to be covered, but in other cases, extra long weekends represent dereliction of duty.

I hasten to add that members of the "Tuesday to Thursday Club" are in the minority amongst MPs, but if you're curious to discover the habits of your own representative, try asking him how many Monday and Friday sessions have passed without your constituencies being represented in the Commons.

Generally speaking, MPs put in 45 to 50 hours weekly on Parliament Hill, in committees, their offices, or in the Commons, plus another ten hours on average weekly in their constituencies. That rounds at roughly 20 hours weekly more than most of us work, and mind you, that calculation of working time for MPs does not count the endless travelling time which those from distant ridings must expend.

The new salary scale for MPs, taken in that light, does not seem unreasonable. It will mean that some are underpaid and some are overpaid, but more will fall into the former category than into the latter. A $24,000 annual salary is not excessive for a job like that.

Still, the question of $10,600 annual tax free expenses galls. Many MPs over spend their allowances, but many do not. The majority, I'm sure, would happily trade their tax free expense allowances for unlimited, but accountable expenses, and that is the direction in which Parliament should head.

There is no reason why an MP should have to spend his own money in the interests of doing his job. Neither is there any justification for letting some MPs pocket expense money which is not used, or applying extra expense money to political campaigns.

Seek medical help if you think you have an allergy

by David Woods

The great majority of people are allergic to something — even if it's only to the great majority of other people.

In fact, it has been found by the National Institute of Health in the U.S. that allergies are the commonest form of illness, affecting about 75 per cent of the population to some degree.

Fortunately, though, far fewer people are affected by the things they're allergic to severely enough to disrupt their lives and cause them to seek medical help.

Among foods, the commonest allergens are eggs, milk, corn, wheat and yeast; other sources of allergy are insects, animals, dust, bacteria, wool, drugs and chemicals. But perhaps the most frequent allergy-causing substances are the various summer pollens — especially those from ragweed — that induce that uncomfortable state known as hay fever.

As well as hay fever, asthma, sinusitis, eczema, hives and even headaches can all be caused by allergy.

The traditional testing methods which are used to find out what the person is allergic to involve dropping minute amounts of the suspected cause into the patient's skin.

Once the allergen is found, treatment consists either of avoiding the irritant altogether; or, if that's impossible, of taking a series of shots to immunize against it.

But, says Dr. William van Hoogenhuize, one of Canada's comparatively small number of physicians specializing in allergic diseases, "the patient has to be patient." It may take as much as three years before permanent protection against, say, ragweed can be achieved.

Dr. van Hoogenhuize uses what he calls a provocative testing method in which patients sniff the actual substance to which they think they're allergic.

The difficulty, he says, is in knowing what problems are allergy induced in the first place: for example, Dr. van Hoogenhuize suggests that anyone who has more than three prolonged colds in the course of a year should consider the possibility of allergy treatment. He also says that more and more potential allergens are coming into existence — notably from among the newer chemicals and food additives.

So far as foods are concerned, you can do your own allergy testing, says Dr. van Hoogenhuize: simply stop eating whatever you think is causing the problem for five days; then eat it by itself for one or two meals.

In general, most allergies are minor revolutions by the body against elements it doesn't like; most of them are resolved quickly and quietly. But when they're not, the skin or the circulation will soon let you know. Itching, swelling, sneezing or other discomforts are all signs that it's time to bring in reinforcements. And this you can do by seeing your doctor.

Bill Smiley

Many things bother me

By BILL SMILEY

As regular readers of this column are aware, there are a great many things that bother me. On the whole, I'm glad of it. May I never become one of those people who are never bothered about anything, or if they are, don't have enough guts to say or do anything about it.

The list is endless: Celsius temperatures; those silly organs at hockey games; strident Women's Libbers; stupid male chauvinists; gutless politicians; lawless unions; greedy big business; chicken bureaucrats; tire-squealing adolescents of any age; mindless beer ads; town engineers who want to cut down trees; snotty hotel desk clerks; religious fanatics; ripoff artists in the social services; the Receiver-General of Canada; most administrators; most people who make more money than I do. I could fill a column.

This should make me a very disturbed young man. I use the term advisedly. How come everyone is getting old but you and me?

Fortunately, this has not happened. There are so many things I like that I am usually in a state of happy balance, like a fat lady going on a diet of ice cream sundaes.

However, there is one thing in this country that grates me thoroughly. It's a nasty thing, spreading like a cancer, as difficult to fight, and just as fatal to the people infected.

That thing is the steady growth in this country, fostered by a small, often vicious, but vociferous minority, of Anti-Americanism.

I don't think it has yet grown to uncontrollable proportions in the corpus Canadiensis, and I hope it can be cut out with some rigorous surgery in the right places.

It's a creepy, crawling business, and the healthy mind can be smeared with it subtly, without even noticing its existence.

It's hard to pin down. You can find it among educators, in the press, among politicians, and in varying degrees of shrillness throughout the media.

Many honest nationalists are taken in, and eventually find that their pride in things Canadian has been warped into Anti-Americanism. Let there be no mistake. There is no real connection. The former is healthy. The latter is sick.

This has always been a country loaded with prejudice, whatever you may think. A couple of generations back, the Anglo-Saxons of this fine free country of ours looked down their noses, even though their own background was an English slum, a Scottish croft or an Irish shanty.

With education, enlightenment, and a fine performance by most of those lowly immigrants, came a change in atmosphere.

The grandchildren of those earlier prejudiced people showed a remarkable lack of that narrowness. Canada was becoming an oasis of freedom for the individual. People were leaning over backward to prove they were liberal and "tolerant."

And now all that narrowness and secret hatred seems to be channeling itself into Anti-Americanism.

People in this country talked endlessly about Watergate, as though such a sewer of corruption were peculiar to Americans. They sniggered about the antics of American leaders.

There was a particularly nasty type of something near gloating when the Americans pulled out of Vietnam.

There was and is a proliferating of popular articles about the Americans owning Canadian industry, buying up Canadian property.

Let's put an end to this slimy business. Let's look at our own dredging scandals and lawless unions.

Let's stop secretly cheering when the Yanks get a bloody nose somewhere.

It's not their fault that they're rich and powerful. They didn't seize our industry. We sold it to them.

We could have a lot worse neighbors than the Americans; in fact almost anyone I can think of.

Anti-Americanism is chiefly petty envy, and is found only among those who are petty and envious. We're too big for that.

An attack of giggles in the Legislature

A remark by Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon during discussion on employment levels touched off an attack of the giggles in the Legislature.

It all started on a serious note when Nixon asked Premier William Davis what the government was doing to create jobs in view of a Statistics Canada report listing the province's unemployment at 6.3 per cent — the highest since 1960.

Assuring Nixon that the government is "keeping an eye on" employment levels, Davis said part of the 6.3 percentage relates to the auto industry.

The government, he added, is anxiously awaiting a federal budget which Ontario hopes will be expansionary.

Ian Deans (NDP-Wentworth) asked the Premier to name a program brought in by the government to produce new jobs.

"I would say," Davis replied, "...I can't, the treasurer might be able to."

"You looked after Judy and several others," Nixon needed. (Davis appointed former federal cabinet minister Judy LaMarsh to head a royal commission into TV violence April 14.)

"Listen, you provided some employment last Saturday," (referring to Trudeau's visit) Davis shot back. "Have you got your farm cleaned up yet?"

A chorus of government members seized on the mention of the Liberal picnic at Nixon's home to arrange the leader of the Opposition.

"What about the helicopter pilots used?" offered Agriculture Minister William Stewart in reference to the helicopters carrying Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's party to the Nixon picnic.

"Do you want us to all go and clean up the farm for you?" Davis asked.

"I didn't see Taylor's lips bruised in the kissing booth," chortled Transportation Minister John Rhodes. Paul Taylor (L-Carleton East) was one of several Liberals offering kisses for sale at the Nixon picnic.

Taylor jumped to his feet calling to speak on a point of order but was drowned out by the chorus of laughter.

The story of our sewers - two viewpoints!

"Sewers are most dangerous conveniences. They breed diphtheria, fevers and reuptic diseases.

"Typhoid and typhus and yellow fever are the children of defective sewage."

I'm quoting Mrs. Julia McNair Wright, author of The Complete Home, a U.S. volume of household hints, Victorian manners and morals and medical misinformation published late in the 19th Century.

There's more:

"Sewers are as yet never absolutely well constructed. They are never in perfect order. If our own sewers are not dealing us out death, you may be sure that our neighbors are bestowing ruin upon us.

"Even when we fancy all is right, before the sentinels of nose and palate give a warning of poison, our atmosphere is loaded with spores of disease ... our blood is poisoned by our inhaling poisonous spores. These spores come from decaying animal and vegetable matter and are in their complete state contained in the bath-enclosing wash water and the chamber refuse of people suffering from these diseases."

She may not know medicine, or even much about the safe disposal of sanitary wastes, but she's not wishy-washy about her convictions, even when she's wrong.

She gets quite colorful on the subject of traps - the bends fitted into plumbing to hold a small stand of water which blocks off any odor from the plumbing below:

"Lie awake some night and listen and a whistle like the low his of a springing snakes warns you that sewer gas is ignoring the traps and rising through the overflow pipe."

With this sort of medical opinion being distributed to the general public, when sensible information was available, it's a wonder that sewers and sewage treatment were ever accepted in our cities.

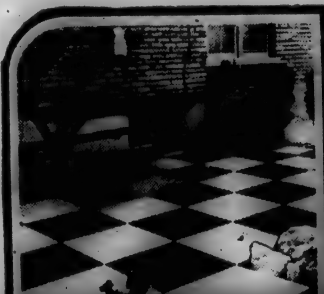

But they have been accepted, with no ill effects from poisonous spores and no ruin bestowed upon us. In fact, modern sewage treatment has permitted healthy urban communities and virtually eliminated the diseases that result from unsanitary practices in dealing with human waste.

Five and a half million people in Ontario alone are now served by sewage collection and treatment works and this number is growing steadily.

So there, Mrs. Wrightly!

Veteran campers know:

- When pitching a tent, place it where the sun will hit it sometime during the day to dry it off. Always set it up so the door is away from the prevailing wind. If the wind is shifting, rig a protective tarp in front of the door. If possible, park your car parallel to the door to serve as a windbreak.
- When traveling, static on your car radio may indicate a loose ground wire on your trailer hookup. Stop and find out which wire isn't making contact.
- Never fold rubber air mattresses — they can crack that way. They should be rolled up loosely.
- If it looks like a chilly night ahead, eat a candy bar a half hour or more before bedding down. The added sugar in your blood will increase your metabolism and give you greater body heat.
- Prevent flashlights from accidentally turning on in transit by reversing one of the batteries until you reach your campsite.
- A trailer's holding tank can be kept cleaner and more odor-free by pouring in some scented liquid soap regularly.
- Stuck in the boondocks and out of soap? Salt, dry paper towels and elbow grease will clean the grime off the toughest of cooking pans. If you want to lessen cleaning chores when cooking over an open fire, coat the bottoms of the pans with a moistened soap bar before you cook. The black will wipe right off afterwards.

— If you put crumpled newspaper in the dead air spaces in your ice chest, you'll find it'll make your ice last longer. Newspaper is an excellent insulator.

— When filling your trailer's water tank with water you want to be sure is safe to drink, you can chlorinate it with ordinary household bleach, using the instructions on the bottle. When in doubt, always boil water before drinking. It won't always eliminate objectionable tastes, but it'll be safe. To eliminate the flat taste after boiling, pour the water from one pan to another to aerate it, then add a pinch of salt.

— When canoeing, your feet are bound to get wet. Plastic bags tied over your shoes can keep your feet dry and warm. And when you stop to do some hiking, if you can't hide the canoe, hide the paddles. It's tough for someone to steal your canoe without paddles.

Step into Huronia history

Each summer Sainte-Marie among the Hurons hosts La Compagnie Franche de la Marine of the old Fort in St. Helene Island, Montreal. La Compagnie performs military drills and tattoos of the 17th and 18th centuries.

The Museum of the Upper Lakes in Wasaga Beach tells two stories; the history of shipping on the Great Lakes and the story of the British schooner Nancy, sunk there in the War of 1812.

Give your roof a raincoat and save a bundle on roof repairs, year after year, with flynnote elastomeric

plastic roof coating.

This product is a unique Elastomeric Liquid Plastic coating that cures rapidly to a rubber-like film, with excellent tensile strength, elongation, durability and fire resistant. flynnote is strongly recommended for barn roofs and all farm buildings. Your Choice of Six Beautiful Colors.

- ★ Economical A coating of Elastomeric Liquid Plastic can make your present roof as good as new and you can save money on the cost of a new roof. You'll save on costly future repairs and upkeep, too!
- ★ Durable Elastomeric Liquid Plastic lasts for many years. Retains its color and good looks. Stays resistant to cold, heat, weather, oils and chemicals. No drying out and cracking!
- ★ Flexible Elastomeric Liquid Plastic forms a long-life rubber-like coating over the entire surface that stays elastic and expands and contracts with the roof and the weather. Won't buckle or pull open.
- ★ Versatile Elastomeric Liquid Plastic can be used on almost all common surfaces and construction materials, pitched or dead level.
- ★ Colorful Elastomeric Liquid Plastic coatings are available in a wide range of permanent colors: black, white, blue, red, green, silver, slate grey. Special colors available in 165 gallon minimum batch quantities.
- ★ Lightweight A complete application of Elastomeric Liquid Plastic weighs only 5-10 lbs. per 100 square feet. Reduces overall dead weight, compared with conventional systems.

Chances are a single low-cost coat of Elastomeric Liquid Plastic will turn the home you do have into the home you'd like to have.

- ★ Anti-slip Provides anti-slip characteristics to surfaces where non-skidding is most important... roof decks, pool decks, driveways, parking areas.
- ★ Easy to maintain Elastomeric Liquid Plastic washes clean and bright with a garden hose!

Elastomeric Liquid Plastic does do wonderful things to any surface!

- ★ Repairs Elastomeric Liquid Plastic fills and seals cracks, splits and holes and "ties down" shingles.
- ★ Protects Elastomeric Liquid Plastic seals out moisture to eliminate deterioration of roofing material. Resists the effects of smoke, fumes, sun-light and weather. Keeps roofs and sidewalls looking new and in "mint condition."
- ★ Waterproofs Elastomeric Liquid Plastic forms a watertight shield over the entire surface, for years of leakproof wear. No water damage with Elastomeric Liquid Plastic on the job!
- ★ Insulates Elastomeric Liquid Plastic helps keep interiors cooler in summer, warmer in winter. Helps cut down both air conditioning and heating costs!
- ★ Rejuvenates Elastomeric Liquid Plastic makes old roofs and sidewalls look like new. Provides an attractive, colorful roof finish that adds both beauty and value to your home.
- ★ Saves you money Elastomeric Liquid Plastic helps save on fuel bills and moisture damage. And saves you many hundreds of dollars on repairs, maintenance and replacement, and sidewall painting.

When the subject of protective coatings comes up... Elastomeric Liquid Plastic covers the subject—beautifully!

Elastomeric Liquid Plastic renews and protects roofs and sidewalls...and enhances the house they surround!

Weeds unsightly appearance

Weeds along fencerows spread into crops and give farms an unsightly appearance.

"Control them with residual herbicides," says R.H. Brown, Head of the Biology and Horticulture Section at the Ridgetown College of Agricultural Technology. "A band of spray a foot wide on each side of the fence is effective applied before weed growth begins. Although the initial cost is quite high -- more than $80 to $100 an acre -- residual herbicides are worthwhile. After all, enough to cover an acre covers about four miles of fencerow and control lasts two or more years."

Residual sprays move into the soil with moisture, so it is best to apply them in early spring when rainfall is frequent. Use Hyvar, Krovax, Eramox, Karmex, Tandex, Amizine, borates or chlorates, and for safety and efficiency, always follow package directions exactly. If they are applied after some weeds have started, the addition of Gramoxone to burn these weeds off is recommended.

If residual (long-term vegetation control) herbicides are used, do not plan to move the fence for several years, or until the chemicals have broken down.

GAP CLOSING

Home price disparity is levelling off

The disparity between house prices in many of Canada's major cities levelled off slightly during the first quarter of 1975, according to figures just released by W. Frank Real Estate Limited.

"For the most part, the closing of the house price disparity gap resulted from an increase in the price of a home in centres where housing has been historically lower in cost and a lack of low cost housing in areas where an abundance of such housing existed previously," says Walter Frank, a member of Coast to Coast Real Estate Service.

According to a Canada-wide Residential Market Disparity Chart issued by the Coast to Coast Real Estate Service, a Calgary homeowner moving to the Toronto region can expect to pay 1.28 times his current housing market value to get the same type of property in the new city.

That means a $50,000 house in Calgary costs $64,000 in the Toronto economic area.

"What this all means is that, with a few exceptions, corporations will not have to compensate an employee as much for additional housing costs as they did at the end of 1974.

"This type of information has proven to be very valuable to corporations needing an accurate picture of what the employee's financial compensation for a move should be," Mr. Frank said.

"Without the compensation, an employee being transferred may refuse the move even when it involves a promotion because the additional cost is too great.

"Although this chart is not designed to place a value on any particular property due to locational and individual considerations, we are prepared to provide corporations with specific comparative value reports through the Coast to Coast Real Estate Service," Mr. Frank added.

Apart from residential information, the Coast to Coast Real Estate Service provides data to industry on labour pools, labour quality and cost, transportation, schools, shopping, taxes municipal services, cost of living index, and economic, political and social data for any Canadian area.

Coast to Coast Real Estate Service is a division of A.E. LePage Limited and an association of independent real estate brokers structured to provide service anywhere in Canada as well as U.S.A. and part of Europe.

WATER TRAGEDIES!

If only I'd known....

All too often after a water related tragedy, these two statements are heard: "If only I'd kept my eye on him; if only I'd known."
Every year hundreds of people across Canada will say them over and over again.
Not a very pleasant thought is it? But drowning is a very serious problem here in Canada. It claims the lives of people needlessly.

The Canadian Red Cross Society would like to silence the anguished voices by providing people with the necessary information and skills to prevent these tragic occurrences.

If you want to swim do it properly. If this summer means that streams, rivers and pools are to be a part of your environment, know how to enjoy them safely. If you are planning to spend some time on the water, know how handle and equip your craft the safe and proper way. Of course, no matter what your aquatic interests are, you owe it to yourself and others to be competent in rescue breathing and other life saving techniques.

The Canadian Red Cross Swimming Courses have the answers for people of all ages and levels of ability.

Take time now to prepare for whatever might occur. Contact your Red Cross so you will never have to say "if only" after a summer vacation. Yell to them for help.

Queen's Park

Security is to be tightened

By Don Fredericks

There are two features which have traditionally set the Ontario legislative building apart from similar institutions elsewhere -- their easy access and their lack of serious security risks.

But that was before Dalton Camp brought us the Ontario Commission on the Legislature. Now we are told that as a result of the times, security must be toughened around the old building and to make its point, the government has a squad of 90 uniformed rent-a-cops -- Ontario Government Protective Service -- prowling the halls.

And who better to toughen security than a strong-willed bureaucrat named Robert Fleming who, as executive secretary to Camp's commission, came highly recommended to the job of director of administration in the Speaker's Office, a job incidentally born out of Camp's own recommendations.

Fleming's job is the daily running of the Speaker's new empire, overseeing a staff of about 60 and a budget of over $7 million, for a salary of $38,000. For that kind of money, Fleming has to do something. He, of course, reports to Speaker Russell Rowe, but Rowe has never distinguished himself as being tough-minded and since Fleming seems to be, guess who is running the show?

In his lofty position, Fleming, through the Speaker, controls the building, including security. He says he is not a bureaucratic person by nature but says a series of recent incidents has forced tougher security measures at Queen's Park.

What incidents is he talking about? Well, there's the one where somebody left a battery device outside Liberal leader Bob Nixon's office. "It wasn't a bomb, but it could have been," says Fleming.

And there were the demonstrations last winter in the lobby of the main building when a few crippled workers marched and dragged themselves in a circle and, says Fleming, "got in the way of the tour guides."

Is nobody safe these days? The answer to the question is yes and we can thank Fleming for that. Why, just last week he protected the press gallery from three members of the Canadian Workers Union who drove up to the building in an old van, with signs on it, and couldn't make it through the alert security guards to deliver their press release. That was the same day NDP justice critic Morton Shulman walked by those same guards carrying a semi-automatic rifle under his arm. But then, no system is perfect.

The increased security has become so obvious that deputy Liberal leader Donald Deacon asked the Speaker about it in the Legislature, particularly the latest edict that all press members be issued a colored identity pass which they can then wear on their jackets to gain entry into the building or get through police lines while out covering elections or demonstrations.

At the same time, rumor has it that the press will also be required to dress up a bit, i.e. ties and jackets, in keeping with the decorum of the Legislature. That comes after Fleming and company tried to keep the press from using the legislative dining room, scruffians that they are, and it seems only God and Fleming, in that order know where it will end.

In any event, Rowe said the identity cards are "part of the overall tightening up of the security around the chamber and the building."

Nixon and Agnew are campaigning again

Nixon and Agnew are campaigning again...but it's not the politically-fallen duo from the United States, Richard Nixon and Spiro Agnew.

It's Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon and party candidate Bill Agnew who is running in Brampton riding.

Nixon plans a vote-getting foray into the area this weekend as the province gears for a general election expected later this year. "The combination of names is sheer coincidence," Agnew said. "I'm no Spiro and Bob Nixon is no Richard."

"Anyway, that fellow's name in America wasn't even Agnew to start with. He had a Greek name, Agopopolous or something. He probably looked for the best Scottish name he could find."

The 46-year-old Ontario Agnew -- "of proud Scottish-Welsh background" -- is a former president of the cosmetics firm Helena Rubinstein Ltd. in Canada.

For his first election battle he's chosen the toughest of opponents -- Premier William Davis who has held the seat since 1959.

It took over 20 years, but MacDonald finally 'thrown out'

Just two days after Premier William Davis congratulated him for 20 consecutive years in the Legislature, York South MPP Donald MacDonald was thrown out of the house for the first time in his career.

He refused to withdraw his charge that Agriculture Minister William Stewart is repeating a lie.

MacDonald, former provincial NDP leader, refused three offers from Speaker Russell Rowe to withdraw his charge, then was escorted out of the Legislature by the acting sergeant-at-arms.

The mild-mannered MacDonald called his expulsion "utterly absurd." He said Stewart had repeated on several occasions the charge that the British Columbia farm stabilization plan will bankrupt that province and the provincial government was looking for Ottawa to bail them out.

MacDonald said he has a letter from the B.C. agriculture minister denying that, "and in fact they plan to expand the program."

RULES — There are three parts to THE WORD CAGE: (1) clues, and (2) quiz, which lead to (3) the final answer, the "mystery word."
The clues and quiz are hidden in the grid — up, down, across, backward or diagonally. First, circle the clue words (we've found the first word for you). You may find the same letter in more than one word, so circle each letter clearly. Next circle the quiz words; the first letter and number of letters are given for each.
When you have circled all the clue and quiz words, the remaining uncircled letters will spell out the answer to this week's WORD CAGE!

JESUS CURES THE LEPER

When he had come down from the mountains, great multitudes followed him.
And behold, there came a leper and worshipped him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.
And Jesus put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean. And immediately his leprosy was cleansed.
And Jesus saith unto him, See thou tell no man; but go thy way, shew thyself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.

Take your bathtub for granted?

How many times have you taken your bathtub for granted? Or your toilet, washing machine and electric razor? If you were a British soldier at Fort Henry in 1867, the absence of luxuries like these would have made a rough life even rougher.

Each enlisted man had only an iron cot and a few square inches of floor to call home, in the barrack room he shared with 18 others. Early every morning he would shave, lathering up with a chip of soap in a pail of water and then scraping away with a rusty razor. Army regulations called for the chin and throat to be clear of whiskers, but mustaches and sideburns were permitted.

Once a month the barrack room became a barber-shop, when the hair cutter made his rounds. Every man's hair was cropped off in identical fashion: one to two inches long on top, tapering to nothing at the back. No excuses or complaints were accepted!

For the soldiers and their families at Fort Henry, daily baths were out of the question. Since water had to be carried in by hand, only officers were allowed the private luxury of soaking in a hot tub, attended by a servant. The men stood and scrubbed, crowded around a few basins of water in a dark, damp room.

Not only bathtubs, but toilets, were divided by rank—one each for men, women and officers. The privies were simply holes in a plank over a stone trough, but it featured a pretty effective flushing system. Rainwater from the parade square was collected at one end of the open privy trench and held back by a sluice gate. From time to time the gate was opened, and whoosh! Everything was swept down a drain into the waters of Lake Ontario.

While apparently not very pollution-conscious, the British Army in 1867 was aware of the danger of disease. The men and their families observed strict rules for cleanliness, sweeping the stairs and chimneys, throwing out rubbish and slops, cleaning the wash-houses and privies, airing bedding, and so on.

Wooden barrack room floors were washed weekly and sand-scrubbed every day to prevent them from becoming damp and water-logged. In the same vein, lines of wet laundry in the barrack rooms were considered un-healthy, so the men were forced to pay a woman, usually a soldier's wife, to wash their clothes.

Today, thanks to modern conveniences like indoor plumbing, Old Fort Henry has been restored as an historic and recreational site. The St. Lawrence Parks Commission also operates Upper Canada Village and 14 well-kept campgrounds.

AN OUTDOOR BOY

Today's child doing well in Grade 4

Tommy is 11, doing well in Grade Four. Though he is a registered Indian, it is considered he has some black ancestry. He has light brown, curly hair, hazel eyes and very fair skin. Always pleasant, polite and co-operative, Tommy is a quiet, shy lad who needs help in developing self-confidence.

Tommy is a healthy active youngster who likes the outdoors. He enjoys camping and farm activities. He is interested in farm machinery, not only when it works but when it doesn't, because he has a knack for fixing things. He also likes carving and making things like bows and arrows. Tommy enjoys music, likes reading and has started to write poetry.

Parents are needed for Tommy who will give him much love and will have the warmth and the patience to help him believe he really belongs to their family.

To inquire about adopting Tommy, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. For general adoption information, consult your local Children's Aid Society.

Our jersey cow had sense of humor

By Mrs. Agnes Gillette

We decided on adding a jersey cow to our menage and because of her colour, we called her Coco. She was unique in that she had a perverted sense of humour. There was the time when Ray's friend, Donald paid us a visit. He very generously offered to rebuild Coco's stall which was in a rather dilapidated condition. The undertaking proved to be more complicated than Donald had expected. The flooring was rotted beyond all repair; however, he went at the task with good will. He pulled, tugged and wrenched until he had extracted the last rotted floor board which he threw on the top of the growing pile of rubble. He straightened up, with a sigh of satisfaction over a job well done, then stood contemplating the yawning hole that had once been the floor. As he stood there in deep meditation planning his next step in the renovation, he neglected to notice Coco who had quietly ambled up behind him, gazing at his back, thoughtful and speculative. Here was the villain that had demolished her stall, leaving her homeless and bereft of her comfortable bed or hay.

A moment later a startled, frightened and shocked Donald found himself flying through the air, before the pull of gravity drew him towards the cold hard ground, and landed him with an unceremonious thud. Looking upwards in consternation and fear he found himself gazing up at Coco's overhanging head. She was contentedly chewing her cud and gazing at him soulfully with her large brown eyes that were peaceful, placid and contented. 'It was rather unfortunate that Jeannie chose that moment to appear. She took the situation in at a glance and breaking into uncontrolled laughter, led a very docile Coco away from the scene of the disaster in an effort to straighten her face and compose herself.

It was the following week that we were besieged by an unseasonable thunderstorm. I was greatly dismayed to discover that Coco had wandered away. Jeannie volunteered to go and look for her provided that she could take along a bag of apples to coax the unpredictable cow home. Setting off with all the careless confidence of youth, she started down the laneway towards Coco's favourite haunt in the back field. On reaching the end of the laneway she met up with Coco, who was unhurriedly ambling home seemingly unconscious of the torrential downpour. All might have gone well had not Jeannie started feeding the animal the apples. The jersey followed her with deceiving docility just so long as the apples lasted. An abrupt change took place with the disappearance of the last juicy morsel. Without warning Coco started to chase the unfortunate Jeannie down the laneway. Despite the girl's youth and agility, her plight was precarious. The long wet sharp grass slapped at her bare legs, while razor keen thorn bushes bit deeply into her flesh as she was forced to zig zag deep into them. She'd run to one side and then the other desperately hoping for a break in the old fencing which was flanked on either side by thorn bushes and wild brambles. When a break in the fence finally showed, Jeannie used her last reserve of energy to plunge through it.

Fortunately, it was at that point Donald observed her plight from an upstairs window. It was he who piloted Coco to her rebuilt stall. Following Jeannie into the house he asked her why she was playing tag with Coco on such a day. Words were beyond Jeannie as tears mingled with her rain drenched face.

The score was now even.

Ontario and Quebec information exchange

Agriculture Minister William Stewart said that Ontario and Quebec have worked out an agreement to exchange information about the interprovincial movement of meat.

Stewart, who accused Quebec of not co-operating with Ontario during the tainted meat scandal, said the Quebec government announced new regulations governing inspection of dead or incurable animals yesterday, effective June 15.

He said both provinces will now submit the names of companies or individuals handling meat from dead animals, along with the volume, the buyers of the meat, the carriers involved and the dates of shipments which have crossed provincial boundaries.

A five-year-old Madoc boy, Lars Schultz-Nielsen, was in collision with a vehicle when he dashed out from behind a truck at the corner of Livingston and Durham Streets at 6:00 p.m. on Thursday, June 19th. He is the son of Ken Schultz-Nielsen of R.R. 5, Madoc.

The boy was taken to the Belleville General Hospital, and was admitted to the Intensive Care Unit with abdominal injuries and chest injuries. He was listed in

Man fined $300

The driver of a school bus carrying 30 elementary school children was fined $300 in Madoc provincial court last week on a charge of impaired driving.

William Joseph Murphy, 55, of RR 3, Havelock, pleaded guilty to the charge, laid June 12.

He had been carrying 30 elementary students to Marmora School.

He had started his trip in Deloro and students had been picked up along the route before Constable Bob Bonter, following the bus on the Old Norwood Road, not far from Marmora, observed the bus weaving on the roadway.

The vehicle was stopped and the driver charged.

POLICE SEIZE 22 CALIBRE RIFLE

John Robert Boyle, 29, of R. R. 4, Belleville, had a .22 calibre rifle and ammunition seized by Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc last week.

Boyle, a steward of the county road workers who are currently on strike against the County of Hastings, had the rifle taken from him following an alleged infraction which occurred at 3 p.m., June 17, at the intersection of Hastings County Road 11, and King's Highway 62.

He will appear in Madoc Provincial Court Tuesday, July 8.

Plan restoration Quaker cemetery near Moira

Representatives from the Quinte Kiwanis were present at the regular meeting of the council of the Township of Huntingdon.

The purpose of their attendance was to discuss their plans for the restoration of the old Quaker cemetery near Moira. They requested that the Township provide some crushed gravel, a gate and the spraying of brush kill, to which the council readily agreed.

Mr. Clifford Moore also met with council at this meeting, requesting that the road allowance leading to this property be cleared and some gravel supplied. Council agreed to have the road allowance cleared, but declined to inspect the road before supplying gravel.

Cyclone hits Crowe Lake area

A cyclone hit the east shore of Crowe Lake Monday afternoon, disrupting power, damaging a T.V. aerial, uprooting trees and covering everything with a layer of dirt and debris.

Mrs. Irene Snell reports that she was watching out her window about 3 o'clock and saw the second storm of the afternoon hit along the ten cottages in that area. Ten foot high waves on the lake accompanied the twister. A tree in her front yard was torn out by the roots.

Next door a T.V. aerial on the cottage owned by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Maynes was buckled in two and a boat which had been moored at the dock was torn loose and carried over to Mrs. Snell's place. The Maynes girls ventured out to secure the boat, before it was blown any further away.

Power was not restored to the area until about 9:30 Monday night.

This area playground 'is on the move'

Sports, Singing, Acting, Crafts, Special Trips! "The Floating Area Playground", being sponsored by an O.F.Y. (Opportunities for youth) Grant, will be operating this summer in Madoc, Marmora and Tweed.

During the months of July and August, seven secondary school students will be supervising a daytime program of activities for children between the ages of 4 to 14. Similar playgrounds have been held in this area in the past years, but this one will be serving three communities. F.A.P. will run on a daily rotation schedule Monday to Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. On sunny days the location of the playground will be the high school in Madoc, the beach, in Marmora and the park in Tweed. When it rains, the schools will be utilized.

Since the F.A.P. group will be very mobile, an accent will be placed on creativity and improvisation. The daily curriculum consists of sports, crafts, singing, acting and just good fun. Plans are being made for special trips to O'Hara's Mill, Sandbanks, and Vanderwater Park. Parents are also invited to come on these excursions. Every day will be a special day at the playground. A nursery will be provided for children 4 to 6 years of age.

On Monday, June 30th, the group will be registering in Marmora. On Wednesday, July 2nd, they will be at the high school in Madoc and at the park in Tweed on Thursday, July 3rd.

Watch this newspaper for any special plans or changes in plans.

Parliament Hill

Trudeau to start politickin'

By Peter Ward

OTTAWA — (SF) — I suppose we'll see plenty of politicking by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau this summer. The action had already started by the end of early May and it continued full blast through June. The Prime Minister's office explains that it is all part of Mr. Trudeau's determination not to become separated from the grass roots of Canada, the way critics felt he had been parted in 1972, when he nearly lost an election.

Mind you, the forays into Ontario could have something to do with the Ontario provincial election this fall, and the improved chances there for provincial Liberals.

What strikes home is the P.M.'s definition of keeping in contact with the grass roots. He doesn't particularly want to hear what the people say, he wants them to listen to him. His personality is truly magnetic and he has little trouble drawing big crowds. The trouble is, he flim-flams when he "explains" government policy, and if he runs into tough questions from someone in the crowd he beats them down because he is an excellent debater. What chance has a guy in the crowd against P.E.T.? He's talking with all the power and prestige of the Prime Minister's office. The P.M. is not above stretching the truth even in Parliament, where he sometimes get caught. Remember the Diefenbaker-Trudeau rumble in May when the P.M. actually admitted that part of what he had been saying was false? The quote from Trudeau in the House of Commons was: "I thought those facts up myself."

So forgive me if I am skeptical of Mr. Trudeau's desire to stay in close touch with the grass roots of Canada. His intention is merely to fertilize them with his own brand of manure.

We might also rightly ask about the financing of those political jaunts. Trudeau and his entourage travel by armed forces helicopters — usually three of them — and the bill is paid for by you and me. The price for keeping a Huey helicopter aloft is $515.49 for one hour. Most of the P.M.'s political jaunts then cost in excess of $20,000, the proceeds from several taxpayers for a whole year.

The expenses might possibly be justified if the Trudeau trippings were less partisan and more honest. The only way such spending can be stopped is by public pressure and we are the only ones who can apply it. If you object to tax spending for political purposes, sit down and write a letter to Mr. Trudeau. It wouldn't hurt either to send a copy of your letter to this paper.

Check your OHIP coverage before you go travelling

by David Woods

Somehow, the health hazards of travel haven't been quite the same since it was shown that the world isn't flat, and that you therefore can't drop off the edge into oblivion.

Even so, today's traveller may be involved in illness or accidents far away from home. Fortunately, Ontario residents can draw some comfort from knowing that their Ontario Health Insurance Plan will provide coverage anywhere in the world.

But there are a few things you should know about how OHIP covers you when you leave the province. Obviously, it's not exactly the same coverage that applies here at home, because health care costs vary so much from country to country.

Basically, OHIP will pick up the full tab for emergency, in- or out-patient hospital care anywhere. If you're admitted to hospital, reimbursement will be for standard, rather than deluxe or private ward accommodation.

Non-emergency hospital care is covered at a maximum rate of 75 per cent of the cost of the same service in Ontario, and payments for physicians' services can be re-couped up to a maximum of 90 per cent of the prevailing Ontario Medical Association fee schedule. OHIP also pays 75 per cent of necessary ambulance services — again, up to the amount the Plan would pay for the same service in Ontario.

Charges incurred for cosmetic surgery, artificial limbs, crutches and eye-glasses — or for treatment in health spas and the like — are not retrievable.

While OHIP must tie its overseas coverage to prices for the same services in Ontario (otherwise costs would be open-ended, putting an undue financial burden on the Plan), it's possible to buy additional health insurance protection from private companies, many of which have special supplementary coverage for travellers.

The best arrangement is to ensure that you have adequate health insurance — before you leave home. As an additional precaution, make sure you update your inoculation schedule at the same time.

In case you do need to use OHIP when you're out of the country, you can find out in greater detail what it covers and what it doesn't from an Ontario Ministry of Health booklet entitled The Traveller's Guide to the Ontario Health Insurance Plan. Copies of the booklet are available from travel agencies and government offices, or by writing directly to the Health Resource Centre, Communications Branch, Ontario Ministry of Health, Hepburn House, Queen's Park, Toronto, Ontario M7A 1S2.

It might be reassuring to take the guide with you on your trip. It's essential, though, to take your OHIP card along, so that you — or the people providing the health care — can confirm coverage in a medical or financial emergency.

Not stuck with same old stupid faces

By BILL SMILEY

ONE of the things I like about teaching is that you are not stuck with the same old stupid faces year after year, as you are in most jobs.

In teaching, you get a whole set of new stupid faces every year.

They come in every September, an entire new gallery of mugs, and sit there looking at you. They look pretty dumb, like any other representative group of people, and you have a moment of despair.

It doesn't help much when some of the faces are closed and sullen, and others are sneaky or insolent or just plain devised for hellery.

"Oh, boy! This is no bumper crop. More bump-tious than bumper. Looks like a rough year ahead."

But some strange alchemy goes to work during the year, and by June, if you're lucky, those faces are no longer strangers, but a host of new friends and acquaintances.

You have discovered all kinds of things, in the give and take of the classroom, about these bodies, and now you know them as aspects of the human spirit, however blurred or bent, in some cases.

That girl with the big bust and bum, and the pouty mouth, whom you registered as a Hot-Lips Houlihan type back in September, has turned out to be a sweet child who blushes if you ask her what time it is.

Conversely, that angelic, straight-looking girl with the big honest eyes and the good manners, whom you spotted as a potential prize student last fall, was hauled into court last winter for being drunk and disorderly, a nice way of saying she beat up two cops.

That little ratty guy with the dirty hair and the sides falling out of his sneakers, who looked like a refugee from a Dickensian orphanage, has proved himself a track star and a whiz in grammar.

Mouthy Mary, whose vocabulary would scorch the skull of a sailor, writes tender, lyric poetry.

Jeff, whom you put down as a hockey bum in January, who missed three days a week from exhaustion, has emerged, since the ice melted, as one of the most sensitive writers you've ever taught.

Alan, the belligerent guy you tangled with on the first day of school, and the second, and the fourth, and the eighth, a real hood, has come out of his surly cocoon as a football player, a pretty fair artist, and the best mower of lawns you have hired in years. You are buddies.

Cynthia, one of the few familiar faces last September, because you had taught her the year before, hasn't changed at all. She's just as sweet and lovable and full of fun as always, and you think of her almost as a daughter.

And Joe, the other familiar face last September, because you had also taught him the year before, hasn't changed a bit either. He's just as slippery, conniving, lazy and genial as always, and while you might despair of him, you've grown to accept him, as you would a member of your family with the same faults.

It's the same every year. You start out with caterpillars, and if you are patient and tolerant and allow people to find their way out of their cocoons, you wind up with butterflies, some gray and dull, others brilliant and many-hued, but all of them fluttering with life.

And you keep track of your butterflies, as best you can. Here's a doctor who didn't know a dangung participle from a ruptured appendix when you were trying to teach him Shakespeare, 10 years ago.

And there's a university professor, one of the swift, eager minds you touched on her way through the system.

John has become an artist, and is going to marry Trish, and you think it's a great match and hope the best for them, because you knew them away back then, when they were kids.

And another John and a Bill are journalists, and Betty is a fine nurse, and Florence is going to be a lawyer, and Mike takes off your storm windows and Betty works in the travel agency and gives you the best of service and Pete is going to take you fishing to a special trout stream as soon as school is out and Rosemary has had four babies, every one a beauty.

It's like pulling teeth to make them admit it, but most teachers become pretty fond of most of their students over the course of a year. A few of them, of course, only a mother could love.

I can think of no fate more horrible than being a teacher who doesn't like kids, and no better life than for one who does.

Your week ahead...

By Dr. A. W. Damis

ARIES
Mar. 21-Apr. 19
It's going to be up to you, of course. You're entering a period that calls for expanding your project. So, it's open the throttle and full speed ahead.

TAURUS
Apr. 20-May 20
What's the best thing that could happen? A new face or an old friend to brighten you with a spark of enthusiasm. So, look for someone to boost your morale.

GEMINI
May 21-June 20
Good financial "vibs" crisscross your chart. But, wait! That's not all. It seems as though there's, also, better things to come—with the opposite sex.

MOONCHILD
June 21-July 22
There's added responsibility on the way. You won't like the set up, at first. You will, however, enjoy and find pleasure in this new challenge.

LEO
July 23-Aug. 22
Bluntly, you're in for an emotional surprise. It seems as though, a frivolous member of the opposite sex—will become serious, suddenly.

VIRGO
Aug. 23-Sept. 22
An important meeting is coming up. It's sort of a "hand shake behind the barn" thing. Anyway, this meeting will improve most departments of your life.

LIBRA
Sept. 23-Oct. 22
Getting involved in someone else's problems seems to be in the scheme of things. Truthfully, your thoughts and motives will be in the shade.

SCORPIO
Oct. 23-Nov. 21
Something you believe is scheduled for someone else, will indeed, happen to you. Take care, you might become a prisoner of your own reprisals.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22-Dec. 21
This week, it would be a good idea to yield to a bad situation—in order to survive. In other words, settle for half—forget the whole!

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22-Jan. 19
According to your chart, a strong personality will attempt to overpower you. Incidentally, you'll be in touch with someone who is up to financial mischief.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20-Feb. 18
Here we go again, the more light in your eyes—the blinder you become. It seems as though, you won't face reality—concerning the opposite sex.

PISCES
Feb. 19-Mar. 20
It seems as though you'll lie to yourself in order to justify your motives. Many members of your sign will reach into their "bag of dirty tricks!"

THE GOOD WORD

from the Bible
If you set your heart aright, you will stretch out your hands toward him.

If iniquity is in your hand put it far away, and let not wickedness dwell in your tents.

Job 11: 13, 14

Trespassing charge brings $35 fine

Douglas Davidson, Crookston, Ontario, age 22, was fined $35 on a charge of Trespassing. The charge was laid on April 26, 1975, when he refused to leave the Whispering Pines Restaurant at the owner's request.

Ian Sutherland, Ottawa, Ontario, age 17 years, was fined $125 on a charge of careless driving. The charge was laid as a result of a single-vehicle accident on the Cordova Road on May 17, 1975. Sutherland lost control of his vehicle on a curve, causing $2,000 damages.

Stuart Black, Bancroft, Ontario, age 63, was fined $250 on a charge of impaired driving. The charge was laid on May 26, 1975, when he was observed driving erratically in the Village of Madoc.

Everett Doughty, Peterborough, Ontario, age 57, was fined on a charge of impaired driving. He was arrested on June 5, 1975, in the Village of Madoc, when his vehicle was seen crossing the centre line on several occasions.

A charge of impaired driving against Leo Walsh, R.R. 4, Tweed, Ontario, age 17, was dismissed. The charge was laid on February 1, 1975, in the Township of Hungerford.

Marshall Smith, Marmora, Ontario, age 21, was fined $250 and he was prohibited from operating a motor vehicle anywhere in Canada for three months. This is a result of failing to remain at the scene of an accident in Marmora on May 31, 1975.

Thomas Bateman, Springbrook, Ontario, age 18, was fined $100 on a charge of careless driving, $55 for failing to produce evidence of insurance, $25 for no drivers licence and $25 for failure to notify the Department of Transportation and Communications of a change of ownership of a motor vehicle. These charges resulted from a single-car accident on May 25, 1975, on No. 14 Highway.

Ivan Summers, Queensboro, Ontario, age 20, was fined $125 on a charge of careless driving. The charge was laid as a result of a single-vehicle accident in Madoc Township on May 24, 1975.

Walter Paul, Trenton, Ontario, age 25, was fined $125 on a charge of careless

Seniors gather special week draws

Madoc and District Senior Citizens were honoured on Saturday, June 21st, at the Kiwanis Centre, in recognition of Senior Citizen's Week.

Councillor Thomas Deline Jr., Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P. Hastings, Madoc Review, Jack Ellis, M.P. Hastings, and the following merchants and businessmen sponsored the event: Madoc Review Ltd. printed the ballots, which were distributed to sixteen businesses, where ballot boxes were placed for free draws; Double K Ranch Bar provided free hot pogos on a stick and plenty of ice cold drinks; free doughnuts were provided by the Shoreline Motel.

Nearly forty Senior Citizens, wearing their buttons, reading "It's The Time of our Lives", assembled in the Kiwanis Centre.

At about 2:30 p.m. Thomas Deline Jr., who organized the event, welcomed the gathering. Clarke T. Rollins and his wife, Beverly, were present and Mr. Rollins expressed their pleasure at being able to join the group for the afternoon. Kel Kincaid, speaking on behalf of Jack Ellis, who was unable to be present, extended a welcome, adding that he hoped everyone would enjoy the event.

Following is a list of the gifts presented from the participating merchants and their recipients: Johnston's Pharmacy, Canadian Tea Pot, won by Ezra Carman; Kramp's B.P. and Happy Hut, Coleman Cooler, Blanche Keller; Wilson's Gift Shop, Toiletry Set for the Bathroom, Grace Robinson; Pigden's Radio & T.V., Electric Clock Radio, Keitha Moorcroft; Kincaid's I.G.A., Food Hamper, Mrs. M. LaPalm; Canadian Tire, Radio Kit, Grace Robinson; Superior T.V., Record or Tape, Mrs. Ed. Gates; Whispering Pines Restaurant, Two Tickets to either Toronto or Ottawa, and return, by Voyageur Colonial Bus, Grace O'Rourke; Hawley Pro Hardware, High Intensity Lamp, Annie Whiteman; Madoc Furniture Centre, Framed Picture, Emma Henderson; Ray's Sport Shop, Electric Lantern, Frankie Donaldson; Beamish Store, 2 Lawn Chairs, Mrs. George Moorcroft; Bert Jones Ltd., Free Oil and Grease Job, Dan Robinson; Stickwood's Dry Goods, Man's Dress Shirt, Jenny Broadworth, Derry Sunoco, Surprise Package, B. Barry; Madoc Cash & Carry, Fancy door Knockers, John Boyce.

Jenny Broadworth, President of the Madoc and District Senior Citizens Club No. 473, extended a vote of thanks to all who had contributed to make such an enjoyable afternoon for the senior citizens.

Christopher T. Rupert

Ordained a priest

Christopher T. Rupert was ordained a priest in Regis College Chapel on Saturday, June 7th, 1975, by Bishop Thomas B. Fulton.

Father Rupert, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rupert of Madoc, was born on March 31st, 1937. He attended Madoc Public School and took grade nine at Centre Hastings High School here. His high school education was concluded at St. Michael's College School, Toronto, from 1952 to 1955. Four years later, he graduated from the University of Toronto with a Bachelor of Arts.

Father Rupert entered Jesuits (Society of Jesus) in 1959 and he did missionary work and study in India from 1961 to 1967. From 1968 to '70, he studied Sociology and Economics at Carleton University and Theology at Regis College (Toronto) from 1971 - 74. Presently, he is doing an interdisciplinary Ph.D. in Theology, combining scripture and social psychology.

Rev. Father Rupert said his First Mass at Sacred Heart of Mary Church, Madoc, on Sunday, June 15th, 1975. The parish held a reception in the hall following the Mass, with a large crowd of well-wishers in attendance. A number of Senior Citizens were special guest at the celebration of the Mass and the luncheon afterwards, as part of their activities for Senior Citizen's Week.

Truck and auto in minor collision

A collision between a dump truck and a car near the sewer construction project on Prince Albert Street has resulted in minor damages.

Involved in the incident was a dump truck owned by the Village of Madoc, and a car owned by Mrs. Kay Peacock. The collision occurred at the edge of Mrs. Peacock's driveway at approximately 1:00 p.m. on Wednesday, June 18, 1975.

Driver of the truck was Clarence Stevenson of Eldorado, an employee of Sam Danford and Sons. Mrs. Peacock's son Tom was driving the car.

No one was injured in the mishap. Madoc O.P.P. Const. Don Bjorn Dahl was the investigating officer.

Charged with robbery

Ontario Provincial Police set up a roadblock by the intersection of King's Highways 7 and 14 at Marmora last Friday following a holdup of a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada in Norwood, 17 miles east of Marmora on Highway 7.

But while many cars were stopped, and checked, the two people believed responsible for the robbery were at a cottage in Trent River, where they were finally arrested.

Alexandre Juhasz, 38, and Louise Gagne, 18, are both charged with bank robbery, kidnapping, car theft and possession of a stolen car.

The two were arrested at approximately 6 p.m. Friday evening in a cottage on the south bank of the river at the hamlet of Trent River.

According to police, a man and a woman had stopped a car outside Norwood driven by Clifford Preston, an off-duty provincial police officer from the Campbellford detachment.

Holding Preston hostage, the three drove into Norwood where the car was parked behind the Royal Bank.

Entering the bank, the robbers took a total of $12,792, holding staff and customers at bay with two loaded firearms. No shots were fired during the robbery and no one was injured, police said.

Preston was later released unharmed and the car found abandoned in a bush area east of Hastings.

The search for the couple continued throughout the day, with roadblocks set up on all major roads and intersections in the area.

Police said all the money was recovered from the cottage in which the couple were arrested.

Heading up the investigation is Det. Inspector Potter, of Toronto, assisted in Peterborough by Det. Sgt. F. J. MacDougall and Constable Larry Patrick.

Miss Karen Acorn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Acorn of Marmora, graduated from McMaster University, Hamilton, with her Bachelor of Arts in Sociology and Bachelor of Physical Education Degree, at the May 30th Convocation.

A former graduate of Centre Hastings Secondary School, Karen plans to attend McArthur College of Education at Queen's University this fall.

Madoc gal wins

A quilt made by Mrs. Eileen Turcotte and Mrs. Violet Maracle was donated to the Bridgewater School Parent's Group for a draw. Two other prizes, a carving set and a pair of pillow cases, were also donated by them.

A total of $330 was raised through the sale of tickets which will be used for various school projects.

The winning tickets were drawn at Bridgewater School on June 20. First prize, a homemade quilt, was won by Lyman French, R.R.3, Tweed, Ontario, second prize, a carving set, was won by Duane Pigden, Madoc, third prize was won by Lynn Gourley, Belleville, Ontario, which was a pair of pillow cases.

The students and staff of Bridgewater School are most appreciative of the generosity and kindness of Mrs. Turcotte and Mrs. Maracle.

IN MEMORIAM

ROSE - In loving memory of our loved one Nelson Earl who passed away June 28, 1968.

We think of you in silence,
We often speak your name,
But all we have is Memories,
And your photo in a frame,
Our heart still aches with sadness,
Our silent tears still flow,
For what it meant to lose you,
Know one will ever know.
Always remembered by his family.

the MIND to imagine... the SKILL to do!

The medieval monks of Switzerland's St. Bernard Monastery (which many travelers in those days used as a hotel), had the minds and the skills to train their huge dogs to rescue potential guests stranded in the snow!

In 1908, the proprietor of a Buffalo, New York, hotel had the mind to imagine and the skill to innovate the first step in modern innkeeping; each room had a private bath and a lock on the door!

the MIND to imagine... the SKILL to do!

In 1896, Guglielmo Marconi had the imagination to put into practice ideas that scientists had long known: he sent electromagnetic waves the distance of 1 3/4 miles. In short, Marconi invented the first radio.

The first practical television mechanism was invented in 1928. It was called the dissector tube.

the MIND to imagine... the SKILL to do!

Until 1796, when Dr. Edward Jenner, a modest country physician, had the skill and imagination to vaccinate a small boy with cowpox, smallpox would break out unchecked all over Europe for centuries!

Another killer that took a big bite out of the world's population was rabies. Despite violent opposition, Louis Pasteur was the man with the skill and the imagination to combat that death dealer with the world's first injections.

Happy Homemaking

By BARBARA BAKER

Line the drawer in which you keep your pins and jewelry with sponge rubber. This prevents jewelry from tangling and the individual pieces stay in place without rolling all over the drawer when opened.

Lugging sand around in the back of your car may be a chore for those with space problem or unable to shovel it under wheels stuck in heavy snow or ice but a blanket works just as well with few space requirements and little trouble handling it. Keep a folded blanket no longer used around the house in the trunk. When the car's tires won't budge, just toss the blanket beneath the wheel and spread out as if laying a carpet before the tire. This creates traction for the tire and you should be out in no time at all.

For instant first aid, here's an instant ice pack that won't drip all over. Take a dime store balloon and fill with water until about the size of a baseball. Store in the freezer and when kids come home with some bruise that may swell, apply it as an icepack. As the ice inside the balloon melts, you needn't worry about it leaking and when fully melted, can be easily returned to the freezer for the next disaster.

Plastic garbage bags have such a variety of uses besides just storing rubbish and if you put your imagination to work, you can discover some really fun projects for the kids when indoors on those rainy days. One of the easiest projects is to give each of them a bag and let them cut out holes for their heads and arms then slip the bag over and voila — a one-piece costume they can decorate anyway they wish.

With the oven in constant use so much over the holidays, everyone is eager for tips on cutting back on use there. Baked potatoes take a very long time in the oven and to hasten their baking, try inserting a clean, steel nail through the potato's center just before placing in the oven. The nail will conduct heat throughout the interior.

If you're tired of constantly re-wrapping that belt around your jacket or coat because it has no prongs or eyelets, try slipping two bobby pins over both ends of the belt under the buckle after you put it on. One pin keeps it secure but two makes it absolutely tight.

Ingenuity pops up all over when planning home entertaining and here's another helpful idea. If you have a three-panel screen, try converting it into a temporary closet by turning the two end panels at right angles to the center panel and lay a flat rod across the top. This is an improvement over stacking coats across a bed and can be dismantled as easily as it was erected.

An old card table can be given new life and looks if you paste down an old or incomplete deck of cards across the table top and varnish with a clear lacquer. Looks great, saves you money and delights card players.

Even the most stubborn accumulation of soap or water stains can be removed from aluminum shower fixtures with an ordinary steel wool pad. After scrubbing, wipe with a clean, wet cloth then polish with a dry one.

Scuffed up crepe soles can ruin an otherwise pair of good shoes. To remove those unsightly scuff marks, mix up a solution of warm water and detergent until it has a paste-like consistency. Rub this across the black marks then wipe off and rinse.

"Now that's what I call playing center field!"

In the Kitchen

BANANA CUSTARD

- 3 eggs
- 4 1/2 teaspoons sugar
- 1 cup milk
- 2/3 cup mashed ripe bananas (2 medium)
- 1/4 teaspoon vanilla

In medium bowl beat together all ingredients. Pour into four 6-ounce custard cups. Place cups in pan and add 1 inch water. Bake in 325-degree oven 30 minutes or until tip of knife inserted in custard comes out clean. Cool, then refrigerate. Makes 4 servings.

Fix-It Tip

The remedy for a sagging floor is an item called a jack post. It is inexpensive, easy to use and relatively foolproof.

The jack post is an adjustable metal post that you place under a sagging girder. It consists of two steel tubes, one inside the other. The height of the post is adjustable by way of a pin that slips through a series of holes in the inside tube.

The pin rests on the top edge of the outside tube setting the post at the desired height. The holes are several inches apart so there is also a means for a finer adjustment. To adjust the post more closely and to slowly raise the floor there is a metal plate on top of the post, the plate resting on a heavy duty adjusting screw.

This bread was "holey"

If any body got some "holey" raisen bread at an area store this week, they can blame the birds.

A driver left a load of bread styled goodies at an area super market last Friday, piling up the foodstuffs adjacent to the business, because at that hour of the morning, the store had not yet opened, and nobody was around.

When the driver left, the birds swooped down, and had a merry time enjoying a feast of the raisen bread.

They pecked holes into the wrappers, to get at the raisens, which they seemingly

Cow killed on Highway 62

A cow was killed on Highway 62, just north of Ivanhoe last Thursday, when a 1969 Plymouth driven by Donald Campbell, 65, of 254 North Brock St., Sarnia came in collision with it.

The cow, owned by Doug Wood, of R. R. 5, Madoc, was being herded along with others, when the animal wandered on the highway and into the path of Mr. Campbell's car.

Madoc OPP investigated and Constable Don Creelman estimated damage to the car at $1,600 and the value of the cow at $450.

Police kept busy

The Kaladar Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated 20 occurrences during the past week.

Included were a break-in at a cottage on Skootamatta River, the theft of two flags at Cloyne, a break-in on Ashby Lake and a theft at Bon Echo Park.

Provincial park campsites keep close to occupancy

A 100 per cent campsite occupancy in both Bon Echo and Sharbot Lake Provincial Parks during the summer's first long weekend indicates that district parks may anticipate record breaking attendance this season.

Several new developments, such as centralized woodyards, and refuse collection boxes, are designed to improve services and facilities in the Tweed District parks.

Interpretive activities will begin over the Dominion Day Holiday.

Both parks present amphitheatre programs and Bon Echo's visitor services staff also provide conducted hikes, self guiding nature trails and a children's program.

One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, PO Box 267, Elmira

Do not your chances like sunbeams pass you by, for you never miss the water till the well runs dry.

Those words were penned almost 100 years ago by Rowland Howard. He was talking about opportunities but the lines are even more applicable in a practical sense today, especially for farmers living close to large industries or where urbanities are encroaching on farm land.

A University of Guelph professor has some good advice to offer farmers in Ontario, those who might someday be faced with dried-up wells.

Keep records and be prepared for trouble, said Prof. W.K. Bilanski of the university's school of engineering. Increasing demands by industry or expanding urban centres could undermine wells which have served farms for years.

The good professor suggests that it could take several years before the effect of a new well becomes critically apparent to farmers. A very deep well may be several miles away and yet be tapping the same groundwater source upon which the farmer depends.

He recommends measuring each farm well before the pump begins to operate and then after the pump has been going for about half-an-hour and recording the measurements and the length of time the pump operated.

The procedure should be followed several times a year, he says. But the wise farmer will keep records even more often.

The professor does not say how such measurements can be taken in a drilled well with a sealed casing. Probably it is impossible. However, a lot of dug wells are used by farmers, along with the large, bored casings so that measurements—accurate measurements—are not difficult to keep.

The recommendations came during a meeting with farmers in the Wilmot Township area in Waterloo Region. The big city of Kitchener has to depend on drilled wells in the township for its water. Farmers in the township have had real problems over the years because good wells that have supplied water to the farm for many decades suddenly went dry when new, deep, drilled wells were sunk by the city.

No farmer needs to be told how important water is to a livestock operation of any kind. Chicken farmers, for instance, can be in dire circumstances in a matter of hours if the source of water is cut off. Dairy farmers, too, can be in serious trouble in 10 to 12 hours. Beef cattle may go a little longer and hogs need a constant supply.

Why keep records? So that you can prove to the municipal and provincial authorities that the closest urban centre or that new factory or big new composite school was responsible for your dry well.

And some of the cash crop farmers using irrigation methods could be in deep trouble without water.

I am not conversant with legislation regarding compensation in such matters but I'm of the opinion that, if a farmer can prove the cause of a dry well, those responsible for it must compensate the farmer.

In the Waterloo Region, the larger municipality has drilled new wells for farmers. Records of levels are essential when complaints are filed.

It can't happen to you? Don't be too sure. Urban sprawl, decentralization of industry, new schools and a host of other encroachments on farm land are insidious. The face of rural Ontario is changing so quickly that one person simply can't keep up with it.

Any farm within shouting distance of a city or large town could be affected. Any new industry or large school within several miles can tap the same groundwater.

It's just another area where farmers have to be watchful and wary ... as if there weren't enough areas already.

HOME GARDENS

Brussels sprouts are the least popular of the common vegetables with home and community gardeners. They also cause gardeners more problems than any vegetable except winter squash. Tomatoes are by far the most popular vegetable for home gardens, followed by string beans, onions, and cucumbers.

For best protein levels...

Harvest your crop at right stage

For the best protein levels in your hay or haylage, and savings in the protein costs of feeds, it's important to harvest your crop at the right stage of maturity. Generally speaking, perennial forages in Ontario are ready to harvest about mid-June when the crop has the best quality and highest digestibility.

"However, with the slightly later spring this year, it's a little too early yet to predict cutting dates," says Dr. K.R. Stevenson of the Department of Crop Science at the Ontario Agricultural College.

Rather than following the calendar date, Dr. Stevenson recommends that producers look at the crop's stage of development, then cut it and get it into storage as quickly as possible.

"Legumes cut in the bud stage contain approximately 22 per cent protein. The level decreases 1/4 per cent per day as the material matures, to about 15 per cent protein just before seed is produced," he says. Grasses follow a similar pattern. Harvested at the boot stage, they contain from 11 to 13 per cent protein. As they mature, the level drops at 1/4 per cent per day to about 6 per cent. The grass-legume mixtures fall somewhere in between, depending on the composition of the mixture.

Protein losses can also occur after cutting. With dry hay for example, leaf loss is a problem, especially when a rake has been used.

An alfalfa crop cut at 20 per cent protein level can lose up to 400 pounds of leaves per acre. By the time the hay is put into storage, the level has decreased to about 17 1/2 per cent, says Dr. Stevenson.

Although the capital investment for equipment and storage facilities is large in a haylage system, hay crop silage can be used to advantage. The recommended dates for harvesting are the same as for dry hay, but there is less dependency on the weather. The system requires less hand labor since no raking or bale handling is required. The amount of leaf loss is also reduced, so protein content remains excellent.

Watch the crop for the right stage of maturity and follow the general guidelines available in the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food Publication 296, 1975 Field Crop Recommendations.

Rev. J. H. Thompson, Rt. Rev. Wm. Robinson, Bishop of Ottawa (Guest Speaker and former Rector) and Rev. A. Smith, also a former Rector, hold the anniversary cake on the occasion of the 110th Anniversary of St. John The Baptist Church, Madoc on Sunday.

Banners help mark church anniversary

St. John the Baptist Anglican Church, Madoc, celebrated its 110th Church anniversary of the laying of the foundation stone back in 1865. The Church was decorated with banners depicting biblical texts or Christian teaching. Mrs. Mabel Adams designed and specially made an anniversary banner for the occasion. Fresh cut flowers adorned every window while red roses and white mums were placed on the Communion table in loving memory of the late Mr. Ted Nayler and Miss Etta Worrell, Cheshire, England, given by Mrs. Gladys Nayler and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Danford. A beautiful floral arrangement was also sent by Mr. and Mrs. C.T. Rollins.

The morning service was conducted by the Rector Rev. J.H. Thompson, assisted by Rev. A.W. Smith a former Rector of the Parish in 1948-50. Guest Preacher was the Rt. Rev. Wm. Robinson, Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ottawa, another former Rector from 1942-44. Lessons were read by Lay-Reader Mr. Alan Danford and Mr. Robert Hudson. The choir sang the anthem, "God will take care of you," with Miss Joyce Brownson at the organ. Rector's Warden Mr. Sam Danford and People's Warden Mr. Robert Bonter, acted as sidesmen.

The original Vestry book of 1865 with its annual recordings on vestry minutes was on display along with a commemorative plate, which can be purchased for $3.

Following the service with a full church attendance friends from Tweed, Mar-mora, Bancroft, Campbellford, Foxboro, Belleville, Toronto, Ottawa sat down to an open air picnic on the church lawns. A delicious cold ham and salad lunch was served by the ladies of the parish. An anniversary cake with the Anglican crest on it and kindly donated by Alan Danford was cut by the Bishop and the Rector. Oldest members of the congregation were served first the ice-cream and cake, among them being Mrs. D. Akey, Mrs. L. Empey, Mr. Wm. Hart, and Mrs. A. Mitts.

Miss Luella Phillips, A.C.W. President, presented commemorative plates to Bishop Robinson and Rev. Smith in appreciation for their visit, and in assisting in this special celebration in the life of St. John's. They in return thanked the parish, Wardens and Rev. and Mrs. J.H. Thompson for the invitation, kindness and warmth they had received.

A time of friendship and talking over the life and years of the church within the village ended a very happy event for St. John's for another anniversary.

A celebration of Holy Communion was held on June 24, St. John the Baptist day, patron saint of the church, at 10:00 a.m. with the Rector as celebrant.

There's need for prayer for Christian camps

The June meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of Madoc Baptist Church was held on Monday, June 23rd, at 2:00 p.m., following a pot luck lunch at the home of Mrs. Dennis Parsons. Mrs. George Moorcroft opened the meeting with the singing of "The Love of God", and led in prayer. Scripture was read from Psalm 34:1-7.

Mr. Thamer spoke on the need for prayer for the Christian camps during the summer and for missionaries in difficult places.

Roll call was answered by a verse of Scripture. Each member took part in the program. Psalm 92 was read and discussed by Mrs. Parsons. Other subjects were Judging and Humility. A bible contest was conducted by Mrs. Moorcroft on Bible characters. Mrs. Demille discussed Fear and read from Isaiah 41 - 10. Fear keeps us from walking uprightly. Sin causes fear. Satan uses fear to destroy our witness and destroys peace, joy and happiness and can be a stumbling block in our Christian testimony. God gives us strength and help. Fear of the Lord is to hate evil. Mrs. Demille sang, "Lord, Keep Me Trusting Day by Day".

Mrs. Thamer closed the meeting with prayer.

All about people

Jamie, Peter and Eric, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gordon of Madoc left for a three-month holiday with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Petty, of Rosshire, Bermuda.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Neal of R.R. 3, Madoc, entertained at Ports of Call in Toronto in honour of their daughter, Deborah's graduation on May 30th.

Those attending were her grandmother, Mrs. Howard M. Reid, Picton; her sister, Mrs. Carl Blakely of Eldorado; brother, Donald Neal of Streetsville; and her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Payne of Orangeville.

Senior Citizens pot luck dinner attracts 80 people

As this past week was Senior Citizens' Week, Madoc and District Club No. 473 celebrated by having a pot luck dinner on June 18, in Trinity Church Parlour, with 80 members and guests attending. Rev. and Mrs. Heard were presented with a gift of appreciation for the great help they have given the club. Saturday afternoon the club was entertained in the Kiwanis Centre by local merchants and MP's. Many free draws were made, with prizes being sponsored by the merchants. Tuesday, June 24, was the area picnic in the Ben Bleeker Auditorium, in Belleville.

Questions and answers on the feeding of horses

The fourth meeting of the Madoc and area Horse and Pony Club was held at the home of two members, Craig and Lynn Robinson.

After opening the meeting and covering a small amount of business, the President turned the meeting over to the guest speaker, Mr. David Cunningham.

Mr. Cunningham was brought to the meeting by Madoc Co-op to give a slide presentation on the nutritional needs of horses and how to feed them correctly.

After a very interesting and informative lecture, Mr. Cunningham answered all questions asked by the members.

Carol Somerville, the recently-appointed 4-H Co-ordinator, attended part of the meeting to get acquainted with the members.

Nine of the eleven members were present at this meeting. The next meeting will be held on July 21st at the home of Mrs. Irish. This meeting will commence at 7:00 p.m. to allow time for a guest speaker and film.

CARDS OF THANKS

THE FAMILY OF the late Ross Pigden would like to extend our heart-felt thanks to Jim and Sharon Daniels; to Rev. Doug Heard, O.P.P. of Bancroft, Madoc and North Bay; those who assisted with the search on Weslemkoon Lake, Search and Rescue of Trenton R.C.A.F.; those who sent flowers, donations to Kidney Foundation, food, cards, letters, calls; ladies of U.C.W. who served lunch following the funeral; and others who helped in anyway.

I WOULD LIKE to thank all my friends for cards, visits and gifts. Also special thanks to the nursing staff, attending doctors and clergy, while I was a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough.
Mrs. Vince Keogan.

CARDS OF THANKS

WE WOULD LIKE to thank all our friends, relatives and neighbours for cards, flowers and visits while a patient in Belleville General Hospital. Special thanks to Ed. and Sadie Armstrong, Jim Armstrong and fellow workers, also thanks to the ambulance attendants.
Lionel Fobear, Sharon Deline, and family.

THE MEMBERS OF Madoc and District Senior Citizens' Club No. 473 would like to express their gratitude to all those responsible for the lovely afternoon provided for them on Saturday, June 21st in the Kiwanis Centre. To each and every one we say Thank You.

MAY I EXTEND sincerest thanks to Anne
McKee, Lillian O'Connor and Verna Hughes, the organizers and to each and everyone who helped to make the farewell party on my behalf a truly wonderful evening. Your thoughtfulness and kindness are really appreciated. My association with Sacred Heart School and with the people of Marmora and surrounding district has been a pleasure. I shall cherish forever memories connected with this community. A very special thank you.
-- Sincerely, Patricia McNamara.

WE WISH TO express our sincere thanks for all gifts, cards and visits to Archie while in Hotel Dieu, Kingston. Special thanks to those who drove Marge down to Kingston during the past four months and to our kind friends and neighbours for their care and concern. -- Archie and Marjorie Chapman.

WE TAKE THIS opportunity to thank all those who helped to make Nursing Home Week at Centre Hastings Nursing Home such a success: the five ministers of Marmora who conducted a service on Sunday, June 15; the residents themselves; their relatives who came to participate as a family group in the activities; Jace Donaldson who spent many hours organizing, baking and rounding up helpers without whom we could never have accomplished such a successful week; her helpers, Isobel
Goodchild, Joan Maloney, Bernice Young,
Mabel King, Eleanor Lynch and girls,
Betty Lou Corrigan and girls, and Isabel Marshall; to Muriel Regan for her contribution of flowers; to all our staff, many of whom assisted during off-duty hours; and to Brian Lynch for being our willing errand boy. -- Mike and Betty Horvath.

WE WANT to thank our family for arranging a lovely anniversary for us.
Special thanks to Reeve and Mrs.
McGaffin, the merchants and neighbours for gifts, flowers and cards, as well as our council. Specially we thank Blanche and Josh Osborne for their kind help. -- Herb and Mae Bradley.

MRS. DAVE LOBB and family wish to express their sincere thanks to everyone who were so kind and thoughtful during their recent bereavement.

IN MEMORIAMs

CHARD - In loving memory of my dear husband, Herbert A. Chard, who passed away June 26th, 1964.
It's lonely here without you,
We miss you more each day,
For life is not the same to us
Since you were called away.
Tenderly we treasure the past
With memories that will always last,
And when we cease to think of you
Will be when God has called us too.
Lovingly remembered and sadly missed
by wife Lottie

CHARD - In loving memory of our beloved father and grandfather, Herbert
A. Chard, who passed away June 26th, 1964.

Things I feel most deeply,
Are the hardest things to say,
Dearest Dad I love you, in a very special way.

If I could have one lifetime wish,
One dream that could come true,
I'd pray to God with all my heart for yesterday and you.

Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by daughter Geraldine and granddaughter Charlotte.

NAYLER, E. T. (Ted) - We still hold cherished memories of a loving husband, father and grandfather, (Ted) who went to his eternal rest, June 24, 1969. Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by wife
Gladys and family.

ATHLETES OF THE YEAR

Donna Lee, female champion and Rick Walters, male champion, were presented with trophies as athletes of the year at Madoc Public School Tuesday morning.

New extension helper replaces John Paul

A new Extension Assistant was appointed to Hastings County effective the first of June. This new staff member is Miss Carol Somerville, who will be taking over the work carried on the last two and one-half years by John Paul.

Carol Somerville comes from Halton County. Her home farm is located near Acton. Her farm background is in the dairy industry both at home and working on other dairy farms in Halton County. In addition to this, Carol was a very active member in 4-H clubs, completing projects that include most of the clubs currently in operation in Hastings County. Her achievement record was very high and as a result she represented the County at many events and competitions.

This spring, Carol graduated from the Centralia College of Agricultural Technology. At this college, she was enrolled in the Agricultural Business Management Course. Because of the system used there, she has a lot of on-farm working experience in farm record-keeping and management. While at the college, she served on the Livestock Evaluation and during the second year term, Carol was Research Assistant in the Seed Division at the Maple Leaf Mills Research Centre, Georgetown.

Carol Somerville brings a wide background of experience to her position as Extension Assistant for Hastings County, a member of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food staff at the Main County Office, Stirling. She is the first lady member in Extension work in the history of the province.

John Paul, who resigned to go to other work in the agricultural business field, had served two and one-half years at Stirling. His new position in the business world will bring him back to the area on a regular basis and he hopes to be able to continue to make contributions to the 4-H program with which he was deeply involved.

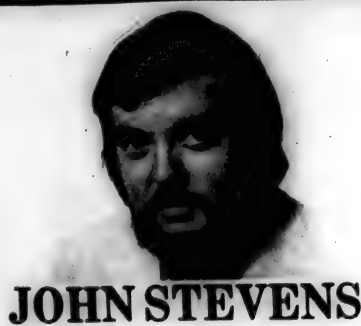

Madoc OPP kept busy accidents investigation

During the past week, officers of the Madoc Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated fourteen accidents. Eight charges were laid in connection with these collisions. Damages amounted to $12,835.00 with six persons sent to Belleville General Hospital.

Nine reports of theft were investigate. There were three reports of break and enter and two reports of wilful damage. Six disturbances were investigated. There were two assaults reported to this detachment. Four persons were charged for Having Liquor under the Liquor Control Act. One person was reported missing, but has been located.

Approximately 51 other occurrences have been investigated, such as trespassers, compassionate to locate, lost items and complaints of speeding.

50 years ago

On June 21st, 1928, a number of the young people entertained Mr. and Mrs. Nugent and Mr. L. McConnell, who are soon leaving the village. The evening was spent in dancing and playing cards. After refreshments had been served, Mr. Robert Bristol called the gathering together and with a few appropriate words, presented Mr. and Mrs. Nugent with two beautiful silver trays. Mr. George West then presented Mr. McConnell with a fountain pen. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Mrs. Elias Holmes was the guest of honour on Friday, June 15th, 1928, when her family and friends gathered at her home at Remington to celebrate with her on the occasion of her eightieth birthday. At twelve o'clock the guests, numbering forty, sat down to a sumptuous dinner. During the afternoon, games and a baseball match were enjoyed. Although taken by surprise, Mrs. Holmes was an entertaining hostess and was happy to have her family gathered around. All of her family were present, including two grandchildren, Miss Lois and Master Dick Groves. Mrs. Holmes was the recipient of many beautiful gifts and the party broke up, after supper by singing, "God Be With you 'Til We Meet Again".

The program at the Kiwanis dinner the week of June 14th, 1951, was furnished by Mr. Sam Blackmore of the Niagara Falls N.Y. Club, who showed pictures of Rio De Janeiro. Mr. Blackmore was introduced by Hillis Fowlie of Niagara Falls, while Kiwanis appreciation was extended by Bob Beatty.

A Madoc resident received an unexpected demonstration of nature's way of protecting its young a few days ago. Applying to Conservation Officer Shannon for permission to keep a small fawn he found, apparently abandoned, he agreed to return to the scene with the officer. Mr. Shannon found the mother deer still waiting in the woods nearby and there wasn't much hesitation in releasing the fawn.

Members of the Madoc Lawn Bowling Club won their first game in League competition on Monday, June 18th, 1951, when they defeated Belleville. A team, skipped by W. E. Connor, won in Belleville from the powerful L. E. McLean

Thomas Burnside, Reeve of Madoc Village, made the first official call over the new telephone dial system in Madoc in the presence of G.W. Proctor, retiring manager, and the new manager, R. S. O'Rourke.

The local firemen were given runs this week of June 23rd, 1960, to two freak fires. On Monday, they were called to the Free Methodist Church on St. Lawrence Street, where Hydro wires were shorted and the outside of the frame building scorched. On Wednesday, they made the second run to a brick barn on Elgin Street, owned by J. A. Watson, where a fire is believed to have started from combustion. In both cases, little or no damage resulted.

Thieves broke into the Red and White Store in Tweed on Tuesday, June 14th, 1960, and escaped with goods valued at several hundred dollars. Taken were the store's stock of cigarettes, 100 pairs of nylon stockings and various groceries. Miss Ana Thompson, a clerk, arrived at the store before 8:00 a.m. the next day and discovered a door had been jimmied. A few months ago she was on duty when gunmen held up the store.

WIN 3 IN ROWPurina-Ettes tie leaders in 2-2

by Karen Jones

Last week Purina-Ettes played four games tying one and winning three. Wednesday night in Belleville the Purina-Ettes tied the first place team, the Belleville Yardmen 2 to 2. The home team out hit the Belleville team 9 to 6. The Purina-Ettes took the lead early in the 2nd. inning with Bonnie Jones hitting a double and Penny Graham and Darlene Bedore each a single to bring the run in. Then in the fifth inning Bonnie Thompson hit a single and Jane Bailey hit her home to make the score 2 to 0. The Belleville Yardmen then came alive in the 6th inning with Nancy Birch and Sharon Alexander tying the score 2 to 2. Sandra Fleming pitched the game for the Purina-Ettes having three strike outs and two walks.

Thursday night in Madoc the Purina-Ettes defeated the Belleville Broadloom 13 to 1 in 5 innings. The score was 3 to 1 at the bottom of the 3rd. inning when the Purina-Ettes chalked up ten runs in the 4th. The Belleville Broadloom fielded a team of eight players. Darlene Bedore pitched for the Purina-Ettes having five strike outs and one walk.

Penny Graham for the Purina-Ettes won the food voucher from the Madoc Dairy and Linda Cole from the Belleville Broadloom won the food voucher from Kramp's Happy Hut as the most valuable players.

Sunday afternoon in Madoc the home team won two games which should tie the Purina-Ettes with the Belleville Yardmen for first place.

In the first game the Purina-Ettes walked over Lakeside Oxygen 26 to 0. Jane Bailey and Penny Graham each hitting a home run, which will entitle them to a Barn Buster at Red Barn, that makes four for Jane.

Darlene Bedore pitched the four innings for the Purina-Ettes having six strike outs and no walks; Darlene also won her 2nd. food voucher from the Madoc Dairy, while Lakesides catcher Sharon Best got the food voucher from Kramp's Happy Hut.

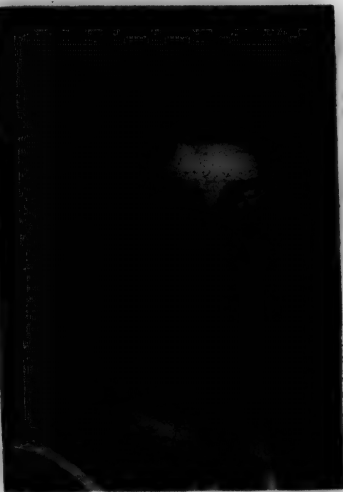

The second game being a better and closer game, saw the Purina-Ettes down the first place Belleville Yardmen 5 to 3. The Yardmen getting three runs in the 7th inning. The Purina-Ettes out hit the Yardmen 12 to 10. Jane Bailey hitting her oest for the home team, got a triple and one single, while Joan chalked up a double and one single, Sandra Fleming and Brenda Hay each had two singles, while Darlene Bedore, Bonnie Jones and Rosanne Chapman each got a single.

The Yardmen started the 7th inning off with a single from Sue Morton and Shirley Gulliver, with one out Joyce MacFarlane got on with a walk and pinch hitter Donna Lucas hit a single along with Sheila Smith to bring in three runs. Sandra Fleming pitching for the Purina-Ettes had seven strike outs and four walks. Shirley Gulliver for the Yardmen had four strike outs and no walks. Joan Bailey for the Purina-Ettes won her first food voucher from the Madoc Dairy, while Carol MacFarlane won the same from Kramp's Happy Hut.

Belleville Ladies first tournament will start Friday night at the Alemite at 7 p.m. After the opening ceremonies, the Purina-Ettes will play the Belleville Yardmen, followed by Belleville Broadloom taking on a team from Brighton. This is a double knock out tournament, and the teams participating will be Ottawa, Belleville Yardmen, Purina-Ettes, Oshawa MacDonalds, Newmarket Burling Rangers.

There are weekend passes available at the gate for $3 or a daily admission fee will be charged.

Prior to the tournament the Purina-Ettes will play Lakeside Oxygen, Wednesday night, at the Alemite and Ellis Construction Thursday night in Madoc at 8 p.m., and Monday night the 30th in Belleville at the Centennial field against Mobil Plastics.

All over Canada farmers have come to count on Gulf quality farm petroleum products and the fast efficient service of the Gulf agent or distributor.

Mike Hudak, Hudak Farms Ltd., Essex, Ont.

"After 20 years with my Gulf distributor, I'm convinced that they know their stuff. Take Gulf Barium greases... on my combines, with high speed bearings, barium keeps them cool and I don't have to grease as often. We keep running longer and with less wear, thanks to Gulf."

There's a Gulf agent or distributor near you. He has the expert advice that can help make a big difference in your farming operation.

Low Vanderheyden and Son, Strathroy, Ont.

"Growing tobacco is tricky business. I've got eight burners for the kilns, the temperatures should be kept between 85° and 165° when drying. Too much sway can cause problems. Gulf's kept me out of trouble. My Gulf agent usually calls three times a week. The service is exceptional."

Ralph and Neil Schade, Schade Bros., Ramblelawn Farms, Listowel, Ont.

"We've got an 11 year old tractor with about 8,000 hours on it. With Gulf oil, it still has its original pistons and sleeves. For the last 27 years we've had no complaints with Gulf. We take pride in our machinery, so it's Gulf all the way - nothing else."

Edwin Smart, Fergus, Ont.

"With 50 head in the field, service is an important factor in my farming. Sometimes, I need things within 24 hours. My Gulf agent bends over backwards to get me what I want. Gulf's never let me down. As for their products I wouldn't use anything I didn't believe was the best and I'm using them all."

Dale Carnegie Course starting in Campbellford

Tom Burgis, President of the Campbellford Chamber of Commerce, announced Friday that the club will act as sponsor of the world-famous Dale Carnegie Course soon to begin in Campbellford.

"We are bringing the course to our community because we feel it is in the interest of public service," Mr. Burgis said.

The organization of this class will be under the direction of Mr. Bob Hall of Peterborough. Mr. Hall represents K.D. Crone and Associates who present Dale Carnegie Training in Ontario. In Eastern Ontario there are classes presently in Oshawa, Port Hope, Ajax, Bancroft, Peterborough, as well as 25 other communities in the province.

"The Dale Carnegie Course, for more than half a century, has been helping men and women to live happier, richer and more successful lives through the discovery and development of their hidden talents and potential abilities." Mr. Hall said, "such as the development of greater self-confidence a keen memory and more effective powers of communication." He went on to say that many people take the course primarily because they want a broader understanding of human relations.

They want to know how to get along even more graciously with people whether it be in a business or social situation or at home. Mr. Hall reported that the Dale Carnegie Course, during its fifty-four years of operation has graduated well over a million men and women and the course is now offered all across Canada, U.S. and foreign countries.

Anyone who is interested in more information about the Dale Carnegie Course may telephone Tom Burgis at 653-1344.

Socred candidate to undergo a tonsilectomy

Hastings-Peterborough Social Credit candidate Nancy Arnold entered the General and Marine Hospital here today, to undergo a tonsilectomy.

The 26 year old newspaper reporter was staying at her cottage in nearby Wasaga Beach when she became ill and was ordered into hospital.

Full recovery is expected to take a few weeks, but Mrs. Arnold says that will not effect her election try.

"I had not planned to really begin the campaign until the election is called next September anyway," she said. Mrs. Arnold has been predicting an October election.

However, her entry into hospital forced cancellation of plans to attend a meeting of concerned parents at Norwood High School, June 19. The Norwood meeting was expected to discuss the school boards practice of pressuring students to read books containing questionable language.

The Social Credit candidate has indicated that what she called in her April 12 nomination speech "filthy books," will be a major part of the things her campaign will discuss.

The candidate is under the personal care of Collingwood's Chief of Surgery, Dr. James W. McGillivray. Dr. McGillivray is Vice-President of the Social Credit Party of Canada and a personal friend of the candidate.

Your complete guide to homes, cottages and lots in the Tri-County area

Walter hopes to be adopted with sister

Walter is 14, a healthy, good-looking lad of Metis (Indian and white) descent. An athletic boy, he enjoys most sports, especially baseball and football. He loves camping and riding his bike.

Walter is behind in school, because of non-attendance before he came into the care of the Children's Aid Society. He will probably take longer than normal to finish elementary school but his teachers and the school psychologist do not feel he needs special education.

A sensitive youngster, Walter is pleasant and co-operative -- always wanting to please people. He gets on well with children but will take awhile to feel comfortable with strange adults.

Walter has a younger sister, Bonnie, nine, to whom he is strongly attached. He hopes (as Bonnie does too) that they can be adopted together. If this is not possible, the children would like to be permitted to maintain contact with each other.

To inquire about adopting Walter, please write to 'Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. In your letter please tell something of your present family and your way of life.

Honor Sedgwick family at Queensboro Church

A presentation was held on Wednesday, June 18, at Queensboro United Church for Reverend and Mrs. Sedgwick and family who are leaving Eldorado-Queensboro Charge for Seymour Charge outside of Campbellford.

During the program the following address was read:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Sedgwick, Kathy, Melanie, John and Kenny:

We have found this a very difficult address to write, there are so many things we would like to say which time does not allow, but we will try to say a few of them.

It has been a pleasure to see your children grow up in our neighbourhood and while the boys may not have realized it, we have been keenly interested in their baseball and hockey participation and we are sure that they will find new friends and fun in the Campbellford area.

Kathy and Melanie have been a wonderful help in both Choir and Sunday School, and we will find them difficult to replace. A new area offers new challenges and new opportunities for two girls with such friendly and helpful attitudes.

Now Lorna, it's your turn. We've often wondered how one so small could run a household, raise four children, entertain as a minister's wife must, teach school on the side and still come serenely into church on a Sunday morning, Sunday School book under your arm, ready to capture the interest of so large a group of 10-12 year olds.

This experience might easily have been yours:

Light oven, get out bowl, spoon and ingredients. Grease pan and crack nuts. Remove 18 blocks and 7 toy automobiles from kitchen table. Measure out 2 cups of flour, remove Johnny's hands from the flour and wash the flour off Johnny. Put flour, baking powder and salt in sifter. Get dustpan and brush up pieces of bowl that Johnny knocked off the table and on to the floor. Get another bowl. Answer doorbell. Return to kitchen. Remove Johnny's hands from bowl. Wash Johnny. Get another egg. Answer telephone, return. Take out greased pan and remove 1/4 inch salt from it. Look for Johnny. Return to kitchen and find Johnny, remove his hands from bowl, wash shortening off him. Take up greased pan and find layer of nutshells in it. Head for Johnny, who flees, knocking off bowl.

Wash kitchen floor, wash table, wash walls, wash dishes. Call up the "Baker". Lie down.

All nonsense aside, we really appreciate your friendship and understanding and our hope is that you find many new friends among the people of Mr. Sedgwick's new charge.

God never goes to the lazy or the idle when He needs people for His service. When God calls a worker, it is someone who is already working. When God wants a great service done, He calls a very busy man.

-Moses was busy with his flocks at Horeb.
-Gideon was busy threshing wheat by the wine press.

-Saul was busy looking for his father's lost beasts.

-David was busy ploughing with twelve yoke of oxen.

-Nehemiah was busy bearing the king's wise cry.

-Amos was busy following the flock.

-Peter and Andrew were busy mending their nets.

-Matthew was busy collecting taxes.

and save a bundle on roof repairs, year after year, with flynnecote elastomeric
plastic roof coating.

This product is a unique Elastomeric Liquid Plastic coating that cures rapidly to a rubber-like film, with excellent tensile strength, elongation, durability and fire resistance. flynnecote is strongly recommended for barn roofs and all farm buildings. Your Choice of Six Beautiful Colors.

- ★ Economical A coating of Elastomeric Liquid Plastic can make your present roof as good as new and you can save money on the cost of a new roof. You'll save on costly future repairs and upkeep, too!
- ★ Durable Elastomeric Liquid Plastic lasts for many years. Retains its color and good looks. Stays resistant to cold, heat, weather, oils and chemicals. No drying out and cracking!
- ★ Flexible Elastomeric Liquid Plastic forms a long-life rubber-like coating over the entire surface that stays elastic and expands and contracts with the roof and the weather. Won't buckle or pull open.
- ★ Versatile Elastomeric Liquid Plastic can be used on almost all common surfaces and construction materials, pitched or dead level.
- ★ Colorful Elastomeric Liquid Plastic coatings are available in a wide range of permanent colors: black, white, blue, red, green, silver, slate grey. Special colors available in 145 gallon minimum batch quantities.
- ★ Lightweight A complete application of Elastomeric Liquid Plastic weighs only 5-10 lbs. per 100 square feet. Reduces overall dead weight, compared with conventional systems.

Chances are a single low-cost coat of Elastomeric Liquid Plastic will turn the home you do have into the home you'd like to have.

- ★ Anti-slip Provides anti-slip characteristics to surfaces where non-skidding is most important... roof decks, pool decks, driveways, parking areas.
- ★ Easy to maintain Elastomeric Liquid Plastic washes clean and bright with a garden hose!

Elastomeric Liquid Plastic does do wonderful things to any surface!

- ★ Repairs Elastomeric Liquid Plastic fills and seals cracks, splits and holes and "ties down" shingles.
- ★ Protects Elastomeric Liquid Plastic seals out moisture to eliminate deterioration of roofing material. Resists the effects of smoke, fumes, sun-light and weather. Keeps roofs and sidewalls looking new and in "mint condition."
- ★ Waterproofs Elastomeric Liquid Plastic forms a watertight shield over the entire surface, for years of leakproof wear. No water damage with Elastomeric Liquid Plastic on the job!
- ★ Insulates Elastomeric Liquid Plastic helps keep interiors cooler in summer, warmer in winter. Helps cut down both air conditioning and heating costs!
- ★ Rejuvenates Elastomeric Liquid Plastic makes old roofs and sidewalls look like new. Provides an attractive, colorful roof finish that adds both beauty and value to your home.
- ★ Saves you money Elastomeric Liquid Plastic helps save on fuel bills and moisture damage. And saves you many hundreds of dollars on repairs, maintenance and replacement, and sidewall painting.

When the subject of protective coatings comes up... Elastomeric Liquid Plastic covers the subject—beautifully!

Elastomeric Liquid Plastic renews and protects roofs and sidewalls...and enhances the house they surround!

RULES — There are three parts to THE WORD CAGE: (1) clues, and (2) quiz, which lead to (3) the final answer, the "mystery word."
The clues and quiz are hidden in the grid — up, down, across, backward or diagonally. First, circle the clue words (we've found the first word for you). You may find the same letter in more than one word, so circle each letter clearly. Next circle the quiz words; the first letter and number of letters are given for each.
When you have circled all the clue and quiz words, the remaining uncluttered letters will spell out the answer to this week's WORD CAGE.

CLUES FOR: GREY

QUIZ

His first name (Z - 4)
He wrote many (B - 5)
His nationality (A - 8)

THIS ANSWER HAS 11 LETTERS

Solutions to last week's puzzle: narrative

"NOW, THAT WASN'T SO BAD, WAS IT?"

Promise of Everlasting Life

Then answered Peter and said unto him, Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed thee: what shall we have therefore?

And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, that ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

And everyone that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life.

For And About Teenagers

THIS WEEK'S LETTER:

I'm a guy and I'm 15 years old. I have a problem which is more serious than you might understand. I like girls a lot. There is one girl I like very much. I've known her for almost four years. I would like to take her out and be with her. I'm not in a good situation to take her out—since I'm only 15 I'm not allowed to drive alone yet. She is probably used to a guy who can take her out. Besides double-dating, can you advise me on what to do?

OUR REPLY: We understand your problem. We were teenagers once too. And, we like girls! What you have to do is accept the fact that you're not allowed to drive alone yet. Once you do that you'll recognize that you really don't have a problem. It's just the way things are. Sure you want to be with her. Don't worry about what she's used to. Communicate to her that you want to be with her. Share your feelings. She'll understand. Then, maybe you can meet her in the park or on the beach, or any of a number of places that you don't have to drive to. Don't be so dependent on the automobile. Investigate for other places to go and things to do. You could walk together, or even take the bus somewhere. The point is, being with her doesn't mean you have to drive.

Because of the volume of letters to this column, requests for personal replies cannot be accommodated. Editorial panel selects for weekly use, letter which best represents questions and/or comments from readers. FOR & ABOUT TEENAGERS, BOX 639, FRANKFORT, KENTUCKY 40601.

District happenings

Here and there around Huntingdon Mrs. John Tebworth - 473-2395

Saturday night Mrs. Jean Aylsworth treated her Sunday School Class to a weiner roast, cake and ice-cream.

After living here for twenty-two years, Mrs. Benson French will soon be leaving this community and making her home in Madoc. All are hoping it doesn't rain for her sale on Saturday.

Mrs. Vernon Zafelt, Omemece, spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Keller. She said the Reverend is feeling much better and is busy in his large garden.

Mrs. Edna Reid had a very enjoyable drive Sunday with some friends travelling north to Bancroft and area.

Mrs. Doug Keller and Suzanne spent a few days last week in Belleville with her mother, Mrs. David Fobert.

Many parents from the community attended graduation night at the Madoc Public School, where a delicious supper was put on by the grade eights. The evening was spent with pupils showing great talent. It was enjoyed by all present.

Mr. and Mrs. Len Ormerod, Dennis and Suzie, of Markham visited Mr. and Mrs. Eric Ormerod on the weekend.

Monday evening a bridal shower was given to Ronda Lasher by Donna Reid at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Waltraud Reid. She received some very useful gifts.

Saturday evening a baby shower was held for Mrs. Shields (nee Madeline Walker) at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Aylsworth and Wendy, Mr. and Mrs. John Tebworth, Blaine and John, attended a "Coffee Break" in Grafton in Sunday and met a lot of General Radio operators.

Queensboro area highlights

Mrs. Arthur Holmes - 473-2140

Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon and Bill were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Torrance, Susan and Ian, of Campbellford.

Church service for Loyal Orange Lodge No. 160 and district 2, and L.O.B.A. was held in St. Andrew's United Church, Queensboro on Sunday morning.

The Orangemen and ladies marched from the Orange Hall to the church, to the sound of fife and drums. Also at this service, Reverend Wendell Sedgwick held a Baptismal service at which the following children were baptized: Kevin Wayne, Kimberley Ann and Shelly Donna, children of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ramsay and Jason Douglas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Runnalls.

Mrs. Leroy Rollins, Ivanhoe, visited her sister, Mrs. Thomas Ash, on Saturday, while Mr. and Mrs. Holmes attended the Holmes reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Stafford Genereaux spent a few days in Syracuse and Ottawa last week. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lynn and family, Cobourg, were weekend visitors of Mrs. Will Lynn and attended the Holmes reunion.

Miss Margaret Burnside, Guelph, spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Max Burnside.

Miss Rose Laffin spent the past six weeks in Toronto with Mr. and Mrs. Andy Galea. The 51st Holmes Reunion was held on Saturday, June 21st, in the Women's Institute Hall with an attendance of 86.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Pike, Toronto, are spending some time visiting relatives here and attended the Holmes reunion.

Mrs. Claude Keene and Bobbie visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Holmes Friday afternoon.

U.C.W. Unit 1 held their June meeting in the Sunday School room on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Roy Rollins was hostess. The theme was, "The Church".

A farewell party for Reverend Wendell Sedgwick, Mrs. Sedgwick and family was held in St. Andrew's United Church on Wednesday evening. The program consisted of songs, various readings and Hymns. An address was read to them and they were presented with a reclining chair, blanket and towels. Each of the children received a monogrammed wallet.

A number of children from here attended a school camp at Camp Quin-Mo-Lac last week.

Mrs. John Thompson spent last week in Toronto with her relatives and visited her husband in hospital there. John is progressing and expects to be home in the near future.

Sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Elma Dafee, whose sister, Mrs. Pearl Dafee of Coe Hill, passed away on June 23rd. The deceased is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reid.

No one would ever mistake you, Mr. Sedgwick for a lazy man; either in manual labour or in your ministry to the spiritual needs of your people. The demands upon your time have been many, trying, and no doubt exhausting at times, but each situation has been met with dignity and wisdom.

We realize that no doubt you have been discouraged at times, but out of this ministry has come a strengthening of the faith of many, a broader knowledge of God's word and a challenge to live more dedicated lives.

And so to the Sedgwick family; If we had a magic wand

To wave above your heads, We'd wish you health and wealth and love For all the days ahead. These gifts we give to let you know That though our spirits may be low We'll wave you on to greater things And all we hope the future brings. Signed on behalf of the St. Andrew's congregation, Vera Burnside and Elsie Franks.

The Sedgwick family were presented with lovely gifts, for which they made suitable replies. A lovely lunch was served by the ladies.

A very busy week at Centre Hastings

Many events mark special week

Nursing Home Week was marked with a number of special events at the Centre Hastings Nursing Home in Deloro.

On Sunday, June 15, ministers from the five different churches in Marmora led in an inter-denominational service for 27 residents who were able to attend, along with sixty relatives, friends, volunteer helpers and staff on duty. Mrs. Myrna Neal accompanied on the organ. A light lunch was served and social hour enjoyed afterwards.

The owners, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Horvath entertained at a dinner on Monday evening. Present were Deloro Reeve Doug Lynch and Mrs. Lynch, Councillor and Mrs. Ted Galloway, Councillor and Mrs. Tom Armstrong, Councillor and Mrs. Cletus Green, Village Clerk Bernice Young, Dr. Arun Dosaj of Madoc and Mrs. Horvath's mother, Mrs. Faye Hanna.

In an after-dinner address, Mr. Horvath welcomed everyone and thanked them for attending. He went on to give a short resume of nursing homes and their function in communities, but more particular, the operation of his own establishment.

"There have been a lot of changes since we purchased this Nursing Home in 1971, especially in its size. It has been an uphill battle, but the co-operation and support of the Deloro Council has gone a long way towards making the path a smoother one," he said. "Unfortunately there are never enough beds to go around, but we do try to accommodate the people in our local area," he continued.

"A popular conception of the public is, that the government owns the home and hires the people to run them. This is not so. The government through 'Extended Care' does contribute a flat rate for each bed occupied by an eligible resident. There is no differential for accommodation; that is the share that must be paid by the resident. Another factor is that any person, regardless of age, may enter a nursing home under Extended Care, provided that they fulfil the health requirements.

All equipment and all furnishings are supplied by the owners with no grants to help out, but the government hands out many rules and regulations to comply with."

Mr. Horvath said, "Our Nursing Home has 24 hour coverage by registered staff. Since Extended Care came into being in 1972, all nursing homes in Ontario have had to pull up their socks to conform to regulations. We believe the small homes provide a more personal care than big ones of one hundred or more beds."

Reeve Lynch replied on behalf of his Council and others present. Afterwards everyone relaxed in an informal atmosphere.

On Tuesday evening a trio composed of Kate O'Connor, Lori March and Carol

Shannon, entertained the residents and relatives for about an hour. The large dining room was filled to capacity with the overflow seated in the hall outside the doors. After entertainment by the trio, everyone joined in singing many of the old songs which the residents enjoy so much.

A group of Marmora Senior Citizens visited the nursing home on Wednesday afternoon. Those present were Eva Post, Freda Leal, Vera Acorn, Blanche Chapman, Ann Winters, May Terrior, Kay McCoy, Alice Sheridan, Iva Tandy, Amy Marrisett, Grace Warren, Charlie Conkright and Annie Brown of Picton.

A demonstration of modern square dancing by the Trent Valley Squares on Wednesday evening caused many a toe to tap along with the music.

Twelve residents were able to attend, along with relatives and staff, a social evening at the Deloro Community Hall on Thursday evening. Many of those who hadn't been on a dance floor in years were up and dancing, and those confined to wheelchairs enjoyed some wheelchair waltzes pushed around by willing partners.

A garden party was held on the lawn in front of the nursing home on Saturday afternoon under sunny skies. The tables were decorated with peonies and fern. All but four residents were able to attend. Refreshments were served by staff and volunteer helpers, while those unable to attend were not forgotten, they and their visitors had lunch in the rooms.

With the co-operation and help of their staff, Mr. and Mrs. Horvath made Nursing Home Week a time for remembering. The residents who live at the nursing home and who are confined indoors for so much of the time enjoyed being able to participate in the activities. Although their capabilities are limited, they still enjoy life and the little extra activity such as we had during Nursing Home Week.

SENIOR CITIZENS HOUSING

The Senior Citizens building on Wellington Street is nearly ready for occupancy. The landscaping has been completed and attractive patio furniture is set up in the front lawn. The above picture shows the main entrance.

Canon Brownlie dies in B.C.

Rev. Canon John Murray Brownlie, a former rector of St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, died at Vancouver, B.C., Wednesday, June 11. His wife, the former Nora Frances Wilkins, a son John Douglas of Toronto and a daughter, Mrs. D. A. S. (Marjorie) Lanskill of Vancouver, survive.

Canon Brownlie visited Marmora during St. Paul's Centennial Year celebrations last year, and officiated at a eucharist in the holiday absence of the present rector, the Rev. John Lombard.

A memorial is to be placed in St. Paul's, by the congregation, in Canon Brownlie's memory.

Named for Pope
The Gregorian Chant was named for St. Gregory, Pope of Rome from 590 to 604, who had made a collection of the music used in the Catholic services.

New modern bus for the Franklins

A new 47 passenger highway coach has been purchased by Franklin Tours of Marmora and will go into operation on July 1 on a trip to the West Coast.

The new bus features washrooms, air conditioning, reclining seats and an entertainment centre containing radio, tape deck, FM and a public address system. It will also be possible for passengers to reverse their seats, unfold a card table and have a game of cards while travelling.

The bus is very similar to the other one owned by Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Smith and was purchased from Prevost Car Inc. of St. Clair, Que.

Monty Smith has joined his parents in the company which caters to people wanting a comfortable, care free holiday.

The Smith's have other plans which they do not feel free to disclose at this time.

Supplement to Madoc Review, Marmora Herald, Norwood Register & Hastings Star - Wed. June 25, 1975

The Highlands of Hastings

There's lots to do in this prime vacation area

Summer is a time of relaxation and Hastings has the leisure pleasures to offer. There's swimming, water-skiing, rock-hounding, boating, hiking trails, riding trails, fishing, golfing, lawn bowling, trap shooting (visitors may contact local executive members of the Fish and Game Clubs to use trap and rifle shooting facilities) ball-parks, recreational facilities, zoos and many many more.

Hastings is a superb summer spot - but its pleasures are not confined to that season. There is a special excitement in the air when the annual Fall Fairs approach with the horse drawing contest, livestock show, poultry and farm products, handicrafts, home-cooking, preserves, baby show, and the large midway areas.

Winter months in the Hastings area can be busiest of the year. With over 80,000 acres of Crown Land and cut snowmobile trails that are readily marked fanned out in all directions to provide the snowmobiler with all the room they need to enjoy this increasingly popular family sport. Maps are available (from tourist associations) with the snowmobile trails clearly marked (for easy reading) from any of our tourist information booths located throughout the Hastings area.

Ice fishermen have a choice of lakes - with easy excess to each lake and accommodations are readily available for the snowmobiler and a repair shop located nearby in case you need one.

Hastings can provide the ice fisherman with fine yellow-bellied pickerel, lake trout and perch.

Hastings County is famous for its numerous lakes and streams which provide the fisherman with a full variety of pike, yellow pickerel, blue pickerel, sauger, largemouth and smallmouth bass, muskellunge, brook trout, brown trout, splake, sturgeon, blue gills and catfish or mudcats as they are commonly known.

GOURMET RESULTS

Try a little marinade

The modern homemaker has found that delicate marinades can inspire gourmet results in a variety of meat, poultry, seafood and even vegetable recipes. A good marinade can turn a less expensive cut of meat into fork tender eating. At the same time it imparts flavour, aroma and colour.

Like any seasoning, marinades should be used with discretion. Some foods require hours or days in a marinade. Others are properly flavoured in just minutes. Three basic ingredients make up most marinades - oil; an acid such as vinegar, lemon juice or wine; and seasonings of herbs and spices. Lawry's Seasoned Salt, Seasoned Pepper, Lemon Pepper and Garlic Salt are all excellent blends of herbs and seasonings for use in marinades.

Choose any meat - beef, pork, poultry or lamb - and create a different flavour combination with each marinade you use. As well, marinades make good sauces to pass with meat.

Two easy methods for marinating meat are possible. In the plastic bag - a quick and tidy way. Place meat in bag, pour marinade over, close with a twist and into the refrigerator. Meat and marinade can be easily stirred by rotating bag to different positions on the refrigerator shelf. The more traditional method is to marinate in a large bowl in the refrigerator, being sure to turn meat occasionally to cover and expose all surfaces to marinade mixture.

For a glamorous Far Eastern feast serve Curried Lamb Kabobs, with a variety of colourful vegetables. This curry flavoured marinade is a perfect accompaniment to lamb. If you wish, serve with mounds of fluffy white rice or a rice pilaf.

Curried Lamb Kabobs

1/2 cup water
1/2 cup vinegar
1/2 cup salad oil
1 teaspoon Lawry's Seasoned

Salt
1 teaspoon Lawry's Seasoned Pepper
1 teaspoon curry powder
1 to 1 1/2 pounds lean lamb, cut in 1 1/2 inch cubes mushroom caps tiny whole onions green pepper pieces
tomato wedges

Combine water, vinegar, salad oil, Seasoned Salt, Seasoned Pepper and curry powder in a screw-top pint-size jar. Shake well. Pour over lamb cubes and mushroom caps. Marinate several hours or overnight in refrigerator. Cook onions in boiling water about 3 minutes. Arrange lamb cubes on skewers, alternating with mushrooms, onions and green pepper pieces. Grill Kabobs over medium charcoal fire 8 to 12 minutes turning and basting with remaining marinade. Prepare a separate skewer for tomato wedges and grill about two minutes.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Anglers discover the newest in gear brings them stronger rods and lines

By TERRY DRAKE

Styles, fads and fashions are forever recirculating to a past era. Wide lapels, vested suits and mid-calf skirts are the NOW words in "up-to-date" dress. Even hunters and fishermen are afflicted by this phenomenon of returning to yesteryear.

Time was when gossamer line and delicate fishing tackle was the stock-in-trade of dedicated anglers everywhere. Theirs, so they reasoned, was the true art of luring and landing Mr. Fish. More oomph per ounce-pull per pound and it gave the quarry a sporting chance, was their rationale.

So it was until BIG-fish fishing, especially for BIG BASS, appeared on the scene some 20 years ago with the advent of huge man-made impoundments across the land.

Back-door fishing

Scores of thousands of fishermen were then faced with "back-door" fishing beyond their wildest imaginations. Lakes, thousands of acres in size, dotted the land.

Most of these new "in-land seas" were filled with standing timber, bushes, fence rows and "stick ups" as far as the eye could see. As expected, the fish grew to sizes only dreamed of theretofore.

No longer could giant muskie, pike and bass be "played" in open water, tried and tired, and complacently landed. Now it was hook 'em, horse 'em and get 'em in the net before they took your line and wove a Jacob's Ladder around every tree in the inundated forest.

A new day was on the scene among "big-fish" addicts. Braided or mono-

The ultra-light Zebco Cardinal 3 and Zebco mini-lures are typical of the fishing tackle being used in today's return to delicate angling.

filament line in the 20-pound class was common, rods stiff as rake handles were standard and reels that could wrench in the Queen Mary were "in."

Finding them — hardest

So it was among most fishermen for years, but something was missing. The "feel" was gone. "Finding fish is the hardest part, catching them is easy," quoted someone on a day when he had probably limited. But only so many fish can be hoisted from their watery home and heaved over the side of the boat until one reason — there must be something better.

The "old" fishermen never forgot, the young-uns were discovering — lighter line, lighter rods and reels, smaller baits. Ah, the sport in the sport was returning.

The reasons? Many.

Much of the rough-stuff in the "great" lakes had died and left vast stretches of open water, fish were becoming heavy line and large lure "educated," but most of all, light tackle puts a lively touch back in the art of angling.

Many feel the "bass circuit" pros were the first to return to ultra-light.

National notables

Among these are such national notables as "Big" Billy Westmoreland, perhaps the nation's finest smallmouth (Brown Bass) angler; Roland Martin, over $50,000 in national bass tournament winnings; Bobby Murray, Ricky Green, Bill Dance, Glin Wells, Stan Sloan, Jim Rogers and Don Butler. These cast-for-cash anglers now depend more and more on light tackle to fill their live-wells and keep their fishing prowess on the front pages of angling news.

Large ocean-going canoes

Large ocean-going canoes carried the first immigrants to Hawaii from the Marquesan and Society Islands. Making such canoes had long been an outstanding Polynesian skill.

Truck camper versatile The all-weather blanket

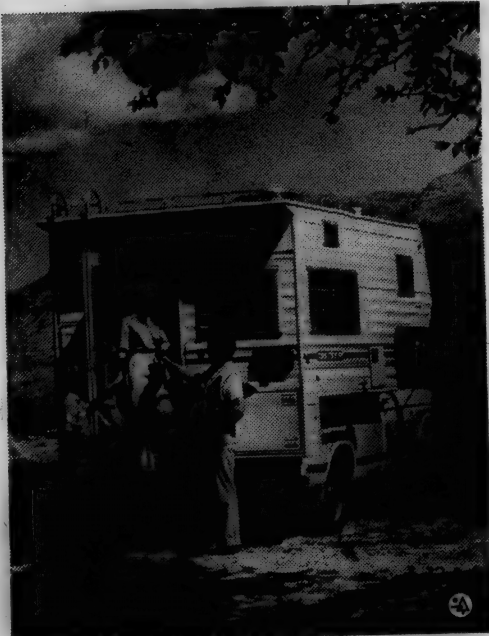

One of the most versatile recreational vehicles is the truck camper, the slide-in unit which mounts on the bed of a pickup truck.

The truck camper performs multiple duties as a family camping vehicle, a portable hunting lodge, or a weekend, and when not being used, can be removed, allowing the pickup to perform other duties. It takes minutes to mount a truck camper, and minutes to remove it, making it ideal for quick trips, or long hauls.

A unique feature of the Coachmen truck campers is the cabinet hide-a-bed, which serves as an overhead cabinet during the day and folds flat to make an overhead bunk when more sleeping space is needed.

Truck campers are the traditional choice of outdoorsmen. They can get a hunting party where it wants to go, with a portable hunting lodge right behind. Yet, truck campers are compact and economical to use.

Also, truck campers offer the same homey comforts as many other RVs, including a fully-equipped kitchen with a sink and refrigerator, a bathroom and a furnace.

Versatile RV — The truck camper, the traditional choice of hunters and other outdoorsmen, is a versatile unit, which suits the needs of families and sportsmen alike. When the truck camper is not in use, it can be removed in minutes and stored in the yard. The pickup can, then, do double duty as a second car, or truck. The truck camper, manufactured by Coachmen Industries, carries all the comforts of home, including a fully-equipped kitchen with sink, refrigerator and stove; a bathroom and furnace.

If you could take just one item on a camping trip or to the beach, what would it be? The answer is simple for experienced outdoor enthusiasts. An All-Weather Blanket.

This blanket for all seasons serves just about every outdoor need. At the beach it can be used as a blanket to provide a more uniform over-all tan. And because it has rustproof, grommeted corners, it can be erected to form a sunshade. Whether used alone or thrown over a beach umbrella, the heat reflective All-Weather Blanket provides a spot considerably cooler than in direct sunlight.

For boaters it doubles as a heat-reflective sunshade in warm weather and a waterproof cockpit cover in wet weather. Hunters use it as a duck blind and windbreak. For campers and picnickers it serves as a waterproof groundcloth.

The All-Weather Blanket by Thermos reflects up to 80 per cent of the heat your body manufactures right back at you. In the same manner it reflects the sun's rays to keep you cool.

Be sure you know your "GVWR"

Be sure you know your pickup's "GVWR" when you buy, especially if you plan to match your unit with a slide-in type camper insert.

GVWR means gross vehicle weight rating — the maximum amount your recreational vehicle can safely weigh when loaded for a trip. This includes a full tank of gasoline, water, LP gas tanks, clothing, gear, equipment, supplies, and the maximum number of passengers your vehicle is designed to carry.

Matter of weight

The GAWR — gross axle weight rating — defines the maximum amount of weight allowable on each axle system of the combined vehicle and load. Both GAWR and GVWR are determined by a combination of the size of the brakes, axles, springs, tires, rims, and other factors on the vehicle's chassis.

In order to help owners of 1971 and older International pickup trucks make sure their vehicles are not loaded beyond the rated capacities, International trucks is providing a special service: a free recreational vehicle inspection program through its dealer organization. Owners can bring their vehicles, along with a copy of the original line-set ticket, to any International truck branch or dealer for an accurate appraisal of its GVWR and GAWR. Then the owner weighs his complete RV unit exactly as it will be loaded. By comparing the weight to the GVWR and GAWR information provided by the dealer, an owner can determine if his vehicle is loaded beyond its capacity.

Camping with children made easy

Camping is an adventure for the entire family. So don't leave the children at home because you think such an outing might be difficult for them. Today's camping gear makes it almost as easy to care for children and infants in the Great Outdoors as in the wilds of the city.

Youngsters are thrilled with the thought of their very own room. So while camping, let them have their own tent. It's an adventure for the children, and it gives parents the privacy and comfort of their own tent. Thermos Pop-Tents, which come in sizes to sleep two or four, are ideal. They can be popped into place in less than two minutes. Just remember to pitch the tents within easy reach and hearing distance.

The problem of bedtime security for baby will disappear if he sleeps in his sleeping bag at home a few nights before the trip.

Let youngsters camp in the backyard a few nights before the trip. This play camp is an excellent way to prepare them for their adventures in the Great Outdoors.

Traveling needn't be a problem if you pack favorite games, toys and coloring books. And if they have their own Thermos picnic jug with them, they can get drinks without disturbing Mom and Dad. And, just as at home, be sure to keep fuel and stove, matches, axe, first aid supplies and potentially hazardous items safely out of reach.

TODAY'S HEALTH

Vacationers should watch for Ontario's health hazards

by David Woods

If you're vacationing in Ontario, this year you can be reasonably sure you won't have to grapple with crocodiles or beriberi, or with some of the exotic perils found in other parts of the world.

Nonetheless, there are health hazards to contend with here at vacation time, even if you don't venture very far afield.

To start with, there's the journey itself. Getting there may be half the fun, but in July and August especially, if you're going by car, remember the highways are crowded with vacationers. Before setting out, make sure that your car has been thoroughly serviced. During the journey, wear seatbelts. Share the driving if possible. And stop at regular intervals for a brief rest. If you can avoid doing so, never drive when you're tired.

Once you arrive at your destination there are a few simple precautions you can take to safeguard yourself — and your vacation:

- Find out where the nearest medical facilities are located.
- Keep a basic first aid kit handy and know how to use it.
- Check that the water (for drinking and/or swimming in) is safe.
- If you swim, do it in company rather than on your own.
- Sailors should check the weather forecast before weighing anchor. And always wear a lifejacket.

- Watch out for the various hazards you may run into "off the beaten track."

Be sure the "mushrooms" you pick really are mushrooms — not toadstools. And watch out for poison ivy, a low-growing plant easily recognized by its green leaves that grow in groups of three. The skin area that has been in contact with poison ivy should be washed promptly with strong household soap and treated with calamine lotion. If the skin is seriously affected, see a doctor.

Fortunately, Ontario has only one species of poisonous snake — the massasauga rattler. If you're going to the area it inhabits, a 20-mile wide strip along the shorelines of Georgian Bay and Lakes Huron and Erie, be sure you know where the local antivenin depot is located.

Foxes, skunks, bats and raccoons, as well as other species of Ontario wildlife, may have rabies and you should keep a prudent distance between them and you. If you should happen to get bitten by a suspect rabid animal, see a physician immediately. And, if you're taking your own dogs or cats on vacation, have them vaccinated against rabies at least 30 days before you leave home.

THE HOME TEAM

"If you get a hit off her she screams like a banshee!"

Strictly Fresh

Some of the jokes we've read lately have been written by aptly named "gag" writers.

Security at our airport is so tight we had to go through the detector five times — and then call a doctor to have him tell 'em we were taking iron capsules.

At today's prices, smoking cigarettes is most certainly injurious to your wealth.

Nowadays it's quite OK to watch the clock — someone might swipe it.

"No-ing" all the answers is what the boss does best.

The guy who needs a before-breakfast drink to get started usually keeps right on going.

Any self-respecting cat can make an air cushion chair an exciting piece of furniture for its occupant.

RESCUE BREATHING (MOUTH-TO-MOUTH)

THE CANADIAN RED CROSS SOCIETY

Start immediately: The sooner you start, the greater the chance of success.

Open airway by lifting neck with one hand and tilting the head back with the other hand.

Pinch nostrils to prevent air leakage. Maintain open airway by keeping the neck elevated.

Seal your mouth tightly around the victim's mouth and blow in. The victim's chest should rise.

Remove mouth. Release nostrils. Listen for air escaping from lungs. Watch for chest to fall.

REPEAT LAST THREE STEPS TWELVE TO FIFTEEN TIMES PER MINUTE. IF AIR PASSAGES ARE NOT OPEN: Check neck and head positions, CLEAR mouth and throat of foreign substances.

For infants and children, cover entire mouth and nose with your mouth. Use small puffs of air about 20 times per minute.

USE RESCUE BREATHING when persons have stopped breathing as a result of: DROWNING, CHOKING, ELECTRIC SHOCK, HEART ATTACK, SUFFOCATION and GAS POISONING.

Don't give up. Send someone for a doctor. Continue until medical help arrives or breathing is restored.

Campground crime isn't a problem here yet

Crime isn't a major problem at most campgrounds, fortunately, but like everywhere else, it's on the increase. Thefts of equipment, in particular, are rising alarmingly. There have even been some attacks and rapes.

Some private campgrounds are trying to solve the problem by limiting the campsite rentals to family groups. Many parks have placed limits on the number of persons who may use a single campsite to eliminate roving gangs that sometimes roll into campgrounds and cause trouble.

Fortunately, there has been little or no trouble in the campgrounds advertised in this publication, and in other area campsites.

Campers are usually the friendliest people in the world, but there are rare times when it might be wise to be a bit wary of potential troublemakers setting up camp near you. But how do you judge? Here are some ways:

Are the people dressed like campers and do they have the basic equipment that indicates they plan to stay one or two nights? It's easy to spot other campers, and they'll be just as concerned as you about not having their gear stolen.

Is it a family camp? Usually, people with children are there for the same reason you are - to camp.

Don't ignore the things you can learn by personal contact. Offer to help your new neighbors set up camp, or, if they don't need any help, go over afterwards and introduce yourself. You can learn much in a brief conversation.

If you still have fears, confide with other campers nearby. They can help watch for anything suspicious, which in drastic cases should be reported to the park ranger or campground owner.

Always get to know the people who are camping near you. If you're going to be gone for a day, ask them to watch your gear. You do the same for them. There was a time you could leave gear in the woods, walk away and always come back and find it intact. Unfortunately, this isn't always the case anymore.

It doesn't hurt to be cautious in the woods, but you don't have to be overly so. Most of the people you meet out there will become weekend friends, at least; some will become lifelong friends.

Be friendly with fellow campers, and you'll seldom have problems. Judge people in the woods just as you do at home - by instinct.

The Madawaska

Vacation area with a difference

The Madawaska, highest plateau country in all eastern, central and south-western Ontario, has long been known by the earlier seekers of outdoor pleasure and relaxation as "the vacation area with a difference."

The Madawaska rises centrally between the two great East-West travel routes of Ontario and Canada—the Saint Lawrence or "heritage route" (Highway 401) to the south, linking the greatest population centres of Canada, and the "Trans Canada Ottawa Valley Route" (Highway 17) to the north. West and north of the Madawaska lies internationally famous "Algonquin Provincial Park"; to the east, within two hours motoring, is the nation's capital city, Ottawa, and low-lying farm lands stretch to the delta where the mighty St. Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers meet. This interior plateau, with the deep drainage valley of the Madawaska River and its southern branch, the York River (both rising in Algonquin Park), the little Mississippi from the south, and the neighbouring and equally beautiful Bonnechere to the east (also rising in the Park), is fast becoming known as "the Great Eastern Ontario Playground".

The Madawaska's network of modern highways connect the two great travel routes and provide easy access to the interior, within one day's drive of south-western Ontario, north-eastern United States, and the Province of Quebec.

The majestic forests, pure blue waters and clear pollen-free air of the Madawaska Valley offer recreation and pleasure every season of the year. When the visitor arrives, he finds truth in the phrase "friendly and familiar". The desire for seclusion and rest, or quiet exploration is respected by the wonderful people of this area, whose ancestors came to the Madawaska via birch-bark canoe or afoot, in ox-carts or by stage coach, along the early colonization roads.

Bay Lake, off Highway 62 just south of Bancroft, derives its name from the numerous bays which cut into its shoreline. The sparkling clear water is an ideal spot for trout and bass.

Highway 62 meets Highway 28 in Bancroft and goes on through scenic Hastings County and the York River basin of the Madawaska.

Bancroft, a thriving village in an extremely beautiful setting, offers all services to the vacationer. Bancroft was developed largely by Senator Quinn in the 1850's and named after his wife.

A 100-year-old water-powered woollen mill, said to be the only one of its kind left in Canada, is still in operation in the village of Bancroft. A 100-year-old log house, with all the furnishings of its era, has been established as a museum on the banks of the beautiful York River, within the town, by the local citizens.

"Capital of the Rock Hounds" is the title given Bancroft and the area within a 35 mile radius. Every year thousands of rock hounds hunt the precious and semi-precious gems of the area.

The Gem-Boree, an annual four-day event sponsored by the Bancroft Mineral Society, has drawn as high as 12,000 people to swap rocks and gems and climb through the hills and old mine-sites in their never-ending search for that "very special rock specimen".

Highway 500 east leads from Bancroft, through great rolling hills, into the romantic Herman and McArthur Mills country. Further north, by good gravel roads, is the Little Mississippi Valley, and Fort Stewart and Boulter Hamlets on the York River. Here the York and the Mississippi approach their junction with the

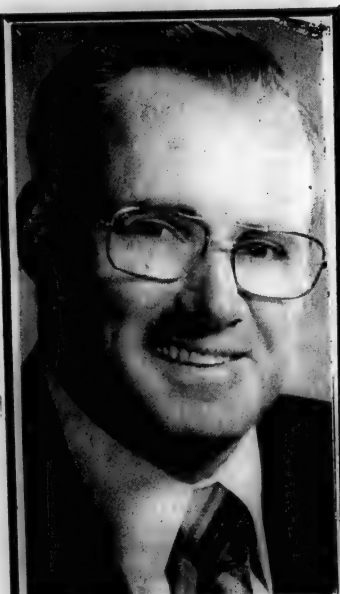

In north Bancroft, on Highway 62, is the "Eagle's Nest", a 600-foot rock formation overlooking the town and the York River basin. The people of Bancroft have built a winding pinet and rock park, look-out and picnic area for quiet leisure hours.

At Bird's Creek on Highway 62 North, a hard-top road leads westward to the spectacular vista of High Falls and the south shore of Baptiste Lake, where all vacation facilities are provided including public access to the lake via the municipal dock and boat ramp at Baptiste Village. road off Highway 62 north to the very top of Eagle's Nest, where they have hewn out of the Vacationers want to know, and here is...

How to get more miles per fuel dollar

The motor vehicle, in the studied opinion of most authorities, continues to be not only the most convenient but the most economical means of transportation for those who plan to vacation in the Great Outdoors.

The newer vehicles have been engineered to yield more mileage per gallon. Those that are a bit older require only proper servicing, preferably at the hands of an experienced technician, to assure operation at substantial savings.

Yet, still greater economy can be achieved by vacationers if they choose a destination closer to their hometowns than in palmy days — and stay put.

This plan is especially recommended to campers using either recommended towed or self-powered vehicles with all living facilities, for which there are plenty of park areas not too distant from most hometowns.

Additional savings, both in terms of gallons and of dollars, can be effected by taking along a bicycle for use in going from the campsite to the cross-roads grocery and back again. This requires only human energy.

Most people who understand and enjoy vacation-time relaxation in the Great Outdoors — campers, fishermen, hunters, water sports enthusiasts — are resourceful people and will find or invent other ways in which to economize and help conserve energy while they work in concert with the nation's energy conserving needs.

Essential to getting more mileage for every dollar spent for motor vehicle fuel is proper servicing of one's equipment and some very simple driving tips. Here are some of the most important:

BEFORE DEPARTING

Have your car checked and serviced by a competent mechanic. If it has not been tuned during the past 10,000 miles, it should be for greatest operating efficiency. A 20 per cent savings in fuel can be yours.

MAKE SURE TIRES

are properly inflated. This contributes to more efficient use of power, and it costs you nothing to have this done.

HOLD YOUR SPEED DOWN to the now universal 55 miles per hour limit instead of highballing down the road, and save up to 20 per cent of your fuel.

AVOID JACK RABBIT

starts which cause wasteful drains on the fuel supply and also extra strain and wear and tear on the drive chain and tires.

AVOID IDLING

which consumes fuel without getting you anywhere.

A STEADY, SMOOTH FOOT

on the accelerator conserves fuel.

New lighter weight outdoor gear reduces burdens for vacationers

Space-age materials, freeze dried foods, and lighter outdoor gear have greatly reduced the burden and bulk from the back of the hiker. Intelligently packed and stocked, the experienced hiker can support himself for weeks in the outdoors.

Investigate water before diving in

A Canadian-Red Cross Summer Safety Tip: Always investigate the water area before wading or diving in. You can be badly injured by rocks, or debris such as cans or broken glass, and a heavy undergrowth of tangled weeds is hazardous. Always swim in supervised areas. Know your own limitations and don't be tempted to show off and push your luck. Yell to us for help.

Caterpillar nuisance

The tent caterpillar is proving to be a major nuisance to many area residents again this year. Of the two species of tent caterpillars the Forest tent caterpillar of "army worm" is the cause of most complaints because of its tendency to be very mobile.

The Eastern tent caterpillar is the species that produces the tents from which their name is derived.

The Forest tent caterpillar does not produce tents.

Epidemics of tent caterpillars are cyclic and populations usually collapse after three to four years of heavy defoliation. This was the third year of heavy defoliation in most of the area, so residents can look forward to a "greener" spring in the near future.

Trees that are defoliated by tent caterpillars are not killed. They do suffer a severe reduction in growth however.

Control of the tent caterpillar over the large areas of forest is beyond the capacity of the Ministry of Natural Resources.

However ornamental trees can be protected with foliar applications of malathion, cygon and methoxychlor. These chemicals are safe to use and have a very short breakdown period in the environment with none of the ecological dangers associated with other chemicals such as the now banned DDT. These chemicals are available from most hardware and Co-op stores.

Remember it with movies

The Great Outdoors offers a variety of sights and sounds — waiting to be experienced. Scurrying rivers. Snow-white deserts. Checkerboard fields. Rugged mountain ranges. Towering stands of virgin pine. All present an opportunity to touch, see and smell a colorful world vastly different from the concrete and smog of city and suburban life.

And these experiences never really have to end, if you bring them home in color movies. Today, super 8 movies are as easy to take as snapshots.

If you plan to buy a new movie camera, consider an existing-light model. This means you can take good clear pictures under high noon sunlight or around an evening campfire without adding movie lights. Include one of the new Kodak XL movie cameras in your travel gear, drop in a cartridge of film such as Kodak type G Ektachrome 160 movie film, and set out to find those different worlds.

Whatever your camera choice, these simple tips will help to produce better home movies:

- Include plenty of action, whether it be a bird on the wing or a companion scaling a rock face.

- Your movies should have a beginning, middle and end, just like any other story. It's a good idea to prepare a rough scenario of your outing in advance.

- Vary the length of scenes to fit the nature of your subject. To accentuate the action of a surprised deer leaping for cover in the forest, use short scenes of three or four seconds.

Madoc settled in early 1800's

Madoc Village, originally settled in the early 1800's was first known as Deer Creek, later as Hastings Village. Most of Hastings County was settled by Scot, Irish and Welsh - and the village was no exception. By the middle of the last century, the community became known throughout the region as Madoc, in honour of Lord Madoc of Wales - a nostalgic gesture on the part of its Celtic settlers. Although the northern part of the County is dotted with Irish and Scottish Place names, Madoc inhabitants today reflect a more cosmopolitan mix, a fact which has helped earn the village its reputation as "The Hub of North Hastings".

Commercial, social and educational centre for a large portion of the county, Madoc is happily situated on lovely Moira Lake, conveniently located at the junction of Highways 62 and 7 - the latter the Central Ontario route of the Trans-Canada Highway. It is approximately mid-way between Toronto and Ottawa, and on the direct route which leads from Highway 401 to Algonquin park.

Goldrush! Eldorado! Madoc!

The three words are engraved on the pages of Canadian history - for this was the location of Canada's first gold rush. Five miles north of Madoc, on Highway 62 the hamlet of Eldorado survives. In the 1860's it was Richardson's farm - until gold was discovered there, and it was promptly renamed Eldorado. Thousands of would be millionaires converged on the village of Madoc, and by the fall of 1866 the population was 5,000. Nineteen hotels were in full, roaring operation in the area - and the boom was on.

By the fall of 1868, the boom had lost its zoom, and the party was over. An historic plaque marks the old Eldorado workings, and although Eldorado Gold is still available, these days it's a brand of cheese produced in one of the major cheese factories in the Madoc region.

Eldorado still attracts rock and mineral collectors and history and mining buffs, but the century - old gold fever which gave rise to that epic first Canadian gold rush has moved into the past.

History and mining are both important to the Madoc story. Apart from that first gold strike, mining has played an important role in Madoc's development. Visitors driving in the area are impressed by the great rock outcroppings found here - but they're considerably more impressed to find that marble quarried in the region is of a quality comparable, and in some cases even more highly prized than Vermont marble.

Marble chips from Stocklosar Marble Quarries on Hwy 62, Madoc is used in terrozzo floors found all over the world.

Another non-metallic treasure mined in Madoc is talc. Since the end of the last century, talc of the finest quality and purity has found a ready market, and annual production is now in excess of 25,000 tons. Although the immediate use which comes to mind is cosmetic, Madoc talc finds it's greatest market in the manufacture of paint, linoleum backings and a number of other industrial products.

Cool is the word for Madoc. Especially cool for ardent fishermen. Moira Lake literally on the doorstep, provides some of the best bass, pickerel and muskellunge fishing to be found in any region. Pleasant lake breezes are a hot-weather fring benefit every summer, and motels, rental cottages and literally dozens of tent and trailer sites area available at a number of lake locations

Public parking and boat-launching facilities are just south of Madoc, 100 ft. off Hwy. 62.

Who knows . . . ?

In the good old summer time when it's hot, hot, hot, all of Canada appreciates the sea, the lakes, the pools and the 'favorite swimming beach'. However the number of water accidents due to carelessness is increasing. Every year some 1,200 Canadians die of drowning. Most drowning deaths occur among adolescents, young adults and even middle aged adults. In all sports that contain an element of danger over-confidence could lead to tragedy. Learn to measure your own ability and teach your children to be aware of the dangers that can come with over-confidence. Practice what you teach . . . your children will likely follow your example. Have them learn to swim properly at an early age and guard them against water dangers.

. . . the life you may save could be the life of your own child.

Little ones move very quickly and often can't see where the danger lies.

- * Keep an eye on them, warn them of dangers near creeks, rivers, ponds, and even plastic wading pools.
- * Small children can drown in a few inches of water. Make sure pools in your area are fenced in and keep them locked when not supervised.
- * Water treatment chemicals used for swimming pools are, in most cases, poisonous substances. Keep them out of the reach of children at all times.

* Construction site holes or farm water dugouts present water hazards! Keep your children away from such areas.

Be alert . . . don't go in the water immediately after a meal, when tired or overheated.

Be aware of your swimming area and its dangers. Don't swim alone or at night. If you like to dive . . . be sure that water is deep enough.

Stay alive . . . don't depend on floating objects such as air mattresses, innertubes and home-made rafts. Learn to swim properly then know your limits. Long distance swimming . . . follow the shore line and have friends follow you in a boat.

Prevent boat accidents.

Pack your boat with safety equipment such as a buoyant support and a rescue line; make sure everyone wears a life jacket. Don't overload your boat and be sure everyone remains seated at all times.

Learn - and abide by water safety regulations issued by the Ministry of Transport. When leaving on a water trip tell someone where you are going and approximately when you expect to return. Always watch for signs of approaching storms.

Prevent waterskiing accidents.

Stay away from the shore or areas where people are swimming; the law requires that there be at least two people in the towing boat.

The grubs...

Mini lure for maxi results

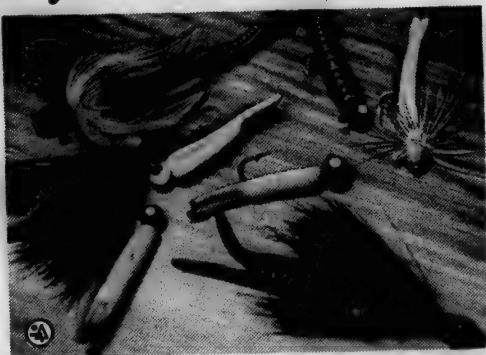

Grub fishing, not to be confused with angling in a pair of cut-off blue jeans, is the latest application of the greatest bass catcher of all times — the plastic worm.

The grub, sold in retail stores under a myriad of brand names, was originally developed in 1962 by Tom Mann of Eufala, Ala., as a speckled trout lure for saltwater fishermen.

It produced such sensational catches, fishermen angling for other species of saltwater fish tried it and had equal success. Not to be outdone, the freshwater bass fisherman, who'll try anything in his attempt to lure OF Bucket-mouth, turned to the grub — the results were phenomenal. It became "the" secret lure among those "in-the-know."

It seemed everyone had heard about this short, fat, flat-tailed worm but few really chalked it up as a sure-fire bass-getter until an Oklahoman by the name of Roland Martin slipped his big bass rig onto the gin clear waters of Lake Amistad near Del Rio, Tex. Martin had never laid eyes, or lures, on the lake before, but he proceeded to take on all comers in a $7,000 bass tournament, on a strange lake, with a strange bait.

"Somewhere up around buoy 19 on the Mexican side, out on a point, just over the edge of a drop-off near the Rio Grande River channel," Martin vertically jigged a grub to the winner's circle.

Grubs, plain or adorned with hair, nylon or hackle such as these Zebco baits, are fast becoming the catchin'est lures in today's tackle box.

With bass-in-hand, Martin was overheard mumbling some strange lyrics to an old tune, "Tap! Tap! Set the hook! Tug! — Catch a limit of bass on a grub." A what? New words to Texas ears here — tofore accustomed only to spinner bait, worm and topwater-popper. The word was out, the grub was in.

The grub won't classify as a topwater bait but at all other depths — look out! It is deadly fished in shallow flooded grass beds, over and through lily pads and in brush piles located on knee-deep, flooded flats.

For suspended fish, it can be swum at whatever depth the fish are located, or vertically jigged along drop-offs, creek channel edges or in standing timber.

The grub is a super bottom crawler and can be worked in numerous ways; in creek channels, through brush piles, over submerged stumps and slowly inched up-or-down steep rocky bluffs. It may be at its best when fished just off the bottom, over old brush-laden underwater islands (hilltops, knolls).

Try grubbin' it, the fish'll love it, you'll like it.

Hastings County Museum houses in Victorian mansion

Glanmore House, the old Victorian mansion, set well back from the road on Bridge Street East has a mystical look, and when lit up on very dark nights, it has a somewhat eerie look, a suggestion of secrets from the past.

Going by Glanmore at night makes it easy to imagine the home in its heyday, when the wealthy owners and their guests made merry with ballroom dancing and musical entertainment while servants refilled the punch bowls and prepared grand buffets to be sent up on the dumb waiter from the basement kitchen.

Glanmore House is now owned jointly by the City of Belleville and the County of Hastings. Restoration and repairs took many months to complete before it was officially opened as Hastings County Museum, July 7, 1973.

A wealthy Belleville banker, John Philpot Curran Phillips commissioned the designing of the house to a Montreal architect, Thomas Heanley in the late 1870's. Construction was completed in the summer of 1883. When the Phillips' only child, Percy, died at 3 years of age, they adopted a daughter Jessie, who married Sanford Burrows.

Sanford and Jessie Burrows had two daughters, Sheila and Philippa. The latter has been well known in Belleville for many years as a painter, noted particularly for her work in water colours. She married Major George V. Faulkner and the couple resided at Glanmore House, she continuing there for several years after Major Faulkner's early death. After selling Glanmore to the city, Mrs. Faulkner moved to Toronto.

Glanmore is an excellent example of "high Victorian" architecture with its large bay windows and iron crested mansard roof. These features and various other forms of ornamentation were typical of wealthy Victorian homes where an air of grandeur and affluence were desired.

Noting the remarkable height of the house it is not surprising to learn that the ceilings are 13 feet high on the main floor, 11 feet on the second floor, 10 feet on the third floor.

Tours for groups can be arranged any time of day or during the evening by phoning the Museum. But when arranging the time for your tour, the members of the group should keep in mind that a volunteer is giving his or her time, and will be waiting.

THE TRAP -

A short story by Agnes Gillette, Kaladar, Ont.

Enjoying a walk by the swamp one day, I came across a large Tom cat which was close to death. The muskrat trap had sprung on his hind leg, cutting deeply and cruelly into flesh and bone. The day was clear and bright, with a winter's sun shining brightly on the thick blanket of snow that covered the field by the swamp, turning it into a sea of brilliantly sparkling gems, that glittered coldly, and provided a foreground for the clear cut snowscape. In the swamp itself patches of ice twinkled and sparkled, vying with the snow's grandeur.

The cat lay as one already dead, too weak to struggle, too near death to cry out, and that is how I found him -- a limp mass of orange and black fur, with the edges of his handsome coat fanning the snow, and his eyes closed to the icy, cold beauty of his surroundings.

I bent down to put my hand on the unfortunate one, to determine if a spark of life remained.

Without warning bedlam erupted! The feline called on his last reserve of energy to fight off this two legged creature, who he blamed instinctively, for his tortured pain wracked body. The Tom brought the fore part of his body into full play -- biting, snarling and savagely scratching with the ferocity of a miniature tiger. Hate sprang into life in the yellow eyes.

The attack, so sudden, so unexpected, threw me off balance momentarily. I gazed down pityingly at the animal, even as a plan formulated in my mind whereby I could free the cat.

Speaking to the Tom soothingly in a quiet, unhurried monotone I knelt down beside the animal, who, once again lay quietly in the snow, only the feline's eyes remained watchful and open. I, never ceased my monotonous monologue, throwing my coat over the cat's face and front paws, imprisoning them securely. Poor Tom, caught off guard, deflated and defenceless, surrendered unconditionally. In a matter of moments he was freed as I released the steel jaws of death and picked up the cat gently, tucking him carefully inside my jacket. I then strode across the snow towards the cabin, where the white smoke, emitting from the chimney signalled its welcome to me and my now quivering burden.

Large source of furs

Unknown to many people, Northern Ontario is not the only large source of furs for the Ontario fur industry. The South Eastern Region which includes the Tweed District rates very high as indicated by these 1973-1974 fur harvest statistics.

The South Eastern Region ranks:
2nd in Ontario with 1,932 active trappers
5th in Ontario with over $1 million in total income

2nd in Ontario with 124 thousand muskrats

2nd in Ontario with 360 wolf and coyote pelts.

In the Tweed District alone 517 trappers managed to trap over 10,000 beaver which is the 2nd highest in Ontario and netted over $200,000 for many local residents

Crouch low when changing seats

The Canadian Red Cross Summer Safety Tip: If it is necessary to change seats in a small boat, always crouch low, hold onto both gunwales and keep your weight on the boat's centerline. Do not stand up, and do not change position unless it is absolutely necessary. Yell to us for help.

Car battery or pack provides power for new portable TVs

For those people who still like to have a way of keeping in touch with "civilization" while roughing it in the Great Outdoors, there is an electronic favorite that helps to do just that. It's a portable 9-inch diagonal black-and-white TV receiver that goes anywhere and plays anywhere within reach of a television station signal.

This versatile companion operates on AC indoors, provides stop-and-view convenience with a special DC adapter cord plugged into the 12 volt electrical system of your car or recreational vehicle, or plays on an optional (extra cost) battery pack. The DC adapter cord which plugs into your auto cigarette lighter, a detachable sunshield, as well as an earphone attachment, are all standard equipment.

This receiver, called the Zenith Jet Set, is all-solid state in chassis design.

Watch your favorite

If you include the Jet Set with your camping equipment, Mom and the kids can enjoy watching their favorite morning television show while Dad is off with rod, reel and lure to bring in the morning breakfast. On a rainy day, everybody can watch it indoors.

The latest news... a favorite ball team... are yours while weekend camping. If you are out of reception range of your local TV station, perhaps you can switch your allegiance temporarily to a competitive ball club playing in a city that's near your campsite.

More conveniences

Your Jet Set receiver has other advantages: its picture tube produces bright, detailed pictures with excellent contrast and sharpness over the entire TV screen. There is also a solid state Custom Video Range 82-channel tuning system with a 70-position Synchromatic detent UHF channel selector.

Practically all of the set's vital TV circuitry is mounted on a solid state Uni-Panel that slides out for ease of servicing if and when needed.

FOOD BASKET

Foil Care

Take care when using foil in your oven. Aluminum foil under a pie or casserole can make oven cleaning easier. Make sure the foil doesn't touch the heating element or cover air vents. Don't use aluminum foil on the broiler grid or rack because of grease fire hazard.

"WHEN DO OUR GROWTH STOCKS

Here's advice on... How to choose right campsite

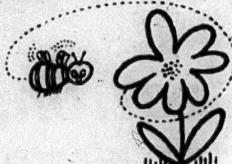

Where you pitch your tent or park your vehicle could make or break your camping vacation this season. Availability of the proper facilities, proximity to entertainment or activity, and weather conditions play a part in every camper's decision; but personal preference makes the difference.

The camper who enjoys scenic or historic attractions, excellent fishing, hunting and boating and well equipped camps (water, tables, fireplaces, restrooms and showers) is wise to spend his time in the outdoors at a national park, monument, forest or state park camp.

Recreation-oriented folks who want to spend their vacation swimming, water skiing or boating can usually find excellent camping conditions and perhaps stay closer to home by choosing a national recreation area, privately owned forest or recreational area or commercial campground located near a lake.

The most rustic conditions are available for those who enjoy "roughing it" in wilderness and primitive areas and on public lands.

The best way to find an ideal camping spot is to plan early by visiting with rangers and park superintendents, studying brochures, maps and directories.

Looking for a recreation vehicle?

2% willing to rent

A nationwide survey recently conducted by Kampgrounds of America (KOA) revealed that 2 per cent of recreational vehicle owners would be willing to rent their RVs to other families.

"That 2 per cent doesn't sound like much, but 2 per cent of the five million camping vehicles now on the road represents 100,000 camping families," says Don Ryan, vice president of KOA. "Think of how many families would try camping if they only knew where to rent a camper."

So KOA, the world's largest campground chain, has launched a non-profit "RV Exchange Program," which puts families that want to rent their RVs in touch with families that want to rent one. The novel plan works like this:

KOA serves as a clearing house. Prospective renters send KOA data on their RVs, an idea of how much they want in rental per week and enclose a $10 fee. In return, they receive a rental packet containing guidelines on how to rent their RVs, rental agreement forms, suggestions on insurance and their names are placed on a nationwide computerized list. They also receive $10 in coupons good at any KOA campground, and KOA plows the $10 fee back into rental advertising.

Families who want to rent an RV send $5 to KOA and receive a computer printout of information provided by prospective renters, tips on the care and operation of RVs and $5 in KOA camping coupons.

Ryan points out that the service is actually free to both parties, since the people get their money back in campground discount coupons. KOA generates good will and attracts new campers to its 800 national campgrounds.

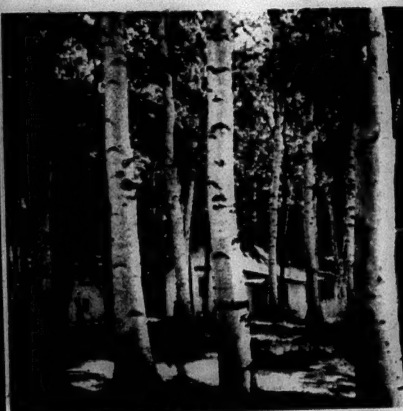

"Actually, we're like a computer dating service," says Ryan. "We match up the right families with the right RVs."

"Over the years, hundreds of families have written us asking where they could rent an RV. Usually, RV dealers just don't have enough rental vehicles to meet the demand during the peak summer months."

"I suspect that inflation, recession and high gasoline prices have combined to pinch the budgets of RV owners. So, by renting their rigs, they can pay off some of their investment, and they can write off on their taxes all maintenance, insurance and depreciation costs of rental."

Ryan sees the rental program particularly beneficial to families that live in one city and want to fly to another and rent an RV, which is always difficult to arrange. Motor homes and truck campers will probably be most in demand by families wanting to travel. But several trailers can also be rented right at a campground so the renter doesn't need special hitch on his car.

Families interested in the plan should write: Kampgrounds of America, P.O. Box 1138, Billings, Mont. 59103.

See this mine

Iron ore production is not new to Eastern Ontario.

A smelter was in operation at Marmora (junction Highways 7 and 14) some 150 years ago.

But it was not until an airborne magnetometer survey conducted by the Ontario Department of Mines in 1948 revealed the presence of a very large body of iron under a thick limestone capping, that really large-scale mining became a reality.

THE MARMORATON IRON MINE - Just east of Marmora on Highway 7 is an open-pit operation. The pit is now several hundred feet deep, and its surface dimensions measure more than 1,500 by 2,800 feet.

An excellent view of the whole mining operation may be obtained from a special lookout erected at the edge of the pit.

Anybody can take a look from this position at any hour of the day or night.

Tours of the open-pit area, generally confined to groups associated with the mining industry, are conducted from Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. The minimum age for visits to this area is 16 years.

Arrangements should be made by letter in advance. Hard hats and safety glasses are available on loan and must be worn. Ore specimens are provided.

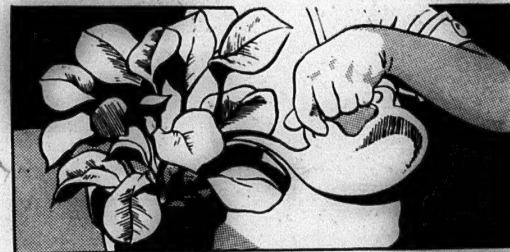

A little care prevents big problems

BY MARY FUREY CRYMES

Houseplants are like little kids — they seem to grow better when you follow a few rules. Unlike the small fry, plants can't communicate their needs. A little care as you go along prevents the big problems later.

Foliage and flowering plants are in big demand now, as decorators find new and different ways to use them to add beauty to the home. Beautiful begins with wise selection. Check the area you want to put plant, or several, for light. The foliage kinds need less of this than flowering varieties. Too little light will hurt a plant, and so will too much. Extremes are bad, so keep greenery away from the air conditioner, heating ducts, exhaust fan or dehumidifier. They thrive best in medium temperatures, an even mix of sun and shade and with a turnabout now and then. Moving them encourages symmetry.

Use moderation in feeding, too. Once a month, add a water soluble fertilizer made for houseplants, or a spritz of a do-it-yourself concoction. You can make a kind of health cocktail for plants from kitchen garbage and a blender. Gather fruit peels, vegetable parings, eggs shells, celery and carrot leaves, even watermelon rind. Whirl in the blender until liquified and strain into a jar. Keep it covered and refrigerated, but remember to label the jar. There's nothing like the stricken look on dad's face when he compliments you on the cold drink he found in the refrigerator and you inform him he just swallowed the plant food.

Watering's the easy part of houseplant care. When your thumb rests on dry soil, water. Use room temperature water and move pots to sink or outdoors until they stop draining.

It's time, too, to think about vacation care. When you and the family are off on the yearly jaunt, you need to know your darlings are cared for. There are many ways — the pots with the wick that provides continuous moisture, the water-first-then-cover-with-plastic way, and the resting the containers in a shallow tray of water. If you can swing it, trade off with a neighbor. You water hers, she'll do yours and you'll both enjoy the getting-away-from-it-all.

In 1907 the Ontario Central Railway was introduced to serve the logging and mining operations in this area creating a small bustling community - Maynooth Station.

The "Silver Owl" is an exceptional wooden house constructed at that time by the McAlpine Family who operated it as a boarding house and hotel. Its unique tin walls and ceiling have been preserved on the ground floor where the craft and gift shop is now located.

The stables still stand to the rear of this century house testifying to a courtesy offered weary travellers who arrived by way of the Old Peterson Road. This historical building tucked in the sheltered hamlet of Maynooth Station near Maynooth, is a rare remnant of our Canadian heritage.
